Having completely sold out of "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" for 1908

we are now engaged in the preparation of the next volume.

Every advertiser in this Standard work of reference reaps a rich reward. Year after year the same breeders and traders are represented in its pages proving its unparalleled value for advertising purposes.

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL

gives you a whole year's publicity at the smallest possible cost. This will make the seventh year of issue and every year's production is pronounced to be a long way ahead of its predecessors.

Every prominent breeder and exhibitor should make certain of seeing his name and address in this Annual. How often do you as a breeder want to know another breeder's address and without the Annual what a trouble it is to find it! The list of fanciers annually advertising themselves in this valuable handbook is no small index to its usefulness. If hitherto your advertisement has not appeared in it, make up your mind at once to place an order right away in it.

The breeding season for 1909 promises to be an exceptionally successful one. Special efforts will be made to extend the sale of the Annual amongst novices and contemplating purchasers.

Here is the full advertisement tariff for "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" 1909.

HAVE YOU NOTICED

In my advertisements of the Leipzig Rollers I do not merely say they are as good as can be obtained elsewhere, but I distinctly say they are better? And to prove this to your own satisfaction I ask you to have one from me and one from elsewhere at any higher price. Test them side by side for a week, and keep the one which suits you best. I shall be perfectly satisfied with the result. I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in the kingdom, and at the present moment have over one thousand Roller cocks in stock, all in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, hollow bell rolls, harp, gong, and flute notes, and jug-jug of Nightingale, etc., and are warranted entirely free from any Titlark or other harsh notes; price 6/6 and 7/6 each. Special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass rolls and hollow bell rolls, and are a cascade of ever-flowing melody, 10/- and 12/0 each. I also have a limited number of pure Seifert contest masters. These are gems of the purest water, and guaranteed fit to win contests; price 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each. Ordinary loud, free-singing Hartz cocks, in full, vigorous song, 4/6 each, seven 28/-. Hartz hens, 2/6 couple. These Hartz cocks are exactly the same as advertised by unscrupulous dealers as Hartz Mountain Rollers at fancy prices. All Rollers sold by me are imported direct from Leipzig, and all stamped on wing "Hans Wefler Leipzig." I am the only dealer who imports this strain, and no other dealer can get one of these birds unless he purchases from me. The following few letters, which are guaranteed genuine and unsolicited, say more for my Rollers than I could ever say myself:—"28, Cotton-st., Westleigh, Leigh, December 2nd.—Sir,—Bandmaster arrived in pink of condition. He was singing ten minutes after unpacking, and gives every satisfaction. I am sure no better bird could be purchased for the money (12/6).—Yours, G. Ellison." "Heap Wellington, Salop, December 4th.—Sir,—Received two Canaries, and am very highly pleased with them, and must thank you for straight forward dealing.—Yours, J. Williams." "2, Lucon-st., Blaenllechan, December 4th,—Sir,—Roller arrived safe, and was singing on the table when postcard came. I am quite satisfied, and shall want more.—Yours, J. Shirley." "71, Castle-st., Sanguheyham Barton, Ford, December 5th.—Sir,—Bandmaster arrived safe, and I am highly pleased with it.—Yours, G. Werrey." "43, Ann-st., Greenock, December 5th.—Sir,—Received two Canaries safe, and am highly pleased with them. Please send four more.—Yours, J. Shirley." "71, Castle-st., Languhar, December 8th.—Sir,—Pair Rollers arrived safe. I am perfectly satisfied with them.—Yours, W. Broadfoot." "Hill-st., Elworth, near Sandbach, December 7th.—Sir,—Please send following. I hope the Roller will be as good as the one I had from you about four years ago, as he is still singing as well as ever.—Yurs, W. Lee." "57, High-st., Glyn-Neath, December 9.—Sir,—Received Hartz cock safe, and am highly pleased with it; in fact, he is a gem, and started singing as soon as unpacked. Please send another.—Yours, D. Thomas." "15, Hill Row, Pentwyn, Fochriw, December 10th.—Sir.—Roller safely to hand on Wednesday. It started singing splendidly, and at time of writing is in splendid form. You may pick up your money, as I am perfectly satisfied, and shall shortly send for another Bandmaster.—Yours, W. Gwynne." "18, Montague-st., London, December 11th.—Sir,—Bandmaster you sent is most satisfactory. The lady is very pleased with it, as besides being a good singer it is a strong and healthy bird.—Yours (Miss) H. Misley." "276, Victoria Buildings, Hillstown, Bolsover, December 11th.—Sir,—Received special Bandmaster, and am very pleased with him.—Yours, J. King." "Mount-st., Mullingar, Ireland, December 11th.—Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller, and am proud to say he is a living musical box. It's a pleasure to come into contact with such an honourable man, who does not mislead fanciers concerning birds he has for disposal.—Yours, J. Huggard." "London-rd., Alderley Edge, November 30th.—Sir,—I thank you for the marvel you have sent me (Bandmaster at 10/-), for he is a marvel. I never heard one like him. On coming home my wife said, 'You are hard to please, but I think you will be satisfied this time.' He excels all I have heard, and will recommend you for more. Please send me another. Yours, G. Birkin." On December 11th Mr. Birkin again writes: "Sir,—Second Roller arrived safe on Friday, and gives satisfaction in every way. He has just the song I wanted, and I thank you very much for sending such a good bird. I shall get you more orders, as I am sure your birds are far better than any others I have heard.—Yours, G. Birkin." "27, Cambrian-place, Carmarthen, December 14th.—Sir,—I have instructed editor to hand over deposit for Roller. I am well pleased with bird. Thanking you for such a nice songster.—Yours, W. Evans." "Blaengarn.—Sir,—Roller has given every satisfaction; he is singing very nicely, and is free from any objectionable notes. Thanks for promptness.—Yours, E. Jones." "34, Castle-st., Stranraer, December 14th.—Sir,—Received Roller safe, and am highly pleased with him. He is a tip-topper, and sang immediately it was opened. Please send Hartz cock by return. P.O. enclosed.—Yours, J. Raeside." It's plain proof that my Rollers must be better than others, otherwise I should not receive so many testimonials every day; but you can easily prove it to your own satisfaction, as I send all on full week's trial, entirely at my own risk, either on receipt or cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and unless bird proves fully satisfactory every penny of your money is refunded. All are safely and warmly packed, with seed and water, in special travelling cages, free of extra cost, and sent out same day as order is received, so intending purchasers of Rollers for Christmas and New Year gifts may rely upon getting their birds to time if ordered from me. Postcards sent before birds in all cases. See British Birds and Appliance columns for further adverts.

This is the first time we have advertised a testimonial, although we hold scores of similar testimonials; winners bred from our pairs. We do not believe in showing our customers up to the world who they are buying off, and would not have done now if the owner had not pressed us to do so. We have a few pairs to dispose of, exactly the same way bred; certain to breed winners. Those who want to breed their own winners send to the reliable strain that produces winners every year. Our pairs are not matched haphazard, just cock and hen, but thoroughly studied and paired to produce the best living; stamped address for particulars.—Dudley-hill, Bradford.

DYKES'

Champion Winning

YORKSHIRES.

Are what you want if you want to win; or stock birds to breed your own winners. My strain of Yorks. has stood the test on the show bench for the last few years, and this season I have won over 200 cash prizes, medals, spls., etc., in the keenest competition; and I have sold over 60 winners to customers this season; see testimonials published in this paper, all through the present season; and I have received scores of others that I have never published, which are filed for inspection at any time.

Those requiring high-class stock at lowest possible prices, would do well to pay me a visit during the Christmas Holidays. I have the best collection of high-class Yorkshires in Bradford, in all varieties, which can be seen in my up-to-date bird rooms.—Note.—I am the man referred to by another advertiser last week as a one season's wonder, because this is my first season's advertising. But if I am not an old advertiser, I am a breeder with a life's experience, and not a one season's breeder, same as others. And I bred more last season in one round than some have bred in all their experience. I am not saying this as bounce, but am compelled to defend myself against matter that is published with the intention of doing me an injury.

Typical racy Yorkshire cocks at 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; all on full song and guaranteed cold room bred and kept, and every bird sent out clean and in the pink of condition; no sickly or wheezing rubbish here; long slim breedy hens, feathered like wax, the right sort to breed winners, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each. Pairs carefully selected to breed winners at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair.

EXHIBITION COCKS OR HENS.

Any colour, including some that have won at recent shows; see reports of Ludlow, Ferryhill, Carmarthen, Stamford, Tamworth, etc.; fit for the keenest competition, or others that can win at local shows, from 12/6 each; please state wants, and remember, no risks in dealing with the old reliable breeder and exhibitor, and no waiting; all birds sent off at once, on seven days' approval at my risk; either cash or deposit with Editor; travelling cages with proper food for journey, 3d. extra; illustrated price list post free.

MELBOURNE.

The Melbourne P. and C.B.C. held their 15th annual open and members' show, on December 4th and 5th, in the Public Hall. This is the first time they have tried a two-days' show, but the venture was not as successful as was anticipated. Entries were fairly good. The secretary, Mr. J. Hicklin, had everything in A1 order, and the birds were got away early. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

Cruickshank, the indefatigable secretary, and Mr. J. Murphy, the assistant secretary, to whom is due much of the credit of the success of the undertaking. Mr. Jas. Smillie (Riccarton), judged, his awards appearing to give every satisfaction.

KIRKSTALL AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

This recently-formed society held its first members' show on December 12th, at headquarters, Congregational Schoolrooms. There were 15 classes, which brought together an entry of 76 birds, which were very satisfactory considering it was the first attempt, and speaks well for the future. Six splendid specials are given, which are to be competed for at this and another show on January 16th, kindly given by Dr. Lyall (President), H. E. Denton, Esq., Messrs. Oakley, S. Fowler, and Hollingworth. In order to give the members a chance, Mr. Chew (of Messrs. Chew and Stokoe) has kindly consented not to compete for these; and notwithstanding this he turned out a strong team of Yorkies, which were worth going a long way to see. Mr. Yelland led in points for special with 24, followed by Mr. Hutton with 17. Yorkshires were a strong lot, many well-known winners being among them. Norwich were short in numbers, but one or two nice birds were staged by Messrs. Oakley, Parker and Hornby. In the Greens, Mr. Denton took the premier position with a bird of capital qualities. The A.O.V. class was headed by a bonny little Hybrid. The awards were placed by Mr. Richmond in a very satisfactory manner, grumbling being conspicuous by its absence.

TWITTERINGS.

ONCE again it has been the pleasure of many kind friends to make us the recipients of seasonable messages of goodwill Even as we write, although the Great Festival itself is still some days away, our desk is heavily graced with tasteful cards of greeting, many, as we note with added pleasure, from readers over the seas. We are deeply touched—we should hardly be human were we otherwise—at this evidence of the world-wide host of friends made by our journal, and to one and all we extend the hand of fellowship and the heartfelt wish for

A Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

The Auchterarder C.B.A. Show, writes Mr. James Daw, jun., the hon. secretary, will be held on January 23.

Cheshunt Show report reads in the class for British, 2nd Sewell; it should read: 2nd, F. Mascall, as I took second prize in this class. —F. MASCALL (Stansted).

Sunderland Show report gives Messrs. Taylor and Armstrong instead of Taylor and Smart as winners in the Unflighted Crestbred class, write Messrs. Taylor and Smart (Shildon).

In our schedule, special 105 open for Borders reads: "Gold medal with bold centre"; it should read: "Silver medal with gold centre." —A. M. BAIRD, cage-bird secretary of the Paisley A.A.

Mr. John, sec., Llanelly and Dis. C.B.S., writes hoping that fanciers will not forget Llanelly Show entries close on December 31, and that cage-bird men will give him a helping hand towards a record entry.

The report of Winchester Show (of which I am a member of the committee), writes Mr. F. H. Huntley (Winchester), omits to state that I won 1st and spl. in the Common Canary class, and v.h.c. in the Goldfinch class.

On Saturday next, December 26th, we shall hold our last members' show of the year, writes Mr. J. Smith, secretary of the Tong and Dis. C.B.S. We shall be pleased if fanciers and friends who intend becoming members for 1909 will note that if they give their names and addresses on or before the first show on January 16th they will be able to compete for the valuable specials at the end of the year. Our next meeting takes place on January 12th, at 7.30 p.m.

Entries close for Dunfermline on December 26th. Fanciers hurry up with your entries to J. Templeman, 61, Maitland Street. (ADVT.)

Macclesfield Show report in the Unflighted Yellow class gives v.h.c. Lunt; this should be third, there being no third mentioned.—A. LUNT (Macclesfield).

Our entries close on December 28th, writes Mr. F. Looker, hon. secretary of the Hertford F.A. show, to be held January 13th. We hope fanciers will support our show.

The Marske Show, which is to take place on January 16th, writes Mr. T. Kirby, the hon. secretary, will be held under C.B.U. rules, so that we hope fanciers will support us.

I was first and second in the foul green cock or hen class at the recent Whitburn Show, and not Messrs. Wilson and Duncan, as given in the report.—ALEXANDER FORREST (Whitburn).

Will the exhibitor who received the wrong bird from the Ferryhill and District Cage-bird Show please return it at once to me?—R. BINKS, Secretary, 27, West Street, Ferryhill.

Owing to our next meeting night falling on December 26th, Boxing Day, the meeting has been postponed until further notice, writes Mr. D. Jeremy, secretary of the Morriston and District C.B.S.

Entries have been extended, writes Mr. F. W. Bradley, hon. secretary of the Millom C.B.A. show, and will be accepted up to Monday morning, December 28th. We hope exhibitors will rally round us.

I beg to ask all members of the Bristol C.B.S. to make a special effort to attend the next meeting, writes Mr. C. E. Brown (late vice-chairman, and now chairman pro. tem.), as it is important to everyone of them.

I have recently despatched a consignment of Canaries to India, consisting of four pairs of Norwich and two pairs of Crests, which I consider rather an honour for a working-man fancier, writes Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland).

My exhibits and Mr. Oliver's were missing from Widnes Show, writes Mr. Cundiff (Macclesfield). This was through some neglect on the part of the Railway company, the birds arriving back having not been to Widnes at all.

Allow me to tender you my sincere thanks for your kindness in depicting my winning British Goldfinch, writes Mr. George G. Henderson. I may say that since Glasgow he has won four 1sts and 2 specials. You say "Milngavie," but Anniesland, Glasgow, is my address.

We thank all exhibitors who helped us at our show, writes Mr. G. E. Spencer, hon. secretary of the Tamworth and District C.B.S. We did fairly well for a first open show, as it works out at a very small loss. All prize money has been paid.

Will members of the Pendleton and Salford O.S. kindly return all unsold tickets in connection with our late show? writes Mr. W. Jackson, the hon. secretary. On behalf of the members of the society, allow me to thank you for the excellent report you gave us of our show held on December 11th and 12th last.

Exhibitors at the Scottish National Show are reminded that our artist, Mr. H. Norman, will be at this fixture prepared to make drawings of any exhibit there, if desired by the owner. Full particulars will be found on the next page. Orders should be placed as early as possible.

At the Welsh National Show, in the Border Fancy Buff Hen Class, "No name" appeared after the third prize winning hen (which was omitted in catalogue). Kindly credit me with same, as my bird won that honour, and, as well, I was hc in same class.—R. H. JONES (Swansea).

Will advertisers kindly note that we have been regretfully compelled to hold over the publication of many announcements until our next issue, owing to non-compliance with our notice of last week requesting their early despatch? Late advertisements could not possibly be dealt with in this issue, but will duly appear in the next.

I was very much surprised as well as gratified to find, on opening my CAGE BIRDS on Friday, a reproduction of my young buff cock bird. He is one I bred myself and is ticked on one wing, he has been shown six times this season and has won 1sts at Carlisle, Wallsend, and Ferryhill; and 2nds at Darlington and West Hartlepools under four different judges. My best wishes for a prosperous new year to CAGE BIRDS.—G. W. CUTHBERTSON (Heighington).

"Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

Will you please state in CAGE BIRDS for the benefit of the thirty odd applicants for the Nightingale which I advertised in your issue of December 12, writes Mr. S. L. Cocks (Peterborough), that it is sold. I have not time to answer them all individually.

Will fanciers who have received a schedule of the Plumstead and Woolwich Show, kindly note that I have omitted the definition of novice from same, writes Mr. W. Pawley, the hon. secretary. This should read: "A novice is one who has not won a first prize in open competition or three first prizes in open novice classes. Wins in classes where there are less than three exhibitors do not count."

We are notified that there is an omission from the schedule of the King's Heath, Moseley and Dis. Society's Show, to be held on January 6th and 7th. The definition of a novice should have been included and reads: "one who has not won a first prize in open competition." Class 78 also should read: "British hardbill any other variety," and not "And other variety" as printed.

I was very pleased on opening my CAGE BIRDS to find your artist had sketched my Bullfinch, writes Mr. F. Vincent (London, S.E.). It is the same Bullfinch that won at the Horticultural Hall for its present owner, Mr. Francis. It was claimed at a previous show (Dulwich O.S.) at catalogue price, £2 2s., where it stood first. It is not one of the best as regards type of a Bullfinch, but it carried a splendid colour and sheen, the latter no doubt through being passionately fond of mealworms.

A few errors have crept into our special prize list, writes Mr. Wm. Grewar, secretary of the cage-bird section of the Forfar and District C.B.I.S.. Woud you kindly correct same for me? Special No. 39 ought to be for best in classes 130 and 131, and not 120 and 121 as stated; Special No. 46 should read for best 3rd in Classes 132 to 139; Special No. 49 is presented by Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream), and not as stated. I have received other three specials, viz., 2s. 6d. for best 3rd in Classes 110 and 117, a special for best 3rd in Classes 118 and 119, and 2s. 6d. for best 3rd in Classes 122 to 129.

Kindly thank the numerous friends who have expressed their sympathy to me regarding the tampering with the drinking water of my birds at Berwick Show, writes Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside). As they nearly all state they are writing through seeing it in CAGE BIRDS, no doubt they will be content until I find time to write each individually. I have had to give up the case, as my health gave way under the strain. I could not rest at night (sleep was out of the question), and I had to give in entirely, also to give up my judging engagements for the season. Perhaps if this should catch the eye of the coward who did the deed, it may still further gratify his selfish nature to know that he has hurt me, as I know it was fully intended to do so. But I may also state that our day of reckoning may be close at hand when once I am able to take it up again, as I feel that each day I am steadily improving. Every good wish for the pride of our fancy—CAGE BIRDS.

Real Scotch.

We have regaled ourselves on real Scotch this week, and enjoyed it very much, too. A case of it came to hand, as a seasonable gift, from our good friend, Mr. Kinlayside (Edinburgh). And we were not long in sampling it. Even the office boy agreed there was nothing like it to be found this side of the Border. It was a case of Scotch shortbread—and jolly good shortbread, too.

Because of Christmas.

Next week many extra pages will be added to CAGE BIRDS. Owing to the Christmas holidays, and the necessity for printing early, much interesting matter has perforce had to remain undealt with in this issue. The vagaries of the Christmas post, too, are invariably responsible for many letters, etc., not reaching us until after the paper has gone to press—one or two club notices generally suffer. Should such prove to be the case, we ask our friends to accept this explanation.

Death of a Noted Cinnamon.

I thought it might interest some fanciers, writes Mr. G. W. Saunders (Sutton), to know I have just lost my old Yellow Cinnamon cock. He was well known to a good many exhibitors in and around London, and you kindly put him on the front page of CAGE BIRDS in June, 1905, sketched by your artist, Mr. Norman, when standing first at the Crystal Palace Show. He was seven years old, and has won 37 firsts, 5 seconds, 1 fourth, and about fifty specials. He was only out of the money once, when he was hc at Walthamstow Show in 1903; then he had washed himself just as judging was on, but he beat the winner the following week at the Palace Show. He died in good condition of feather, not having moulted this season, so am having him put in a glass case.

Echoes from Kilsyth.

That the show was a big success; that Secretary Duncan and Treasurer Irvine had a gigantic task to perform; that along with a willing hand of assistants they did their duty well; that the drill halls are a shade too small for the largest one-day show in Scotland, which the natives say it is; that the show was crowded with visitors and fanciers; that the Norwich were a good turn-out, and Borders a notable entry; that Mr. Irvine carried off the B.F.C.C. medal for best young Border; that we all wished good luck to Secretary Duncan, who carried off the "Hardie" cup, also cup for best British or Foreign, popular wins; that such a splendid show was a fitting reward to the management, who left no stone unturned to make it such.—SCOTCH FANCY.

TWO CHRISTMAS . . . . COMPETITIONS.

OUR FRONTISPIECE.

A Chance for Birdie Artists.

Our Frontispiece last week was designed to be coloured. We offer a prize of half-a-guinea (10/6) for the best attempt at colouring the same which reaches us from one of our readers on or before Monday, January 4th next. The medium to be employed is left to the discretion of the competitor. The finished attempt should be packed flat, or rolled in a tube, wherever possible.

OUR CONUNDRUMS.

For all to Answer.

Half-a-crown will be paid to the reader who sends us the best answer on a post-card to any of the appended questions (that is four half-crowns in all).

1.—Answers must be written clearly on post cards only with name and address at bottom and number of query at top.

2.—Each answer must be written on a separate post card.

3.—Answers must be written on one side of the post card only.

4.—All answers must be received by Monday's post, December 28th.

We should like competitors to understand that length of answer of itself will not count; nor will mere brevity. The point and pithiness of the answer and its general helpfulness to novices are the main things to be considered.

The Questions:

1. Which is the best breed of Canary for the beginner—and why?

2. Should legitimate "preparation for show" include the removal of a few objectionable feathers?

3. Is it desirable that exhibition British birds should be colour-fed?

4. Which is best, an outdoor or an indoor birdroom—and why?

In both competitions entries are accepted only on the understanding that the Editor's decision shall be final.

The current month's issue of "Bird Notes" affords much interesting reading, containing as it does articles by Mr. O. Milsum ("Two Indian Babblers"), Mr. Hayward W. Mathias ("Notes on My Aviary and Birds"), Mr. H. Goodchild, M.B.O.U. ("Ornithological Notes during a Midsummer Holiday in the Pennines"), and Mr. W. E. Teschemaker, B.A., and Mr. P. F. M. Galloway, who together supply notes on "The Nightjar in Captivity." The remaining contributions are from the pens of Mr. W. T. Page, F.Z.S., Mr. D. Dewar, F.Z.S., I.C.S., Mr. H. Willford, Mr. H. Hetley, Mr. A. Suteliffe, and others. Several excellent plates accompany the articles.

Our Christmas Number.

We have been the recipients of a great number of letters couched in appreciative terms, concerning last week's Christmas Number and its coloured plate and calender, but owing to the limited time at our disposal have been unable to deal with them in this issue. We return our sincere thanks to the writers.

The Paterson Cup.

In our illustration last week of the Scotch Fancy Canary which won the Paterson Cup at the last City of Glasgow Show, the owner of the bird was given as Mr. "Wallace," whereas it should have been Mr. W. Allan (Lauriston Place, Edinburgh), a printer's error which we regret should have slipped past unnoticed.

A Slight Difference.

It is said that a certain baronet, who is notoriously pompous and boastful, was neatly taken down by a well-known comedian at a dinner-party some time ago.

"While I was out hawking yesterday——" commenced the baronet in a loud voice.

'Hawking?" broke in the comedian, with an assumption of great surprise.

"Yes, falconry, you know."

"Oh," said the comedian, "I thought you meant bootlaces and collar-studs!"

L.P.O.S. Annual Dinner.

I am now able to announce that the L. and P.O.S. dinner will take place on January 6th, 1909, at the Horse Shoe Hotel, Tottenham Court Road, at 6.45 for 7 p.m. We are again favoured by having Mr. G. Crabbe to preside, and the menu selected and the artistes engaged should prove particularly attractive. I am anxious to receive any suggestions from members in connection therewith, and confidently hope to achieve a record worthy of the year of the Jubilee Palace Show.—H. E. TRINGHAM.

ONLY ONE MORE PROVINCIAL FIXTURE.

Do not let your chance slip by

If you want to secure a life-like picture of your exhibition birds.

For the present show season we made such arrangements as would enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of CAGE BIRDS. Mr. H. Norman, the premier artist of the Fancy, has visited a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services have been freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety.

REMEMBER: The next and last Provincial Show is the Scottish National, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1 next.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or, after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits should be placed at once with our Manager, at 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will be very pleased to communicate terms, etc. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced. Exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

In addition to the show mentioned above, our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed Column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

December 31st and Jan. 1st.—Edinboro' (Scottish National).

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS

Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 268.

TO DO AWAY WITH RATS & MICE.

Sent by W. H. Slater, 18, Sales Row, Carbrook, Sheffield.

I enclose an idea by which any fancier may rid himself of mice or rats. It is a very simple means to construct. Get a small barrel or tub, and on one side fasten a piece of wood by means of a hinge at A. Let one end be well over the centre, and on it glue some seed or grain. Balance the wood by means of a weight B, and let B rest on a ledge or box. I think the sketch will make it plain. Of course, inside there would want to be a bucket half-full of water The trap will be found to work automatically.—W. H. SLATER.

No. 269.

IMPROVED SOFTBILL PERCHES.

Sent by the Misses Amy & Nellie Jebbitt, 18, Meadow Place, South Lambeth Road, London, S.E.

We enclose a sketch of something we find very useful. My sister and I keep a few Softbills for pets—Thrushes, Starlings, Blackbirds, etc.—in cages, 36 by 20 by 20 inches in box form. One perch is fixed at each end, but we find the birds all more or less get sore feet, owing to rigid perches. The ordinary penny spring perch is no good in these big cages, so we make and use the following, with excellent results:—First buy a ½d. cane, and jamb it in an empty cotton reel flush, and in the other end of the reel screw in a double pointed screw (I think ironmongers call them dowall screws); then cut the cane one inch longer than the actual depth of cage, so that it rests through the front wires or mesh without any fastening. The perch is then screwed into the back of cage by the double-pointed screw. We bind the perch with long strips of house-flannel or baize "screw-ways." This gives the bird a good grip of perch, and the perch is nice and warm. The fact that the perch is cane, and not held in front, makes it very springy.—AMY AND NELLIE JEBBITT.

Perch for Softbills.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

THE show of the Brighouse and District C.B.S., held December 18th and 19, was quite a decided success, and the officials were greatly pleased with the result obtained, the entries in all classes being very level, and the birds throughout of a very high order of merit. Time was when the Brighouse Society's show always provided classes for foreign birds, and it will be of interest to the Fancy generally to know that classes were provided again at this fixture, and that they were very well patronised, the three classes containing no less than 35 birds, which, considering that this branch has been sadly neglected in Yorkshire, and more particularly in the West Riding, must be considered as very satisfactory. The fact that one of the members of the Society is a very enthusiastic "Foreigner," no doubt had much to do with the revival. The keen interest taken in these and the British Bird classes by the visitors will do a lot towards their inclusion another year.

TONG and Dist. C.B.S. had a nice members' show on Saturday last, sixty odd birds being put down in eight classes, whilst at Bradford East no less than 182 birds were staged on Tuesday evening, the 15th inst., which necessitated the employment of an assistant judge to help Mr. J. Bailey, the appointed "card-placer," in his duties. Well done, East!

BAILDON O.S. held their third annual open show on Saturday last, and were rewarded with a very nice entry. Now, having got their show over, they will no doubt be considering an important question for the advancement of their society and members, viz. the joining of the Yorkshire Union. This has been much talked of, and no doubt it will be settled at their next meeting. I hope next season to see them and several other societies who are considering the same subject, in the ranks of the Y.U.

STRAIGHT 'UN.

ROCHDALE GOOD INTENT C.B.S.

A Linnet competition was held on Saturday, December 19th. The birds were given by Mr. R. R. Gaskill on November 24th, and were all fresh-caught birds. They were judged more for condition and steadiness. We also had a class for Hardbills. Results:—LINNETS: 1, spl, Lee; 2, Wild; 3, Collinge; 4, H. Lord; vhc, Ben Lord; hc, Lees; c, Rhodes. HARDBILL: 1, 2, 4, vhc, Harrison and Rayner; 3, Ben Lord; vhc, Holden; c, Lees.—SAM M. CLAYTON, hon. sec.

LANCASHIRE C.A.

A well-represented meeting was held at the rooms of the Rochdale O.C., Mr. J. Nadin, president, occupied the chair. Mr. Achroyd (Oldham), was appointed scrutineer for the ballot papers in the election of officers for 1909; the papers will be sent out during the week to all members. It was also decided to hold our annual meeting at Oldham on January 16th, when every member who possibly can is asked to attend, as the rules will come up for alterations. Mr. R. Williamson (Middleton) was elected a member. We hope that next season our membership will be doubled. Now we have got from the makers our new standard medal, we have what we think one of the finest that any specialist club gives, medals which are a credit to the makers. Whoever wins one will feel proud of same. Will intending members please send in their names, and help us in our efforts to make the Lancashires come well up again at next year's shows?—WM. ADAMS, hon. secretary.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Breeding Queries.

E.B.—There are numbers of individuals, especially in strains bred under what we may call normal conditions, among Scotch Fancies, as there are in practically all varieties, which are good feeders and quite able to rear their own young without any assistance from foster parents, but as one can never tell these good-natured birds on sight, it is not wise to run the risk of breeding with good specimens without having a few common birds breeding at the same time to assist in rearing the better class of birds if their services are required. It is merely a matter of acting on the principle of having two strings to one's bow in order to be the better prepared to meet unforeseen accidents. You must not forget that bad feeders may occur in common varieties as well as in good ones, and try to get your stock of feeders from a strain that is noted for being good feeders. You could, of course, utilise Lizards for feeders, but as it is rather difficult to breed really good specimens, I think you would probably do better by using a fairly good type of Norwich or Cinnamons. With Norwich especially, if nothing fit for show turns up, there is generally a ready sale for surplus stock at better prices than for common birds. If you decide to use Lizards it is quite a matter of personal taste which variety is prettiest. But, anyway, you will have to use both varieties, as Golds and Silvers are mated together just the same as Yellows and Buffs in other breeds. In fact, the terms Gold and Silver are synonymous with Yellow and Buff. The food and general treatment is just the same as for Norwich or any other variety.

Making a Bird-room.

F.E.—I confess I do not very much admire the makeshift method on which you have planned your suggested bird-room. On the face of it the system seems all right, and I have no doubt it could be carried out as you suggest in such a way as to make it quite serviceable for a time, and, perhaps, for a time, maybe one, or only half of one, season it would show very good results. But it would be at best a makeshift and temporary affair. To quote a few of its drawbacks: suppose the compartment occupied by a single pair become infested with red-mites; there is absolutely no means of removing that part to overhaul it thoroughly and prevent the pest spreading, whilst, on the other hand, there are unlimited opportunities for the pest to scatter broadcast all over the surrounding cages. Then if any case of infectious or contagious disease broke out in one compartment the case would be far worse. You could do little or nothing to disinfect and nip the disease in the bud, and the chances are that your stock would be practically annihilated. Again, unless you nailed pieces of board a few inches wide on to the edges of the shelves to prevent the sand and husks being thrown out of the cages, the system would cause a fearful amount of litter and dirt in the room, and if you did put such strips on, you are left with no means of cleaning out the cages save by inserting the hand and scraper inside. A little consideration cannot fail to show you how immeasurably superior it would be to make even the cheapest form of skeleton rack, and separate cages, any one of which can be removed without disturbing any of its neighbours. You could make only the box portion and still utilise wire fronts for wiring. If you still adhere to your proposed plan you should strip all the paper off the walls, give them a couple of coats of whitewash made with slaked lime, and allow a little time for the heat of the lime to pass off before introducing the birds. The bare plastered walls would not be too cold, but if they are at all damp, that would certainly be most harmful. Only one on the spot could say whether they are damp or not. The size of compartments you name, giving a floor space of 15 inches by 2 ft. to 3 ft., would do very nicely for breeding pairs.

Those Mealworms Again.

No Name.—Your queries about this side-light of bird-keeping are at any rate not commonplace, and I must confess I cannot give a definite reply to all your queries, firstly, because I have not my notes on the subject just at hand; and secondly, because I am not quite sure that I have yet solved all the points raised, as although I made a series of experiments on each point some years ago I left them in an unfinished state for the time being, and have not since completed them. To take your queries seriatim: 1. In cleaning out your mealworm box at this season, by which I take it you mean you threw away the dirt and stale food from the bottom and replaced it with fresh food, you have probably thrown away a multitude of eggs. If you also destroyed the woollen rags, etc., with which it was probably partly filled you have most likely destroyed a very large proportion of next year's brood. This work should be done when necessary at the end of summer just before the full-grown worms begin to pupate. The eggs are deposited chiefly, I believe, among the folds of the material in the box, but a good many of them find their way to the bottom and get mixed up with the meal and dirt, and are very difficult for a novice to detect. You want someone to show you on the spot. 2. If you mean how to detect the eggs, see answer to No 1. 3. In confinement, where the conditions are wholly artificial, and forcing a certain number of beetles may breed at any season or all the year round, but the great bulk of eggs are deposited during the autumn months, I believe, in the first few weeks of the beetles' existence. 4. Cannot say definitely how long the eggs are after being laid before hatching takes place. The period is probably variable according to the prevailing temperature. I have had young worms appear in about a month after the beetles were isolated; just how long after the eggs were laid I cannot say. 5. Contrary to the usual opinion I am strongly inclined to think the worms take at least eighteen months to mature. I have had worms not more than half an inch long at twelve months old, and much larger at the same age with identical treatment, but have never yet had any which developed from egg to pupa in the space of twelve months. 6. Beetles live on the food supplied for the worms, and also eat portions of rag, paper, wood, or anything else in the box. In a state of nature they are said to feed also upon the rotten wood of oak and pine trees in which they live. I should certainly add a handful of this material occasionally.

Bare Around Eye.

Nodrub.—Is the part around the eye swollen at all? If not, I should suspect the bird had been tormented with grey lice or something, and rubbed its head on a dirty perch which has caused both the loss of feathers and the unhealthy appearance of the skin. Catch and examine it carefully, and if any grey lice are found give the bird a tepid bath with a few drops of essence of quassia or Jeyes' Fluid in it every second or third day, but see the bird does not get chilled after it. If no insects are found, give the tepid bath, but add sufficient crystals of permanganate of potash to make it a pink colour instead of the above. Also bathe the bare patch for a minute or two every other day with a lukewarm solution of boric acid—a small teaspoonful of acid to a teacupful of warm water. Dry it on a soft rag and lightly smear the bare skin with sulphur ointment, but do not let it get in the eye. Keep the cage and perches perfectly clean, supply gritty sand regularly, give a small spray of watercress three or four times a week, feed as frequently advised here, and for a week or so give a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of lemon-juice in the water every second day.

Too Late! Too Late!!

A Novice.—It is quite too late to think of beginning to colour-feed your birds this year. Surely you must have seen this much if you have read your CAGE BIRDS carefully for the past twelve months. It is only whilst the birds are shedding their feathers that colour food is capable of making any material change in the colour of the plumage generally, and to get the best results you must begin to give the colour food before the feathers begin to drop out in order to get the blood well charged with colour before the feathers commence to grow. Somewhere about the middle of August, or from then to the end of August or beginning of September is the proper time to commence, when it is necessary to continue, giving it regularly until the moult is quite finished. You will have to relinquish your desire to colour-feed this year, but next year keep your eye on our columns from the beginning of August onwards, and you will be sure to find all the information you want on the subject.

Many answers to Queries have had to be HELD OVER UNTIL NEXT WEEK owing to the early date this issue necessarily had to go to press.—EDITOR.

Why Doesn't He?

"P.W.J."—It is no very easy matter to tell why your bird has never resumed singing since last moult, by which I assume you mean that which would take place two or three months ago, without some information as to how the bird is fed and treated, and whether it appears quite healthy or otherwise. If it appears in good health, feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part rape seed as a staple diet, and give separately in addition half a teaspoonful of hemp twice a week, and three times a week for the next month half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry mixed in it. Every second day give a small spray of green food, but see that it is quite free from frost and wet. Keep it in a comfortable temperature, but not overheated, free from draughts or great fluctuations, and not near a burning lamp or gas jet. Give four drops of tincture of steel in the water three times a week for a fortnight. This should soon bring the bird on song again unless something is radically wrong with it. If it is not singing in, say, a month, write again, and give more particulars.

One in Distress.

M.M.—Am inclined to think the bird is an old one—perhaps a discarded tutor—and that it may have been accustomed to a higher temperature that the other one obtained at the same time. I doubt whether you will be able to do much towards making it strong and healthy again. Anyway, try the following, and let me know result in a month. Continue to keep the bird in box cage, and see it is quite free from draught, and is not near or over a burning lamp or gas jet in the evenings; select a place for it where the temperature is nice and comfortable and does not vary considerably day and night. As a staple give a mixture of two parts Canary to one of summer rape, and in addition a few (say, two dozen) grains of hemp every second day, and on the alternate days a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it. Give a small piece of cuttlefish in the wires instead of sugar. Do not give green-food as long as the looseness exists. As a substitute you may give a bit of banana two or three times a week. A mealworm each day would be very beneficial. Continue this regimen for a fortnight, after which you may reduce the supplies of hemp and sponge cake to twice each a week. In the drinking water give ten drops each of glycerine and syrup of buckthorn for two days, and afterwards twenty drops of whiskey, five of dandelion juice, and as much carbonate of bismuth every second day as will cover a sixpence, until the looseness is stopped; on the alternate days give twenty drops of chemical food, continuing this for a fortnight. When the looseness is stopped, in place of the first-named mixture give five drops of tincture of steel for a few alternating days. The bareness around the neck is very common with old birds. If the bird gets strong on the above treatment the feathers may be reproduced in the spring, but the probability of a permanent cure for this bareness is not very great.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Goldfinch Ailing.

W. J. Hales.—Your best chance lies in giving dandelion juice to clear out the system, and help re-establish the appetite, which you should also stimulate by offering as complete a change of diet as you can compass. Get two ounces from a chemist and for three days stir a small teaspoonful in a good two tablespoonfuls of drinking water (fresh daily, of course). This should move the bowels freely, and cause the bird to liven up. If you think it advisable to give another dose or two, do so, but only on alternate days (plain water in between). Give the syrup of hypophosphites afterwards, as a tonic, if you like, but do not permit it to cause the bird to get very costive again. To eat give cracked hemp and sunflower seed (only a little of the latter), with niger, maw and teazle in plenty.

A Muling Matter.

Lancastrian.—This question is one I have often answered in the past (by-the-way, I note it is marked "No. 2," but I do not see any No. 1). There is no set rule; hence the very different advice given you by your friends. It all depends on the birds as to whether it is better to run hen Canaries and muling Finches together during the winter. For instance, if the Linnet (or any other species of Finch, for that matter) is an untried one, then it is invariably the best policy to let him run with his future Canary wife for the greater part of the autumn and winter. The same thing applies with regard to the hen Canary; if never been paired with Britishers, by all means let her become used to them, by enjoying their society for part of the off-season. Once a Finch has been tried as a muler, however, and known to fill his eggs, then it is of no importance whether he is run along with the hen Canaries through the winter or whether he is not. When the proper time comes along, he will be quite ready to accept the wife you offer him, providing, of course, he is in prime breeding condition. The same applies to the tried muling hen Canary; when she has the breeding fever in her veins, any vigorous male Finch will suit her as a husband. Plenty of my own cock Finches never see the hen whose eggs they fill until the dear ladies are beginning to carry the nesting material into the nest-pan. Given fresh birds, whose behaviour is not known to me, then I let the would-be pair inspect one another through the wired centre-slide for some time before actually letting them mate. In this matter, you will see, one's knowledge of the birds must be one's guide.

In a Crystal Palace Aviary.

W. Carlton.—I am very dubious about your chances of success in breeding Mules, in a Crystal Palace pattern aviary, from 5 Norwich hens, 2 Goldfinches, and 3 Linnets. In the first place, this type of cage is not designed for breeding operations, but to have a small collection of pets kept, I suppose, for the pleasure of looking at them. In the second place, each couple, to get the best out of them, needs a separate compartment, and from which they cannot see the other couples. I don't suppose your aviary permits of this arrangement. You see, if all continue flying together, the various cock birds are certain to fight amongst themselves in the spring, and the hens will probably fight, too, and also interfere with each other's nests. You would be certain to meet with more disappointments than successes. Further, it would need to be a very large aviary to hold five breeding pairs. If you are keen on trying to breed in your place, then I should recommend you to reduce the stock to one cock Goldie, one cock Linnet, and four or five hen Canaries (according to space), keeping your eyes open for any that persistently fight and squabble, and (this is important) removing them from the cage; also looking out for any egg-smashers, or birds that pull the nests to ribbons.

Blackbirds and Goldies.

Deer.—1. I don't know who could have told you that Blackbirds do not sing after they have attained the age of three years. It must have been someone with no practical experience of the species. There is absolutely no truth in such a statement. Personally, I do not think a Blackbird is in its prime until it is three years of age; and cases are common where they have attained an age well into the teens of years and sung to the end. There is one recorded case of a Blackie living for close on twenty-one years, and singing more or less all that long time. 2. I think you certainly should keep both Goldies, Bullies, and Linnets in an equable temperature, and as cold indoors affects them nothing at all, then the bedroom might be a better place for them than the kitchen; certainly so if the latter is hot one part of the day and cold another. Note the treatment advised "W. J. Hales" this week.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Grey Parrot with Gouty Leg.

H.—In the first place cease giving anything soaked in tea or milk, or any table scraps. Diet as follows: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts, greenfood, cuttlefish, grit, and of course water. It is really impossible for me to say if it is a case of rheumatics or gout, though it will be necessary to act on that assumption; septic diseases of the legs and feet are by no means uncommon with Parrots, but if there is no swelling, or growths in any of the joints, this latter may be left out of consideration. Remove the grating from cage, and give the bird some soft bedding material, say a piece of soft cloth or rag in one corner of cage tray), using sawdust for the remaining portion, mixing a little grit with its seed mixture, while using the sawdust. Foment the leg with hot solution of camomile flowers, using it as hot as you can bear the hand in; also rub in Elliman's Embrocation after drying the leg on a piece of soft cloth or flannel. Keep the bird as quiet as possible and put sufficient Parrish's Chemical Food in the drinking water to make it the colour of pale port wine. If sores or small hard lumps develop, repeat query at once, with full particulars. Hope there will soon be an improvement.

To Treat Indian Rock Parrakeet.

J. E. T.—A dry seed mixture should form the staple diet of these birds, supplemented with such ripe fruit as they will eat; plain biscuits, nuts, greenfood, boiled potato (unseasoned), raw carrot, and dry crusts of stale household bread, cuttlefish, grit and water for drinking and bathing must be regularly supplied. Stock seed mixture; Canary and millet seeds, oats, wheat, dari, hemp and sunflower seeds, in equal parts. If the bird should definitely reject any of the above seeds, leave them out of the mixture, but do not pamper to its tastes to the extent of letting it have only hemp and sunflower seeds; you will find the above mixture both economical and wholesome. This species does not need any coddling, but must be protected, especially when the room is being aired or swept. Note warning in other replies re table slops, etc.

Amazon in Protracted Moult.

S. I. N. (1).—The first moult of these birds in this country is often very protracted, lasting more or less for months. Keep the bird, for this winter, in the room in which the temperature is most regular. Keep its bowels freely moving, by giving a dose of Dinneford's Magnesia (for directions see other replies), but not sufficiently often for the voidings to be watery. For the rest of the winter make its drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food, supply clear water, say, once a week. The seed mixture should be its staple food, supplemented with ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, boiled potato (unseasoned), or raw carrot, with regular supplies of cuttlefish, grit and greenfood. A little boiled maize (boiled long enough to make it soft enough for crushing between the fingers, but it must be given whole); it only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel should be scalded out for each occasion. (2) Keep the bird where it will hear plenty of conversation, also talk to it, and teach it by constant repetition of odd words and phrases—make a pet of it, and it will ultimately talk and mimic sounds and calls.

Birds for Conservatory Aviary.

"Ambitious."—It all depends as to whether you merely wish for a mixed lot of birds for effect only or for breeding; if the former, it would accommodate fully 50, while in the case of the latter you ought not to put in more than 10 pairs at the outside, and then the young, as soon as they are able to feed themselves, should be removed to another enclosure, or they interfere with future breeding results. You do not tell me what your present stock consists of, so how can I tell you what will agree with them? However, the following will agree with Gold and Bullfinches, Siskins, Redpolls, Linnets, and Twites:—Finches: Zebra (4/6), Ribbon (3/6 to 4/6), Diamond (12/-), Long-tailed Grass (10/-), Spice (3/6), and Rufous-tailed Grass (10/-); Waxbills: Golden-breasted (7/6), Grey (4/6), St. Helena (6/- to 7/6), and Orange-cheeked (4/6); Mannikins: Bronze (3/6), and Magpie (7/6), Grey (6/-) and Green Singing Finches (10/-), Grey (2/6) and White Java Sparrows (10/6). The prices quoted are per pair. Some of the above would breed if not too crowded, all are handsome, and none of them really difficult to keep; get my book, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1 post free from "C.B." office. You must put up at least double the number of nest boxes and cocoanut husks that you have pairs of birds, and keep the nesting receptacles as far apart as possible.

What Parrot?

A.W.—Your Parrot is the Roséate or Rose-breasted Cockatoo (Cacatua roseicapilla), a native of Australia, and a hardy species. They do not rank high as talkers in this country, though a similar reply last year called forth several records afterwards of really talented birds of this species, though I fear the majority are as I have described them above. However, in their native country they bear the reputation of being talented talkers, and are so in the hands of the colonists and solitary settlers. I consider no species of Parrot hopeless, even the Cockatiel and Budgerigar have been taught to speak. It is a matter of patience and perseverance of which this species I grant takes a lot, but if you keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, tame it thoroughly so as you can fondle and play with (they become very chummy, and are accomplished acrobats), it should ultimately respond and speak, at any rate, a few words, and mimic the calls and sounds that it frequently hears.

Showing an Amazon.

Kitty.—The essentials of success with so freely imported a species are tightness and sleekness of plumage, steadiness (that is, permitting itself to be examined without rushing about its cage). Its chances are regulated by what it has to compete against—such as rarer and more showy species. In the large London shows it is not often that an ordinary Amazon gets in the money. Your letter contained no address, so I cannot name a show, but any show having a class for Foreign birds would meet your case; you would have to enter it according to the classification in the schedule, which the secretary of the show in question would send you on application. You may have to send it a little journey by rail—unless your cage is abnormally large I should exhibit it in that, as small cages mean frayed tails, and soon reduce the bird to a dilapidated condition, thus robbing it of any chance of success it originally possessed.

PARK & LAKE AVICULTURE

Answered by FRANK FINN, B.A., F.Z.S., M.B.O.U., etc.

Keeping a Squirrel (W. S. Negus).—Squirrels are quite easy to keep if sensibly treated. Give them as large a cage as possible—at least two feet every way, with a sleeping box in one corner, and bough perches. A run out in the room, if the creature is tame, will be beneficial; or they can be kept outside in a large hutch or wired-in shed. Feed on sunflower seed and other large grain, nuts, fruit, roots and salad, and give often some animal food, such as mealworms, eggs, or young sparrows when obtainable, or, failing these, a bone to pick. Avoid soft food. My book, "Pets and How to Keep Them," (obtainable from CAGE BIRDS' office, at 5s. 3d., post free), deals with Squirrels, among other animals.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Conundrums (W. Troughton).—Evidently you have not read the rules, which clearly state that replies must be written on postcards only.

Maker of Cage (J. Sheard).—We do not know the maker, but will make enquiries and try to get name and address for you.

Cheap Seed Mill (G.B.).—Several of the large advertisers using our columns sell such a seed-crushing machine as you enquire about.

A Partly Completed Deal (J.W. Ward).—As the Chief Constable rules that the matter does not come under criminal business, your only remedy lies in suing for the balance of the money in the County Court. If you care to conform to Rule 8 (under "Questions and Answers") we shall be pleased to write the man on your behalf.

A Parrot (J. H. Laird).—You say you have had the bird twelve months, and we presume this period is considerably in excess of that provided for in the warranty. This being so, then it rests entirely with the vendor as to whether an exchange shall be made or not.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LIZARDS AT THE HORTIOULTURAL HALL SHOW.

SIR,—On perusing the catalogue of the Horticultural Hall Show I find Mr. Hampshire's Lizard "Silver King" claims to have won 1st Crystal Palace, 1906-7. This is not so, as the bird in question was 2nd, my bird getting 1st; in fact I won 1st in every class at the Palace in 1906 and 1907 in Lizards. If not corrected it may cause unpleasantness in the future. I have been waiting to see it corrected, or should have written before.

SOME SUGGESTIONS TO THE C.B.U

SIR,—The Coventry O.S., at their meeting on December 16th, decided to recommend the following for the consideration of the C.B.U. at the annual meeting :—

(1) That affiliated Cage Bird societies (those confined to cage birds only) have first choice of show dates.

(2) That show dates for mixed societies be not granted earlier than four months previous to the show.

(3) That affiliation, or license, be granted to mixed societies only on the condition that the mixed nature of the show be advertised.

(4) That no cages be staged higher than 6ft. from the floor.

(5) That 25 per cent. of the income of the C.B.U. be reserved to form a fund, from which grants may be made to exhibitors losing their birds by theft or negligence, to or from shows.

FORWARDING BIRDS ON FROM BROMSGROVE SHOW.

SIR,—On Monday, the 14th, I sent three birds to Bromsgrove Show, one of which was in a cancelled class, but I asked Mr. Jeffrey to kindly send them on to Ludlow, for the show on December 17th. On the morning of 17th I had a card to say they were at my station, which is Overton-on-Dee. I wrote to Mr. Jeffrey, asking why he had not sent them to Ludlow, but have had no answer from him. Ought he not to pay me my entries, 4s. 6d., as it was entirely through his neglect that they were not sent to Ludlow? When I heard they were at this station, of course it was much too late to send them to Ludlow then. I hardly think it is fair not getting my entries returned from Mr. Jeffrey, as I sent him all the labels which Mr. Oakes, the Ludlow secretary, had sent me. I felt very much annoyed, as I think I am certain to have got prizes at Ludlow.

H. COTTON.

THE RECENT INVERNESS SHOW.

SIR,—In your issue of December 5th there appears a letter over the signature, "A. Ross," criticising the recent show. As it is presumed in certain quarters that I am the author of the letter, I wish to say most emphatically that I know nothing of the said epistle, and that I have no idea whatever as to the authorship. My mode of procedure has always been to bring any grievance that I may have before the management of a show, and, failing redress at their hands, I would then consider the advisability or otherwise of airing my trouble in public. For my own part, I have always found the secretary of the Inverness Show genial and obliging, and willing to do everything in his power to meet the sometimes very unreasonable demands of exhibitors. This I can testify from personal experience. I thought the judge very painstaking and anxious to do justice to the exhibitors, although I admit he was rushed somewhat in awarding the specials, being pressed for time. If "A. Ross" is not ashamed to own what he has written, he should have the manliness to disclose his identity, now that he knows that his views are being fathered upon another, who denies paternity.

ALICK ROSS.

ABSENT EXHIBITS AT ST. ALBANS SHOW.

SIR,—I sent two birds—a Goldfinch and a Linnet—to St. Albans Show, held on Dec. 16th (both noted winners). I was much surprised on reading the report in CAGE BIRDS to see both my exhibits stated to be absent. As a matter of fact, my birds were despatched from Euston by the 5 p.m. train on Tuesday, 15th, so what happened to them I do not yet know, but shall leave no stone unturned to find out who is to blame for this mismanagement. My birds arrived home in a most exhausted state at 6 p.m. on Thursday, 17th. I should like to know if any other exhibitor at this show had similar treatment? Last year at this same place one of my best Goldfinches was returned almost dead, with not a grain of seed in its cage.

P. H. HARRIS.

SIR,—I regret to trouble you further in the above matter, but (with your kind assistance) am anxious to get to the true facts of the case. I enclose a letter received from the secretaries. You will note they say "that my exhibits were both penned and unpenned." That they were staged I do not doubt, but what time were they staged? You will note they do not say that the birds were staged in time for judging, and that they were judged. Without any further evidence, I make bold to say that they were not judged. Had they been they would not have been marked "absent" by your reporter, and, further, I am certain they would not have been passed unnoticed by any judge—in fact, have never been previous to this. The Goldfinch has taken nine 1sts and eight specials in the keenest competition, and was quite recently placed 1st at Southend by Mr. House, and again 1st at West Herts by Mr. Robson. The Linnet was Mr. R. J. Howe's old champion, winner of ten 1sts and numerous other prizes. So you will see from above that I make no idle boast when I say these birds would not have been passed unnoticed had they been in their respective classes at the time of judging.

P. H. HARRIS.

(COPY.)

SIR,—Yours of 18th inst. to hand, contents of which we note. We may say that we are very much surprised at the purport of your letter, as the cage-bird classes were put into careful hands, the stewards of which perfectly understood their work, and who last night assured us that your birds were both penned and unpenned by them. How the report got into CAGE BIRDS that your exhibits were absent it is impossible to say. We are, of course, very sorry for what has happened, and hope you will accept this explanation. The show being a record one, we hoped to have nothing to mar its complete success.

MOODY AND SPARROW, Hon. Secs.

[Our representative informs us that he reported the birds absent because they were not present when judging took place, and were, moreover, marked absent in the judge's book. —EDITOR.]

IS IT A RARE-FEATHERED GOLDFINCH?

SIR,—It may interest readers of CAGE BIRDS to know that a friend of mine has a rare-feathered Goldfinch. It is a beautiful bird, but nothing like the Goldfinch in markings. It is a cock, and sings well. It has a lovely head—not a speck of red feathering upon it, but pretty evenly marked with black and white. Its back is dark brown, breast light brown, belly white. It was caught a year ago with birdlime. I should like to know if any of the readers of CAGE BIRDS know of a similar instance of such a rare-feathered Goldfinch.

BRAMBLE-CHAFFINCH HYBRID AT THE WELSH NATIONAL SHOW.

SIR,—Regarding the "wrong classing" of Mr. Coffey's Hybrid at the Welsh National Show I would like to ask Mr. J. B. Evans the following question : If this bird is a Bramblefinch, cock or hen, rare feathered or not, why has it got the pure Chaffinch note, as it undoubtedly has?

A. P. HURST.

SIR,—Regarding the "wrong classing" of Mr. Coffey's Bramblefinch-Chaffinch Hybrid at the Welsh National Show by Mr. J. B. Evans, I see your reporter goes on to say : "We also noted that the decision was upheld by the other judge, and by well-known exhibitors present." This may all be quite true, but it is equally true that this bird has been awarded many prizes by competent judges as what it is represented to be, viz., a Hybrid, and it may interest both your reporter and fanciers generally to know that the "other judge" referred to above, Mr. J. Robson, himself awarded it 4th prize only a week before at the Horticultural Hall Show, and in a class which contained another Bramblefinch-Chaffinch Hybrid, which stood 2nd prize. The bird can't be a Hybrid one week, and not the next.

JUSTICE.

THRUSHES AT GATESHEAD SHOW

SIR,—Having entered some birds at Gateshead Show I was very much surprised on arrival at the show on the Saturday to find my Fieldfare wrong classed. Class 69 reads : "Blackbird, Thrush or Starling"; class 70 : "Any other species of Softbill larger than a Lark." This is the class that I had entered my Fieldfare in, and which I consider is the proper class. It seems that the judge thinks otherwise. I think the headings of both classes are very misleading, both to exhibitors and judge. Another item I would like to comment on is the way that the large British and foreign are staged. It seems if the Canaries are properly staged there is nothing done to make the British or foreign sections look anything attractive. Some of the British were scarcely 6 inches off the floor. I think some more consideration should be shown, especially to the large British, as some of them are far more trouble to keep right and in show form than any of the Canaries. I would have liked to have seen "King of Kings," "General Buller," and "Duchess" placed in the same position as some of the Thrushes and Blackbirds were at Gateshead. Hoping secretaries may take a note of above complaint.

NORWICH PLAINHEADS AT ST. HELEN'S SHOW.

SIR,—At St. Helens Show your reporter seems in error. He describes my wing-marked hen as a Clear, and in the Unflighted Yellows, where I was second and third, all he says is, second, good condition (this is the Dulwich winner, and, in my opinion, one of the best out), and of the third, "damaged tail." This bird's tail is perfect, and it is standing third to-day at West Bromwich in a class of 18. I don't think it hardly does the bird credit. The show seems to have been badly managed (I received no labels to tie on birds), and no doubt it was due to this that the reporter was in error. I notice he speaks of difficulty in locating the winners.

ANOTHER BIRD GONE ASTRAY FROM A SHOW.

SIR,—Having entered two Norwich buff cocks at Carmarthen Show, which was held on Dec. 15th, one took 1st and special, the other he. On the arrival home of my case on the 16th, I found I had one bird and two cages; the he bird was missing, card, label, and all else complete. The secretary, Mr. Jack Francis, assures me that both birds were in their cages when packed for the return journey, so I can only assume it has gone the way of Mr. Tedstone's birds. I think it was in about the same district that he lost his. It will mean a great loss to me, as it was about the best stock bird I had, and as I am only a novice (this being my first year to exhibit Norwich), it is rather disheartening and makes one a little shakey about showing again. I only hope the person who has him (if ever caught) will get his just deserts.

A. W. HILL.

[The attention of the railway company should always be drawn to these cases of (presumably) theft in transit, and a claim be lodged with them for the full value of the missing bird or birds. On good proof of delivery into the railway's hands, a claim against the company ought to succeed. Enquiries ought certainly to be made, as these "missing" birds are getting far too common.—EDITOR.]

HYBRIDS AT THE HORTICULTURAL HALL SHOW.

SIR,—Messrs. Tyson and Mugford are perfectly right in saying that it is a "pure invention" for anyone to say the Committee of Management wrong-classed the hybrid at the above show. If Mr. Weston chooses to make definite statements by deduction, the onus of such must rest on him, and, candidly, I was somewhat surprised to see him endeavouring to saddle me with the responsibility by an effort to distort some friendly colloquy. Had I thought he was interrogating me to serve his own purpose I should have been more guarded. But even according to his own version, not a single word passed about Committee. At most he can only contend that he thought the word we referred to Committee, and on this assumption he made a definite statement. I should like to ask Mr. Weston if the editorial we of necessity refers to a committee, or even the staff? I do not think so. It is not my purpose to attempt to justify in the Fancy Press the language I used. It is quite sufficient to say that the judge wrong-classed the bird, and, as Mr. Weston admitted to me, the bird was not eligible to compete in the class it was shown in, it is obvious he cannot complain on the score of injustice, and if not, then why is he trying to make capital out of the incident, seeing the owner appears satisfied? Echo answers, why?

R. L. CRISP.

(Beyond saying that Mr. Weston had heard nothing of the "incident" until the matter was first broached to him by Mr. Crisp, we have nothing to add to our reply of last week. The matter is now closed.—EDITOR.)

HYBRIDS AT ORMSKIRK SHOW.

SIR,—Mr. Tiffen says that Mr. Houlton acted on instructions from the committee when he wrong classed the Hybrid at Ormskirk. I quite expected it was so; but even Mr. H. had no right (even with the committee's instructions), to wrong class a Greenie-Bullie in a class for "any variety mule," which, as Mr. H., or any other intelligent fancier knows, is identical with a class headed "any variety Hybrid." In CAGE BIRDS' report the class reads "any variety Canary Mule." If it had read like that in the schedule, I shouldn't have entered my bird. But it didn't; it simply read, "any variety Mule." In conversation with the Chairman during the show, I elicited the fact that, when drawing up the schedule, he and the Secretary were trying to explain to the members that Mules and Hybrids were one and the same, and that the Secretary wanted to head the class "Any Variety Canary Mule." But they would have none of it. Everyone knew, they said, that a Mule had for one of its parents a Canary. Did anyone ever hear of such stupidity? I am astonished at the fact that two intelligent fanciers like the Chairman and Secretary should be led and dictated to by a few fanciers who are years behind the times. Why don't fanciers read? They would then see that all crosses between any two varieties of birds are Hybrids and not Mules (vide Mr. Moulton's article in "Cage Birds Annual" for 1908; also the schedule of the Welsh National Show compiled by intelligent fanciers). Mr. Tiffen says that I sent word that if there were no other Hybrids, I should'n't exhibit. That is nothing but a fabrication. What I did say was, that I didn't like showing against myself; I liked a bit of competition. The reason I didn't enter any in the Hybrid class at the first-feather show was because I hadn't any to show. I am very pleased that Mr. Tiffen has clearly proved that no blame attached to Mr. Houlton; I never thought for a moment that Mr. H. had oden it on its own initiative.

THE LATEST SPRING-NET TRAP.

SIR,—I should be glad if Mr. H. J. Hawes would kindly supply me with information on how to make the latest spring net trap (illustrated last week), as I should very much like to make my own traps, and hope to be successful with them.

LLANELLY SHOW AND A MISSING BIRD.

SIR,—With reference to the letters in CAGE BIRDS lately, re Llanelly Show and a missing bird, I should like to throw a little ligh on the subject. I, as a constable, was on duty at the show and was present at the unpacking. I was on the spot when Mr. Tedstone's case was unpacked, and noticed one cage empty (without any bird at all in it). The show being carried out in a satisfactory manner by the committee, I wish them every success in the future.

T. G. RICE.

SIR,—I regret very much to see my name mentioned, as if there is anything I detest it is raking up an old matter after it has been once settled. So for the information of Mr. Tedstone, I beg to say that although regretting the severe loss of my valuable bird, the chairman, committee, and secretary did all in their power to find its whereabouts, and having failed to find same they treated me in an honourable way by forwarding me a cheque to compensate me for my loss, although not to the value of the bird. But under the conditions, with the honourable treatment of that worthy chairman, Mr. D. R. Jones, the secretary and committee, I was fully satisfied. I trust this will end the matter re myself. Of course I have not forgotten the dastardly act and still hope the cur or curs will be brought to justice and made suffer for all.

BIRDS ARRIVING TOO LATE FOR JUDGING.

SIR,—In reading your issue of CAGE BIRDS for Dec. 19th I noticed in your report of the Welsh National Show that Mr. R. J. Howe's exhibits in the British bird section were late in arriving for judging. By the report it seems that they would have been well amongst the money prizes. It seems that the railway company are to blame, as the birds were sent off early the day previous to the show. But where do Mr. Howe's expenses come in for entry money and carriage? If they had been judged they would, according to report, have cleared the expenses all right. I was wondering if the railway people just think that the fanciers send their birds out for exhibition and never mind anything about the expense. Mr. Howe I give my sympathy, and wish him better luck in the future. Was glad to hear that his birds arrived in plenty of time for judging at Broxburn Show last Saturday after a longer journey than to the Welsh National, and they were looking none the worse for it. I notice another railway affair with Mr. J. A. Simpson; they are fairly going it.

A CONSTANT READER.

(If Mr. Howe can prove unreasonable delay on the part of the railway company, he has a good claim against them for the return of all carriage paid, and also out-of-pocket expenses.—EDITOR.)

WEST BROMWICH.

This show was held on Dec. 16th, and proved a great success, the entries coming up well, totalling nearly 400, this number being an increase of about 140 over last year's. The quality was on a par with the entry. The show was held in the large room of the Dartmouth Hotel, whose holding capacity was taxed to the utmost. There was plenty of light, and the exhibits were well staged, making a grand display. All had the very best of attention from a good lot of genuine fanciers. As soon as each class was judged the cards were put up, there being "no waiting." Special for best bird in show went to Messrs. Colton and Dawn's Red-poll Bullfinch Hybrid, and the award seemed to meet with approbation. Mr. T. Duffield, the Hon. Sec., got through his duties well, in a quiet and unassuming manner, and was the embodiment of courtesy and tact. He was well backed up by a good working committee, of whom Mr. G. Key is the chairman. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

KILSYTH.

Kilsyth and District Fanciers' Association held their annual open show, on December 19th, in the Drill Hall, Kilsyth. Office bearers: Pres., Mr. Alexander Hardie; Vice-Pres., Mr. James Paterson; treasurer, Mr. William Irvine; hon. secretary, Mr. Andrew D. Duncan; executive, Messrs. D. McLean, J. Barrie, A. Methven, T. McAulay, W. McGreachen, J. Nash, W. Inglis, A. London, W. Russell, R. Reid, W. Morton. The show was a record in point of entries, there being a total entry of 920, said to be the largest one-day show in Scotland. The hon. secretary, Mr. Duncan, is most genial and courteous, and was assisted by an executive of true fanciers. The judges got through their task in good time, and from 2 p.m. till the close of the show there was a constant stream of visitors. Borders were an excellent turn out, many noted winners of this season being staged. Norwich came a close second. British and Foreign were also a creditable lot. The Scottish Crest Club's silver challenge cup, value £15 15s., has now reached the semi-final stage. Cup for most points in show was won by Mr. Lackworth. The "Hardie" cup for most points in any one class was won by Secretary Duncan, who also carried off the cup for best Brit. or For. (Members'). The B.F.C.C. medal was won by Mr. W. Irvine for best young Border. "Hyde's" special was won by Mr. George Shillinglaw, with a crested cock. The Scottish British Bird and Mule Club medals were to-day withheld through lack of entries. Mr. Dewar, who judged, had rather a severe task to accomplish, but carried it through with success, and his awards seemed to meet with general approval.

LUDLOW.

The first show of the Ludlow C.B.S. was held on Dec. 17th. The venue was the Assembly Room and the Society are fortunate in being able to secure such a good room, as it is admirably adapted for a cage bird show, being roomy, well lighted, and quite free from any draught. Quality was well represented, and we certainly think, with a modification in the wording of the rules, the Society another year may confidently look for a substantial increase in the entry. The exhibits were nicely staged in single tiers, and had the very best of attention from a capable and enthusiastic committee. Mr. P. Oakes made his initial bow as a secretary, and he got through his duties in first-class style, being most courteous and obliging to all. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards and appeared to give every satisfaction.

WIDNES.

A grand total of nearly 500 entries came forward at the Widnes and District C.S. members' show, held Dec. 18th and 19th. Four money prizes, and a 2/- special for each open class for a 1/6 entry fee did the trick to secure such a success. With such well known names as W. Ridge, Esq. (vice-president), Messrs. R. Barker (chairman), J. W. Ireland (vice-chairman), R. Jenkins (treasurer), and an excellent committee as Messrs. Mather, Jacks, Bloor, Abbott, Guy, Humpson, Fenney, A. Lea, Boot, Hayes, Hurtsfield, Hague, Davies, Houghton, Asherott, Wright, Young, Beech, Murray, Barnes, Rone, Lightfoot, Vose, R. Lea, Groome, Jones, and with the indefatigable Mr. Stephen Andrews as secretary, it is not surprising to find popular support and a successful show. The Congregational School looked very full with two and three heights of cages staged, and a larger room will be wanted in future if the entries keep increasing as they have done recently. The Border and Green Clubs' patronages were secured. The management was of the very best. Prize labels and all other matters were promptly fixed up. Catalogues were out early in the evening. Mr. Andrews has not been in good health for some months, but we were glad to see his willing son ably assisting him to carry out the work. The Norwich were very fine, both in the open and members' sections, and the Yorkshires were also grand. The Greens came up splendidly and many cracks once more did the trick, but just here and there we noticed a few showing signs of their hard show work recently. Borders were represented with here and there a few really pretty ones, but they did not come up quite so numerously as we have seen them. Only two British and Foreign classes open were provided, but these contained some very smart specimens. The novice Yorks. and Nor. classes contained some beauties. The members' classes all through were very strong, and quite a host of these birds have qualities good enough for any competition. Altogether, the show was one of the best seen in Widnes district for a long time. Messrs. A. Wellings and Chas. Houlton judged, and did well on the whole. Mr. Wellings took all open Canary classes. Mr. Houlton took the open British, the Foreign, and all members' classes

FERRYHILL.

The Ferryhill C.B.S. held their first show on December 19th in the Council Schools, Deanbank, a suitable building for the purpose, being well lighted, etc., the only drawback being its distance from the station. Entries came up well (315 in 24 open classes), the quality of the exhibits being also well to the fore. In Norwich capital teams were staged by Messrs. Cowling, Hill and Stewart, H. Wilson, and W. Dalgetty, Yorkshires secured a big entry, some grand birds being sent by F. Stevens, J. Wilcock, L. Dykes, and G. W Cuthbertson. The winning crest of Mr. Graham's is a gem, and the Crest-bred of Taylor and Smart's follows it very closely. British birds made a grand display, many noted winners having to take a back seat. The secretary, Mr. Richard Binks, had everything well in hand, and makes a capital official; he was ably assisted by a hard-working and courteous committee. Mr. Stanger placed the awards.

BROXBURN.

The Broxburn and Dist. C.B.S. held their second annual exhibition and competition in the Public Hall on Dec. 19. This Society is composed of some real good fanciers, who are making energetic efforts to popularise this annual exhibition, and whose labours, it is apparent, are not in vain. The president, Mr. Sharp, the vice president, Mr. Hutchison, and the treasurer, Mr. Workman, are true and staunch workers, and in Mr. Walter Neilson, the secretary, the club have chosen a general who has the interests of the Society at heart. The committeemen, Messrs. Wotherspoon, McLearn, Coulter, Murray, Tully, Gray, and T. H. and A. Aitken, working in unison with the foregoing office-bearers, all helped to make the show the success it undoubtedly was. The stewards were skilfully selected, and each did his duty. The hall is ideally lighted, and the exhibits were so staged that all visitors had no difficulty in examining each bird. Mr. H. Moreland (Falkirk) made the awards in the Norwich section, Mr. P. McKenzie (Kelso) those in the Border Fancy section, while Messrs. P. McQuiston (Ayr) and J. Muson (Peebles) jointly adjudicated in the Mules, British, and Foreign bird sections; their awards gave general satisfaction.

ILFORD.

On December 19th was held in the Methodist Schools the annual show of the Ilford F. and F.S. We were pleased to notice a revival of interest in the cage bird section, the entries being larger and the quality of a higher standard. Mr. Cooper staged a fine team, and succeeded in securing both the Canary specials with a capital buff cinnamon and a yellow Norwich, and also the special for best British. The birds were nicely staged and well looked after by the committee, whilst Messrs. Webb and Drew made excellent secretaries. Mr. C. A. House judged.

The Novices Notebook.

This page will consist of topical hints, addressed chiefly to beginners, concerning every branch of the hobby of bird-keeping, and the notes will be contributed from time to time by various leading experts.

After the treatment usto detailed, in a very few weeks, they will bo as steady—always excepting the few incorrigibles—as birds which have been caged several seasons. At this time they may be transferred to larger cages, but not yet to very large flights. A cago about twice the size of the first one will be ample, and then another change a few weeks later into a flight if they are wanted to occupy such a large cage. These several changes may appear rather useless and unnecessary, but they really serve a most useful purpose, for the reason that an apparently steady bird in a very small cage, will, if placed at once in a large flight, become just as frantically wild as one newly taken from his native haunts, and requiro quite as much steadying over again; whereas the gradual change to larger quarters keeps them practically steady and familiar under all conditions. It must thus be quite apparent that these so-called "prisons" of cages can be used to good account to prevent actual cruelty and damage to the inmates.

The Weaning Diet.

Next to getting the birds to take kindly to the circumscribed limits of a cage, the most difficult part of the business of caging lies in getting them on to a proper diet, which can easily be provided all the year round, and is at the same time wholesome and sustaining for the species of bird taken in hand.

In the hands of the novice there is very often a high rate of mortality during this stage, more especially in the case of insect-eating birds. In the early autumn, and again late in the spring, when the birds have begun to mate, the mortality is frequently tremendous; in the former case owing to a large proportion of the birds being very young and not able to withstand the drastic change from natural food to an artificial diet at a time when the moult is also beginning to put an extra strain upon them, and many of the adult birds being deep in moult; in the latter case, when the birds are mated, and either about commencing nesting, or having already commenced, they stubbornly refuse to submit to cage life, and depart for the hereafter by the speedy and certain road of voluntary starvation, plus dashing themselves to pieces by the way.

Of the few simple general rules which the novice in the art of meating-off will find of service to him, that of utilising what chief article of dict is in season at the moment, is one of the most valuable, especially when the birds are taken charge of direct from the catcher as soon as they are caught. Thus with Goldfinches. As soon as the crop of wild thistle seed is ripe they will be practically certain to be feeding almost exclusively upon this seed in all places where it is fairly common and the birds caught at this time should havo a liberal supply of thistle heads, broken in halves. The supply should be kept up, until the birds are eating with freedom tho other seeds provided.

Similarly, if they aro known to be feeding when caught on a crop of teazle, supply them with a good proportion of this seed mixture, and also, if they are obtainable, a few teazle heads. In short, for the first week or two pamper their appetites with any irresistibly tempting seed until the usual seed mixture is visited and turned over quite as a matter of course. When this occurs any undesirable seed may be slowly and gradually eliminated.

The same remarks, only substituting other favourite seeds for other species, will apply equally to all seed eating, or partly seed-eating birds.

Practically all the most tempting foods for the seed-eaters are just those which are most often tabooed. Hemp, for example, though far from being suitable for regular use for all seed-eaters, is, without doubt, one of the most generally acceptable to seed-eating birds, and is also greatly liked by many softbills.

If one has any scruples about using it freely for seeding off birds, it should be only necessary to point out that during this interval it is not only advisable, but frequently essential, to modify general rules, and stretch points to a considerable extent by feeding temporarily almost entirely upon seeds which at ordinary times would scarcely be tolerated except as the exceptional dainty. For practically all the Finch tribe it is a valuable ally to get obstinate sulkers on to a seed diet, after which it may be gradually withdrawn from all those to which it is not advisable to give it as a regular food.

But the Finch of Finches, as it might be called, on account of its popularity—the Goldfinch—will flourish all the better at all times if it has a liberal proportion of hemp in its staple diet.

Its value as a regular article of diet is a much disputed point in these days of modern bird-keeping, but whatever may be said about its being an undesirable item for some other species there cannot be the least doubt of its value for forming a regular portion of the Goldie's diet.

Yet, for all this encomium, it cannot be well advised for the novice to stretch points far in the direction of supplying hemp, either whole or crushed, to insectivorous birds. Many of these birds are very fond of it, but it is extremely doubtful whether its use can really prove of any benefit to a purely insect-eating bird which has been recently taken from its native wilds, and a correct diet; it is probably rendered more than usually susceptible to indisposition by the great change in its conditions. On the contrary, it would be far more likely to materially increase the difficulty of getting the bird on to a cage diet.

Some Notable Exceptions.

But let not these restrictions be misunderstood. In the case of some of those species which, for conveniences' sake, we call mixed feeders, and others which are generally, but erroneously, looked upon as purely insectivorous, hemp may be given much more liberally. The Larks, common species of Tits, and practically all the native Buntings, are examples.

The two first-named species are not nearly so exclusively insectivorous in a wild state as is often supposed. The Larks especially are probably mainly grain and vegetable feeders during a great part of the winter and early spring, and the same remark will apply equally to the commoner forms of Tits, which even during the autumn, when insect food is not exceptionally scarce, are confirmed robbers of the poultry yard, and the seed heads of the florist's sunflowers.

It is truly astonishing how dexterously a Tit will dig out the white floury portion of a grain of maize by repeatedly hammering with its beak. This is the only portion they care for, and the bulk of the grain they will reject, and return again and again to the yard for grains which they invariably carry off to some selected spot to deal with. Sunflower seed is similarly split open by this clever hammering. In a cage they deal with hemp and similarly hard seeds in the same manner, and are frequently helped over a trying interval before they get on to their proper diet by having a little seed thrown in from time to time.

The Yorkshire Canary: Its Faults and Their Remedies.

By SAMUEL DEAN.

A paper read during the past season to the members and friends of the Manchester and Northern Counties Society.

Concerning the Legs and Tail.

Next in our standard comes: "Legs, long, without being stilty; thighs well clothed." A good leggy bird is always attractive, and even when stilty, is one of the most useful a fancier can have, there being always plenty of birds (otherwise good) that are deficient in this desirable quality; a good leggy bird, too, is called for pretty often.

"Thighs well clothed." Bare feathered thighs are generally those of the birds of the stilty persuasion; these are caused by the showing of too much thigh, the bird stretching itself to the full extent of its legs.

"Tail, long, straight, and closely folded." A good pipe tail puts a finish on to a bird, seems to add somewhat to its length, and certainly adds to the slim appearance of the bird. A wide tail is an eyesore, and requires much patience in breeding out. Particular note must be taken in this connection to see whether the tail is wide at the root or simply "fished out" or frayed at the ends. If the latter is the case, the dipping of the ends in boiling water will soon rectify it. But when the tail is wide at the root it is the breed that is to blame, the "Lancashire" being again put down as the offending party.

Hinge tails and circle tails are queer customers to deal with. The hinge tail is sometimes the result of an accident, such as the falling of a box with a bird inside it; or perhaps a show cage gets knocked over. If either of these is the case, it really cannot be classed as a fault. But if the "hinge" is a natural defect, it requires that the bird shall have a very straight, stiff-tailed bird for a mate. The circle tail, too, must be provided for in the same way.

The Eternal "Length Question."

The next item is an important one, and one that has called for a lot of discussion during the last few months; to wit, size. The standard reads: "Length, 6¾in., with corresponding symmetrical proportions," for which are allowed 10 points. The length here is quite ample enough, one would think, and a fancier has a great task before him to breed one possessing all the true Yorkshire properties.

I, for one, always try to get them as long as possible, my aim being to produce them over standard length—7in. if I can do it—as these are very useful stock birds, and command as large a figure as show birds; and if it is good in all other essential ponts, I don't thnk any judge would throw such out as being over-length.

As far as the shows that I have attended are concerned, very little cause for complaint could be found, few birds having been shown over the standard limit of 6¾in. The chief cry has been from the south, where the fanciers appear to have just come to the stage that was reached in Yorkshire some eight or ten years ago., viz., the craze for length. What tickled the minds of the Yorkshiremen was the original statement contained in the opening letter, "anywhere between 7 and 8ins." Many people run away with the idea that all the breeders in my district use monsters of stock birds; but I can assure you that it is not so. Type and quality are the main considerations of the breeder. The fancier who goes in for size is usually a long way behind in the run for prizes.

The latter part of the reading of the standard—"with corresponding symmetrical proportions"—is embodied in my previous remarks, and here it may be wise to mention that in breeding Yorkshires we are trying to get into one certain place between three other breeds the tendency to deviate from that certain place, making such very interesting, and the only way is to get to know how your birds are bred, in order to assist in arriving at a definite conclusion as to how they should be paired.

A Yorkie's Correct Position.

"Position," for which 20 points are allowed, comes next in the standard, and reads: "Attitude erect, with fearless carriage; head, neck, back, and tail in a straight line." A Yorkie without position is of no use on the show bench today; in fact, in my opinion, position is one of the principal points of a Yorkshire, and, as is well known, this desirable quality is obtained by the introduction of "breed" (that is to say, Belgian blood), the smallest quantity of which gives that nervy action and stylishness to a Yorkshire bird, that are so much admired. And generally birds of this description have fearless carriage.

The use of too much breed, however, tends to make a bird of incorrect type, good type being required by the latter part of the standard, viz., "head, neck, back, and tail in a straight line."

The head and neck in this case are carried in a slightly forward position. Such birds are exceedingly useful in the breeding room, and great care should be taken of them; mates are very plentiful for this class of bird.

Characteristics Not Easily Obtained.

Another very essential feature, and one for which 20 points are allowed, is feather; close, short and tight compact body feather, and close carriage of wings and tail. This, in conjunction with size, is very hard to obtain. The generality of birds with any pretension to being called long ones are apt to be a trifle (some more than a trifle) long also in feather, loose about the thighs, frilly at the breast, and are slovenly in wing carriage.

The tight, compact-feathered bird is usually on the small size. The happy medium again is what we require—the quality and compactness of the small one on to the length of the others. Many fanciers ask one's opinion of a certain bird for breeding purposes; but pairs are what are required, a grand breed bird of either sex being simply wasted if not put up with a good mate. The faults of one are in this case counteracted in the other.

Feather of the proper quality is hard to fix in a strain, and the birds I have found most useful in this direction are the Greens and the Cinnamons. How many fanciers can be found who have tried crossing the two mentioned into their strain, and have not bred something to excel in quality? Some of the best feathered birds I have ever seen have been heavily variegated Cinnamons and Greens. Cross one of them with a clear Yorkshire, and should you be fortunate enough to breed a clear or a lightly-ticked bird, what marvellous marble-like feathers it has; it is one of the best birds to be had in breeding for quality.

Frilliness at the breast is difficult to breed out, that is, without going to the other extreme and getting the birds barrel-chested. Stick to the best, and pair up the finest you can get hold of. It is useless pairing up birds that do not give one complete satisfaction. Some fanciers will say, "I should pair these two, but if I do the others will be let down." My advice is, pair up the two best suited together. Remember, one good winner is worth a lot of bad ones, and by pairing up the best you have a greater chance another season of being able to put up more pairs likely to produce a winner or two.

Whilst dealing with the question of feather, I must say a few words upon neck twist; that is, birds which have a tendency to frill, but having the frill too high up to justify their being designated by that name; therefore, I call it a twist. It occurs just under the beak and the feathers stand out at each side of the neck, as though it had been washed and the soap not properly removed. This fault I have not seen very many times, but when it does occur one never knows where it is going to crop up again.

*Two Nests in a Water-can.

While I was walking in a friend's garden once (they had just moved into the house) we found an old water-can. In it was a lot of hay. At one end was a nest with two Robin's eggs in it. At the other end was another nest with two more eggs in it of the same kind. This latter nest had been deserted.—Sent by J. F. R. Eales White (age 12), 47, Lancaster Park, Richmond, Surrey.

*Joe the Parrot.

Our neighbour has a Parrot whose name is Joe, and they hang him in an out-house. When they hang him outside he will open his cage-door and walk out. Then he will whistle a dancing tune and will say to any horse and cart, "hold back." When his master fetches the wheelbarrow he will say, "Gie up, way boxer," and when he sees the cat, "A Tom, mew—mew." When he is tired of being out, he will walk up to his door and peck with his bill, and call "Mrs." It is a nice Grey Parrot, and sometimes says to his master, "Can't bear washing days."—Sent by Tom Cock (age 12), Bearwood, Pembridge, Herefordshire.

Saved by the Cat.

A fortnight ago father bought a good pair of Crest Canaries which cost him £10. A few days after, by some means, he must have left the cage-door open, for after he had fed them the Crest hen got out. Some time after our cat which is very old, rushed into the kitchen and dashed upon the table with the bird in his mouth and a strange cat after him like a mad thing. Our old cat, who is a great pet of father's, jumped clean on his shoulder with the bird. We all thought the bird dead, and before we could speak the strange cat escaped out of the window, and what was father's surprise upon taking the bird away to find it was in no way hurt beyond having lost a few feathers. It was frightened, but it soon recovered. We all believe our cat saved the bird's life.—Sent by Montague Rice Davey (age 11), 1, Henry Street, Plymouth.

IN THE COURTS.

Plover Catching in the Fens.

At Spalding recently a further prosecution was brought b the Society for the Prevention of Cruelt to Animals for alleged cruelty to decoy birds used for Plover catching. John Pack, Plover catcher, Spalding, was summoned for cruelty to two birds, the allegation being that they were injured by the string by which they were secured. After a hearing lasting several hours, the Bench convicted. The Chairman said the magistrates did not wish to stop an industry which was an important one, and a means of livelihood to many, but in this case they considered there was cruelty, and fined defendant 5s. and costs. In a previous prosecution at Bourne, the justices dismissed the case. The S.P.C.A. have given notice of appeal against the decision of the Bourne magistrates. The case is one affecting a considerable number of persons in the Fens engaged in catching wild birds.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

Where Wild Birds Roost.

On the rising ground up near the Downs, there is an old road leading from that breezy spot, down into the valley by the oaks. On the left are several acres of waste, uncultivated ground, where in the summer months the Finches, large softbills, and Warblers from over the sea, nest and rear brood after brood of young without much outside interference. This waste patch is covered with fairly thick underwood, and in some places the larger trees grow thickly. During the winter, this particular spot is the roosting site of a horde of birds of all species, although farther in the valley there are larger and more sheltered woodlands; yet for some unexplainable reason this, in the minds of the feathered creatures of the district, is the sleeping place, par excellence, and if we should happen to be north, south, east, or west of this little stretch of waste land at an hour or so before sundown, we are sure to see companies of birds making their way to this particular spot. It is interesting to note the business-like manner in which the birds fly when going home to roost. There is a swiftness and directness of flight, so different to the usual drooping, aimless style when they meander round after food or anything which may turn up. These little companies come trooping in one after the other, sometimes only a dozen or two together, and occasionally a big flock of several hundreds. These are mostly Sparrows, the smaller flocks being Linuets and Greenbirds. Later, that is nearer sundown, eight or ten Missel Thrushes make their presence felt by the chattering, jarring noise they make. No matter where they settle, they want all the tree to themselves, and so commences an endless quarrelling and chasing, which only ends as darkness hides the combatants from each other.

The Amatory Bullfinch.

For constancy among birds, the Bullfinch has always been looked upon as taking the first position. It is very seldom we meet with more than two at a time, and then we notice these are a pair. All through the winter the same pair keep together, and no douht when once mated theirs is a lifelong partnership.

Crossbill in the South.

A Crossbill has been seen within a dozen miles of the Metropolis, and it is not an infrequent visitor during the winter south of the Thames. Crossbills have been recorded several times in the neighhourhood of Brighton, busy among the fircones by the side of the road outside the town, and instances are not wanting of the nesting of this species in the home counties.

A Seldom Seen Resident.

The tiny Tree Creeper is one of our resident birds, but on account of its smallness and its quiet colouring (which harmonises so well with its natural surroundings), is not often met with. As its name implies, it creeps among the branches and trunks of trees, quickly moving its position, hunting for tiny insects and spiders. The Creeper has a peculiar method of ascending a tree trunk; commencing at the bottom he goes up by a sidling spiral action, and then flying from the branches to the foot of the next, he repeats the performance. It is said that a blow with a heavy stick on the branch upon which the bird is produces temporary paralysis, and by such means it becomes an easy captive.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

HAVE YOU NOTICED

in my advertisements of the Leipzig Rollers I do not merely say they are as good as can be obtained elsewhere, but I distinctly say they are better? And to prove this to your own satisfaction I ask you to have one from me and one from elsewhere at any higher price. Test them side by side for a week, and keep the one which suits you best. I shall be perfectly satisfied with the result. I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in the Kingdom, and at the present moment have over one thousand Roller cocks in stock, all in full song day and gaslight, with loug hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, hollow bell rolls, harp, gong, and flute notes, and jug-jug of Nightingale, etc., and are warranted entirely free from any Titlark or other harsh notes; price 6/6 and 7/6 each. Special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass rolls and hollow bell rolls, and are a cascade of ever-flowing melody, 10/- and 12/6 each. I also have a limited number of pure Seifert contest masters. These are gems of the purest water, and guaranteed fit to win contests; price 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each. Ordinary loud, free-singing Hartz cocks, in full, vigorous song, 4/6 each, seven 28/-. Hartz hens, 2/6 couple. These Hartz cocks are exactly the same as advertised by unscrupulous dealers as Hartz Mountain Rollers at fancy prices. All Rollers sold by me are imported direct from Leipzig, and all stamped on wing "Hans Weller Leipzig." I am the only dealer who imports this strain, and no other dealer can get one of these birds unless he purchases from me. The following few letters, which are guaranteed genuine and unsolicited, say more for my Rollers than I could ever say myself:—"28, Cottonst., Westleigh, Leigh, December 2nd.—Sir,—Bandmaster arrived in pink of condition. He was singing ten minutes after unpacking, and gives every satisfaction. I am sure no better bird could be purchased for the money (12/6).—Yours, G. Ellison." "Heap Wellington, Salop, December 4th.—Sir—Received two Canaries, and am very highly pleased with them, and must thank you for straight forward dealing.—Yours, J. Williams." "2, Lucous-st., Blaenllechau, December 4th,—Sir,—Roller arrived safe, and was singing on the table when postcard came. I am quite satisfied, and shall want more.—Yours, J. Shirley." "71, Castle-st., Sanguhar, December 5th.—Sir,—Received two Canaries safe, and am highly pleased with them. Please send four more.—Yours, J. Shirley." "71, Castle-st., Languhar, December 8th.—Sir,—Pair Rollers arrived safe. I am perfectly satisfied with them.—Yours, W. Broadfoot." "Hill-st., Elworth, near Sandbach, December 7th.—Sir,—Please send following. I hope the Roller will be as good as the one I had from you about four years ago, as he is still singing as well as ever.—Yurs, W. Lee." "57, High-st., Glyn-Neath, December 9.—Sir,—Received Hartz cock safe, and am highly pleased with it; in fact, he is a gem, and started singing as soon as unpacked. Please send another.—Yours, D. Thomas." "15, Hill Row, Pentwyn, Fochriw, December 10th.—Sir,—Roller safely to hand on Wednesday. It started singing splendidly, and at time of writing is in splendid form. You may pick up your money, as I am perfectly satisfied, and shall shortly send for another Bandmaster.—Yours, W. Gwynne." "18, Montague-st., London, December 11th.—Sir,—Bandmaster you sent is most satisfactory. The lady is very pleased with it, as besides being a good singer it is a strong and healthy bird.—Yours (Miss) H. Misley." "276, Victoria Buildings, Hillstown, Bolsover, December 11th.—Sir,—Received special Bandmaster, and am very pleased with him.—Yours, J. King." "Mount-st., Mullingar, Ireland, December 11th.—Sir.—Received Leipzig Roller, and am proud to say he is a living musical box. It's a pleasure to come into contact with such an honourable man, who does not mislead fanciers concerning birds he has for disposal.—Yours, J. Huggard." "London-rd., Alderley Edge, November 30th.—Sir,—I thank you for the marvel you have sent me (Bandmaster at 10/-), for he is a marvel. I never heard one like him. On coming home my wife said, 'You are hard to please, but I think you will be satisfied this time' He excels all I have heard, and will recommend you for more. Please send me another. Yours, G. Birkin" On December 11th Mr. Birkin again writes: "Sir,—Second Roller arrived safe on Friday, and gives satisfaction in every way. He has just the song I wanted, and I thank you very much for sending such a good bird. I shall get you more orders, as I am sure your birds are far better than any others I have heard.—Yours, G. Birkin." "27, Cambrian-place, Carmarthen, December 14th.—Sir,—I have instructed editor to hand over deposit for Roller. I am well pleased with bird. Thanking you for such a nice songster.—Yours, W. Evans." "Blaengarn.—Sir.—Roller has given every satisfaction; he is singing very nicely, and is free from any objectionable notes. Thanks for promptness.—Yours, E. Jones." "34, Castle-st., Stranraer, December 14th.—Sir,—Received Roller safe, and am highly pleased with him. He is a tiptopper, and sang immediately it was opened. Please send Hartz cock by return. P.O. enclosed.—Yours, J. Raeside" It's plain proof that my Rollers must be better than others, otherwise I should not receive so many testimonials every day; but you can easily prove it to your own satisfaction, as I send all on full week's trial, entirely at my own risk, either on receipt or cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and unless bird proves fully satisfactory every penny of your money is refunded. All are safely and warmly packed, with seed and water, in special travelling cages, free of extra cost, and sent out same day as order is received, so intending purchasers of Rollers for Christmas and New Year gifts may rely upon getting their birds to time if ordered from me. Postcards sent before birds in all cases. See British Birds and Appliance columns for further adverts.

CLUB REPORTS.

SALE OPEN O.S.

At our last meeting, held December 21st, there were about twenty members and friends gathered to hear Mr. S. W. Birebley's interesting paper on "The Various British Birds, and Springtime." It was a very happy occasion, and those who were not present missed a treat which does not often come our way. The only thing to regret was that we had not the gathering Mr. Birchley deserved; but perhaps most of the members were busy preparing for a Merry Christmas, which I hope everybody had. Mr. Birchley has promised to give us another lecture later on, and we feel sure he will have a larger audience.—JAS. IRLAM, Secretary.

DYSART C.B.S.

Meeting held December 5th, in the Normand Hall. The treasurer and secretary's report of the late show was adopted. It showed a balance to the right side. Office bearers for next year: The following were all re-elected, Messrs. D. Walker (president), J. Hutchison (treasurer), J. Davidson (vice-president), George Harris (assistant secretary); Auditors, Messrs. Andrew Wallace and White. Our annual supper followed, and was a great success. Violin selections were rendered by Mr. Peter Burt, assisted by Mr. H. Bisset with his phonograph. Songs were rendered by Messrs. R. Trails, D. Walker, G. Harris, J. Hutchison, A. Wallace, and Watson. Mr. J. Macgregor gave a nice little speech, and I think if his advice is taken, it will do good in this district amongst bird fanciers. A very enjoyable evening was spent taken altogether. With the usual votes of thanks the meeting closed.—J. LOGAN, Hon. Secretary.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Usual fortnightly meeting held December 19th, at the Fawcett-street Cafe, the chairman, Mr. John Farrar, presiding over a good attendance. The members were very enthusiastic, despite the fact that our late show, although a record in every other way, was financially a failure, owing to the poor gate and the very poor sale of tickets, due to the great depression existing in the town, but principally owing to a loss of nearly £10 from last year, which left us with very little in hand. Under the circumstances, the members proposed to levy themselves in order to clear off all liabilities, and the motion, proposed by Mr. A. Walker, seconded by Mr. J. M. Walker, was carried unanimously. This shows true fanciership, and is much better than the old method of members paying their following year's subscriptions to pay off the debt of the previous year, which is simply "working the dead horse." A letter was read from our late president, Mr. J. T. G. Pemberton, in which he said that he fully realised the difficulties we would have in carrying out our late show, owing to the state of trade, and he had decided to give us a donation of two guineas, which he enclosed. The secretary was instructed to forward to Mr. Pemberton the best thanks of the members. Although our members have decided to levy themselves, we should be thankful for any assistance from outside sources.—REID AND MADDISON, Hon. Secretaries.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting at headquarters December 14th. The following were elected members:—Miss Edwards, W. Quantrell, F. Knight, T. Hart, R. T. Parr, C. Botting, and J. P. Lloyd. Nominated candidates: Messrs. Withers Bros., F. Tibbs, R. A. Newley, and H. Stewart Grahame. The protest lodged by F. Vincent against W. Francis in connection with special prize No. 54 was allowed to be withdrawn. The case of a new member's being allowed to exhibit at the annual show one meeting after election, and protested against by A. Wheller at the previous meeting, having been referred to the council, the following recommendation was submitted: "That the council express regret that a large and well-attended meeting should have thought fit to waive a rule on the occasion named, and recommend that it be not taken as a precedent, nor allowed to occur again." This was carried unanimously. Twelve diplomas won at the recent annual show were presented by the chairman, also six silver cups that had been won outright, to the following:—"Trower," British Insectivorous, W. Francis; "Norwich Plain-head Challenge" (value six guineas), A. W. Curtis; "Lazarus," Crest, W. France; "Thorns," Crest-bred, H. W. Dickinson;" Anonymous," British Select-cuters, W. Francis; and "Wynn's" Point Cup, to Mrs. Page. A vote of thanks for services rendered at annual show was accorded Mrs. Wyse, Miss Rose Shephard, and Messrs. F. Wyse, A. W. Curtis, W. Shephard, J. Pooley, F. Turmber, A. Wheller, A. Hart, and J. Dewhurst; also to Mr. H. Dickinson, for defraying the cost of filling in the diplomas. A collection was made on behalf of Mr. G. Gardner for his "Old Folks Fund," which amounted to 10s. 7d. Mr. F. Wyse (who recently presented the association with the latest electric drying cage) presented the British section with a handsome solid silver cup, to be competed for at the next annual show. This cup was greatly admired. Mr. G. Menhennett promised a solid silver cup for competition in the novice Yorkshire section at the annual show. This drew from the chairman the remark that the novices should take heart and try and repeat the success that Mr. Menhennett had met with. Both donors were heartily thanked, and Mr. Curtis spoke of the good work Mr. Wyse had done for the association. A judging competition in Crests and Crested-breds then took place, with Mr. John Tyson as judge. The chairman (Mr. A. C. Burn), whose grief at the loss of his son and only child was difficult to restrain, returned thanks for the many kind expressions of sympathy. He said that it was the bitterest blow he had ever sustained, but the sympathy displayed on all hands, and especially from friends he was totally unaware of (he was the recipient of over 150 letters), went a great way towards softening the blow. The sight at the graveside of the 42 wreaths, including the lovely one from the association, R. L. Crisp, A. W. Curtis, W. Shepherd, Mrs. Maher, CAGE BIRDS, etc., and the representatives from the Association, West London, and other societies had deeply touched him. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Tyson.—V. WYNN, Hon. Sec.

CROOK ORIGINAL C.B.R. & P.S.

Special meeting held at the Crown Hotel December 16th for the purpose of presenting the cup, etc., to the successful members at the recent annual show. Mr. H. P. Douglas (president) presided over a good company, and in a few choice remarks presented Mr. J. Cuthbertson (Darlington) with the cup for the best bird in the cage bird section. The recipient suitably responded. Several splendid selections were given on the gramophone kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. W. Mason. A few songs were given by Mr. F. E. Rudkin. A pleasing feature of the meeting was the promise of the president, Mr. Douglas, and a vice-president, Mr. Daglish, to present cups to the society for competition next year, making the society the proud possessors of four splendid cups, a promise which was heartily received. It was decided to hold the general meeting on January 6th. A hearty vote of thanks to the president and secretary ended a very enjoyable meeting.—A. BOWES, Sec.

CITY AND COUNTY OF PERTH O.S.

Annual general meeting, held in the City Cafe, on December 21st. The secretary read the balance-sheet for 1908, which showed a small [illegible] in favour of the society; the auditors h[illegible] reported the same to be correct, it was adopted. [illegible] discussion ensued regarding the date of open show for 1909. The opinion was expressed that a change of date was necessary, as there were no less than seven shows held on the same day (21st November), although we were first in the field, and advertised our date through the whole year. The 23rd October was fixed as the most suitable date, and hope was expressed that we would have better entries next year. The election of office bearers was then proceeded with, and resulted as follows:—President, Mr. David Brown; vice-president, Mr. Alex. G. Forrest; treasurer, Mr. Alex. Borrie; secretary, Mr. Jas. Kerr. 6, St. Catherine's Road; auditors, Messrs Sharp and McDonald, and a large committee. Three new members were proposed and accepted. The Secretary reported all prize money paid and nearly all specials sent out; in fact, everything was squared up for the year. We thank exhibitors for their entries, and wish every fancier a successful season.—JAMES KERR, secretary.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Annual meeting held at the Hall of Science, Freeman-street, on December 15th, Mr H. E. Stubbs presiding. Six new members were elected, including Mr. Stones, a well-known exhibitor now residing in Grimsby. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—Chairman, Mr. W. H. Moore, sen.; vice-chairman, Mr. H. E. Stubbs; honorary secretary, Mr. W. H. Moore, jun.; hon. treasurer and reporter, Mr. H. Harding; committee, Messrs. Oliver, Cotterill, Way, Robinson, T. Crowston, Beaumont, Pett, Metcalf, Cartwright, Good, Dowie and Stones; auditors, Messrs. Metcalf and Cotterill. Mr. H. E. Stubbs, our chairman for the past two years, expressed a desire to vacate the chair, but consented to support our senior member by accepting the position of vice-chairman. The proceedings were of a very pleasant character, and augured well for the future of the society. The balance-sheet for the past year shows a loss on our October open show of £8 19s.; but it is satisfactory to note that notwithstanding this adverse balance there will be £2 10s. to carry forward to the credit of the society. The annual half-day members' show will be held at the Hall of Science on January 2nd next, birds to be staged by 2.30 p.m., when there will be a good classification. Specials will be given for the best Norwich (champions and novices), and also for the best British bird shown, Mr. A. Sutcliffe presenting the former, and Mr. W. H. Moore, sen., the latter, and we hope others will come forward with specials for the occasion. Mr. W. Clews has very kindly promised to officiate as judge. Fanciers and friends will be admitted free, and are invited to attend.—H. HARDING, Treasurer.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

The annual Bohemian concert and presentation of special prizes won by members at the annual show took place at the Montpelier Hotel on December 15th, and proved to be one of the most successful ever held by the society. Mr. J. W. Ramsden, the well-known manager of the Crystal Palace Show, was in the chair; Mr. Geo. Cobb, for many years president of the L.P.O., in the vice-chair. Close upon 100 members, their wives and friends, were present. Mr. H. E. Tringham, who superintended the arrangements, provided an excellent programme. The proceedings opened with a pianoforte duet by Miss Ings and Mr. A. Bolton, and the following contributed to the harmony:—Messrs. Percy Adamthwaite, W. Broadbent, A. K. Jew, Fred Putner, Will Putner, Allan Cunningham, A. Bolton, and J. Butler. The special prizes had all been nicely arranged on a table in front of the chairman, the handsome shield, cup and bowl in the centre. Mr. Ramsden had a jovial remark for each recipient of a prize. The principal winners were Messrs. J. W. Rennie, R. Brownlie, W. Morris, H. E. Tringham, E. S. Lugg, L. J. Richardson, F. Johnson, F. Cole, J. E. Reeves, J. Silverthorn, Goodwin, Botting, Whiteman, Putner, Matthes, F. J. Green, and Mrs. Litchfield. The chairman proposed "Success to the Dulwich and Peckham Society," coupling with the toast the name of the hon. sec., Mr. Hodson, which was received with musical honours. Mr. Hodson replied, giving a brief outline of the society's work during the year, the most pleasing feature of which was the fact that 40 new members had joined. Mr. E. S. Lugg proposed the toast of "The Fancy." Mr. Adamthwaite responding. Mr. J. Cole proposed "The Visitors," Mr. R. J. Pretty (of the London and Counties O.S.) responding. The chairman proposed "The Ladies," Mr. Richardson responding. Mr. H. E. Tringham proposed "The Health of the Chairman, Mr. J. W. Ramsden," and said how much all appreciated Mr. Ramsden's presence in the chair. He also spoke of the coming jubilee show at the Palace, and the great efforts Mr. Ramsden was putting forth to make this show the great event of his career as show manager. Mr. Ramsden, who was received with musical honours, replied. He would always be pleased, he said, to do what he could for the Dulwich and Peckham Society. At 11.30 the company sang "Auld Lang Syne," and "God Save the King."—W. HODSON, Hon. Sec.

SCOTCH FANCY CANARY NATIONAL DERBY O.A.

Annual meeting held in the Grand National Halls, Glasgow, on December 17th. Mr. Wright (Greenock), the esteemed president, occupied the chair. The balance-sheet, showing £4 7s. on the right side (which includes the cup fund), was adopted, it being considered satisfactory. It was decided to have the next exhibition on September 18th in the Grand National Hall, Main-street, Gorbals, Glasgow, the half-yearly business meeting on June 14th, and the annual business meeting in November; and that we continue to issue printed catalogues at 2d. per copy; but as a loss arose on the issue of 1908, it was deemed expedient not to include the names and addresses of the members, putting the town after the name in the entry meeting the requirements. It was considered that much would be done to improve the association if the members generally took an active and practical interest in it. The following office-bearers were elected:—Honorary president, Mr. W. Hart (Paisley); president, Mr. Wright (Greenock); vice-president, Councillor James Hogg (Oakley); secretary and treasurer, Thomas Smith, 56, Minard-road, Crossmyloof, Glasgow; auditors, Messrs. Bullions and Porteous; committee, Messrs. Aitkenhead, Bigg, Bell, Cobb, Bullions, Caldwell, Carmyllie, Crawford, Donnelly, Ferguson, Fernie, Fleming, Fulton, Gibb, Gray, Hall, Hannay, Hart, Hogg, Holden, Hutchison, Jardine, Johnstone, Lees, McCaig, McClure, McQuillan, McDougall, Martin, Maxwell, Miller, Muir, Niven, Park, Portious, Price, Rennie, Renwick, Smith, Stewart, Strathearn, Thoms Thornton, Urquhart, Ward, and Webster. The chairman kindly intimated that he would give a special prize for the best bird, opposite sex to the cup and medal winner, as he considered that exhibit should have tangible recognition. He was heartily thanked for his generosity. The usual vote of thanks to the chairman and secretary brought the meeting to a close.—THOS. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

SINGING CONTESTS.

LEEDS.

Usual Linnet contest held at the King's Head, Shannon-street, on Christmas Day, when 27 birds sang before a crowded house. Judges, Messrs. J. Melia and T. Chadwick. 1st, Stead; 2nd, Crowther; 3rd, Hardcastle; 4th, Sissons. Also on Boxing Day, when Messrs. Summers and Cooper judged, and 21 birds were hung. 1st, Hardcastle; 2nd, Stead; 3rd shared between Hardcastle and Cooper. Also on December 27th, when 22 birds sang. 1st, Crowther; 2nd, Stead; 3rd, Sissons. Judges, Messrs. Melia and Cooper.—WILSON NAYLOR, Hon. Sec.

YORK.

The 31st annual Christmas Linnet singing contest was held at the Bricklayers' Arms, Palmer-lane, Hungate, on Boxing Day, when there was a record entry, it being the largest contest ever held in York. Upwards of 60 birds came before the judge, Mr. J. W. Paver, whose awards gave every satisfaction. The singing was excellent. Mr. W. Empson arranged a prize for every competitor, and the following were the principal winners, viz.:—1, Perry; 2, Bean; 3, Andrews; 4, Harrison; 5 Layfield; 6, Oldroyd; 7, Bickerdyke; 8, Moore; 9, Whitehead; 10, Chaplin; 11, Brown, and 42 minor prizes. A most successful meeting was brought to a close by a vote of thanks to the donors of prizes. Mr. J. Limbert was timekeeper.—WM. EMPSON.

The Phalaropes.

The Phalaropes, of which we have two members, somewhat resemble the Plovers, but are distinctly peculiar both in form and habit. They are very buoyant swimmers, and may sometimes be met with some distance from shore. Their feet have peculiar skin like lobes, fastened to each toe, but not connecting them. When they are swimming and making a backward stroke there is great resistance to the water, but with the forward stroke the lobes fold underneath, and thus cause the least possible resistance.

Artificial Colouration of Birds.

In "Science Progress" is an article by Mr. R. Lydekker, on a series of experiments as to the colouration of birds. Mr. C. W. Beebe, of the New York Zoological Society, has conducted the experiments, which are still in progress, and has shown that a most remarkable tendency exists for the plumage of birds to darken under the influence of a moist atmosphere. Three species were used for the experiments: the Wood Thrush, the White-throated Sparrow, and the Inca (or Scaly Dove). In every case the exposure to exceedingly damp atmosphere effected a very remarkable increase in the black portions of the birds' plumage. In the case of the Dove the change was so great that the plumage passed through several stages corresponding to birds which are classed as entirely distinct species. Mr. Beebe notes that in no instance did the colour of the plumage itself change; the changes occurred during the successive moults. These experiments raise the interesting question as to how far such phenomena as protective coloration should be attributed to natural selection, and how far to direct reaction to environment. Mr. Beebe has shown, in the case of the Tanager and Bobolink that it is possible, by preventing the birds from breeding and by modifying their food and environment, to keep them with their breeding livery unchanged for a whole year. The experiments started in spring, and in the following spring the birds moulted, passing directly from the previous year's breeding plumage to that of the current year. No one can quarrel with Mr. Beebe's highly interesting conclusion that he has proved that, in the case of these birds at any rate, the sequence of plumage is not in any way predestined by inheritance, but that it can be interrupted by certain external factors.

THE SHOWS.

RUGBY C.B.S.

At Rugby Town Hall on December 19th a 12-mile radius show was held. There was a gratifying entry, and some birds that had done well elsewhere had to stand down on this occasion. Mr. S. Bromwich placed the cards, and Mr. E. Westley made a courteous show secretary.

The winner in each class received a special prize from a Rugby tradesman, and there were also prizes for most points.

NARBERTH.

Held December 16th, at the Victoria Hall, a beautiful glass-covered building, quite an ideal place for the purpose. The main feature of the show was the wonderful team of Goldies, staged by Mr. T. W. Richards, all of them being in lovely condition and bang up in colour. The entries in most classes were low, no doubt owing to the number of shows taking place during the week in the county of Pembrokeshire. The birds which were shown, however, were up to the highest standard, and the executive will be well advised to increase the prize money in future; the entries will increase accordingly. Mr. Jas. Owen, the secretary looked after the arrangements of the show in a very able manner. Mr. J. B. Evans placed the cards, and gave satisfaction.

MARAZION.

The third annual show of Marazion and Western Dist. B.F.A. was held in the St. Thomas Hall on Boxing Day. The hall was splendidly adapted for the purpose, and the birds were exceedingly well staged, the arrangements being in the hands of some experienced fanciers. The officials were:—Vice-president, Mr. H. Phillips; treasure, Mr. W. A. Phillips; secretaries, Messrs. O. Phillips and P. Phillips; committee, Messrs. S. Kidney, F. James, W. Baker, G. Rowe, J. White, R. Hulse, B. White, H. Bennetts, W. Philp, W. Hulse, G. Semmens, W. Radmore, C. Bryant, W. J. Rodda, H. Richards, and R. Phillips. The entries, which totalled 159, were in excess of any previous years. The Norwich came first, and were exceptionally good in type and quality. The Yorkshires were a capital lot, and made a good display, type and quality being very prominent. The three classes of pairs matched for breeding were very strong, and gave the judge some little difficulty in selecting the winners. The Goldfinches were two strong classes, and were teeming with quality, both the cage-moulted and non-cage-moulted. The show was opened by Mrs. T. W. Field, of Chymorvah, who was supported by the Revs. R. D. Purves (vicar) and W. Ball, and Hinchcliffe, Miss Dewsnap, and Mr. T. W. Field. The silver cup presented by Mr. and Lady Agnes Durham to the member winning most points was won for the second time by Mr. J. S. White, becoming now his property; and another cup, for the member winning most points in open, was awarded to Mr. J. W. H. Mitchell. This is to be won any three years, or two years in succession. The special for the best Yorkshire was won by Mr. P. Opie, and that for best Norwich by Mr. J. S. White. Mr. S. Tickell (Bodmin) judged, and his awards seemed to give every satisfaction.

PETERHEAD C.B.A.

The first show of this newly-formed Society was held in the Music Hall on December 18th and 19th, when close upon 200 birds were staged, which must be considered very satisfactory. The quality, too, was very good, some really fine specimens being on view. Mr. P. A. Jack, to whom the Society have entrusted the secretarial duties, makes a capital official, and is to be congratulated on his able management of affairs on this occasion. The Town Council cup for most points went to Mr. Alex Clark, the president's medal to Mr. J. Strachan, and the vice-president's to Mr. W. Dunn. Mr. J. A. Smith's medal for best bird bred during 1908 was won by Mr. A. Thomson. Mr. D. Milne (Montrose) judged, and appeared to give every satisfaction.

FELINFOEL.

Held at County Schools, December 19th. The weather was of the worst description, a thick fog mantling everything, making the work of judging very difficult. The entries mustered up fine, and in some classes as many as 20 toed the mark. Canaries were a nice lot, and some well-known exhibitors put down some of their best. In the British birds the Goldies, Linnets, and the A.O.S. were very keen; again we recognised a few of the best, a great many of the best known winners putting in attendance. In Mr. W. P. Jones, the hon. secretary, we found the embodiment of kindness and courtesy, and the arrangements were kept well in hand. No. 1 in the Linnet class was disqualified for alleged staining. Mr. D. A. S. Longden judged, and gave satisfaction.

STOCKPORT B.F.A.

Annual show held December 3rd and 4th, in the Assembly Room, at the Boars' Head Hotel. In connection with this the Federation of Cage Bird Societies (Ashton-under-Lyne centre), held their last show of the season in which section, Stockport scored 40 points, bringing their total up to 143 points, thereby tieing for the cup with their neighbours "Hazel Grove." Entries in all numbered 282. All were comfortably staged on the three tier system which has been so much admired in Stockport for some time. Many grand birds were staged, some that have won at the best shows. In Lancashires the quality and size were all that could be desired; Lizards were a treat, there being such spangling combined with size and colour that many old hands said they were the best ever shown in Stockport. Norwich were good all round for size, colour, type and quality, and were staged to perfection. Yorkshires were grand, of good length and tight as wax. Crest and Crestbreds were good and the Cinnamons, though not numerous, could boast of having a couple of tip-toppers amongst them. In the A.O.V. Canary class was a good Belgian, and a good Border Fancy. In the Mule or Hybrid class was one of the best Greenie-Bullies ever seen. British birds were good. A solid silver egg stand, presented by Councillor E. Clarke, J.P., for best in show, was won by Mr. W. Hill with his Crest. Mr. J. E. Davies' yellow Norwich took special for best Norwich in show; Mr. T. E. Dickenson's fine Yorkshire taking special for best Yorkshire. Mr. A. Wellings judged, and gave every satisfaction.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

The last of a series of five shows held during the present year in connection with the gold medals and a valuable list of special prizes, which the members have competed for, was held in Park Chapel Schools on December 15th, when Mr. J. Bailey (Allerton) judged. There was a capital entry, no less than 172 birds being staged in 18 classes. The competition has been a decidedly keen one throughout, and this led some of the members to put extra birds down in order to defend their positions. The four highest birds of each exhibitor count towards the specials, and the winners of most points at this show in the championship classes were:—Messrs Farrar, Laycock, Cruise, and White; in the novice section, Messrs. Northrop, Crowther, Dinsdale, Taylor Bros. Four extra novice classes were put down in the schedule for those who had never won a money prize, and the winners in this section were Messrs. Hudson, Nettleton, and Baldwin Bros. The quality of the exhibits was of a high order, and it was not an easy task which fell to the lot of the judge in making the awards. The winners of the special prizes for the year are as follows:—Champion section: 1st, Farrar; 2nd, White; 3rd, Stables; 4th, Hill; 5th, Gelder; 6th, Rushworth; 7th, Briggs; and 8th, Bleazard. Novice section: 1st, Northrop; 2nd, Crowther; 3rd, Laycock; 4th, Priestley; 5th, Dinsdale; 6th, Greenwood; 7th, Peacock; 8th, Warner; and 9th, Busfield. Extra novice section: 1st, Hudson; 2nd, Nettleton. All the prizes which have been won will be presented by Mr E. Suddards, wife of our respected president, at the annual tea and concert to be held on January 5th, at Park Chapel Schools. Mr. Samuel Dean (Great Horton) was called in as an extra judge, and both his and Mr. Bailey's awards gave every satisfaction.

The 16th annual show was held in the large club room of the "Globe Inn," Hyde Park Corner, Ipswich, on Boxing Day. Entries turned up well, about 20 more than last year's, some grand specimens being on view. A good company took advantage of the opportunity of seeing them, especially during the early part of the day. The quality of the exhibits in general was well up to the standard. Among the best birds were those of the following, who won extra special prizes:—For best Canary in show (given by members), Mr. W. Elliss; for best Norbred by exhibitor (given by an old member, Mr. A. N. Watson, of Australia), Mr. A. Bevan a novice; 2nd best (given by Mr. W. Schofield), Mr. S. Barham; for best in Classes 1 and 2 (given by Mr. E. Baker), Mr. W. Cook; best in Hen Classes (given by Mr. E. Gooderham), Mr. Clarke. Mr. W. Cook winning specials for best Mule and British. A very pleasing feature was the presentation to Mr. C. Simpson (judge) of a handsome electro-plated teapot, suitably engraved. He has ably judged the fixtures of the society since its formation, and has always given satisfaction. Through the generosity of contributors and donors, the committee were able to give a special prize to the 1st bird in each class. The management tenders its hearty thanks to all who contributed to the success of the show.

GLASGOW & WEST OF SCOTLAND N.M.B. AND F.B.C.

Members' show, held at 122, Ingram-street, on December 12th. It was a great success, with an entry of 611. The Norwich and Crest sections in particular came up very strong with large classes and birds of the very best quality, many winners at this season's open shows not even getting a commended card, and the novice cup and gold medal and the young bird cup were both won by Mr. George Stewart with a fine young Crested hen that will make history. The gold medal for best old bird in show was won by Mr. J. McLay with his Crested hen, and the medal for best British or Foreign bird went to Mr. Thomas Erskine with a Superb Tanager. The silver tea set for most points gained by Yorkshires at monthly shows, first feather show, and this show, was won by Mr. T. H. Penman with 65 points, and the runners-up were Messrs. D. Macdonald 62 points, and D. F. Webster 55 points. The British bird section provided a grand display of birds, all gems of their kind and staged in perfect condition, and the beautiful plumage and pert ways of many of the familiar little birds were a source of real enjoyment to many of the visitors, particularly the ladies who were here in force. The attendance was estimated at about 500, and with an entry of over 100 above last year's record, I think we can claim to have provided the best members' show in Scotland. Everything went like clockwork; the judges got through their work in a smart, capable fashion, like men able and confident in their work, and by 1.30 only some ten specials had to be judged. Mr. R. A. Brown is a popular and capable secretary.

TWITTERINGS.

Fanciers, send your entries for Llanelly along at once to the secretary, D. John, 8, Pottery Place.—(ADVT.)

The report in the Linnet class of Widnes Show states 4, Brick and Sons; this should read Birch and Sons.—J. BIRCH AND SONS (Skelmersdale).

I have received the original drawing of my bird, executed by Mr. Norman, and I may say that the drawing gives great satisfaction.—ARTHUR W. HART (Fulham).

West Bromwich Show report in the Bullfinch class reads Lawrence 3rd, whereas I won 3rd in that class and received prize money for same.—G. EDWARDS (Leominster).

Our show to be held on January 7th and 8th is the association's third, and we are anxious to make it a success, writes Mr. R. J. Hamilton, hon. secretary of the Banbridge C.B. and P.A.

Many thanks for special received on Christmas morning (a Christmas present). I am sure every exhibitor will be glad to win one of your framed plates.—G. MORTON (Enfield Lock).

The result of my last week's advertising in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. W. Nichols (Norwich), was that I had letters from all parts of the country, which kept me busy during the holidays.

Musselhurgh Show report credited Mr. Pearson with 1st in the variegated buff hen class. and in the Siskin, Redpoll, or Twite class, both of which I won, writes Mr. Alex. M. Gardiner (Newtongrange).

We have received an order for an advertisement offering a whippet dog in exchange for Yorkshire Canaries, but neither name nor address is given. Will the sender please communicate with us?

During the last month I have sent mealworms all over England and Scotland, writes Mr. J. Jones (Brighton). It is wonderful where your valuable paper gets to—into almost every little town and village.

Welsh National Show report states that Mr. Neal won first in class 13, whereas I won that honour with a Yellow Yorkshire cock. This same bird won 1st and special at Bristol in a class of 28 birds.—GEORGE THOMSON (Cardiff).

The entry in the gift class at our show, writes Mr. A. J. Notley, secretary of the Hetton-le-Hole and Dis. C.B.S., is free, with the same prize money and special as other classes. Cages will be returned to owners, unless otherwise stated.

There is a printer's error in our schedule, writes Mr. R. J. Hamilton, hon. secretary of the Banbridge C.B. and P.A. Class 35 should read: "Clear buff hen." Unfortunately I did not notice the error until some of the schedules had been sent out.

I received the sketch of my winning Yorkshire at Plymouth Show, and thank you for same, writes Mr. J. Burton (London, W.) I am sure great credit is due to Mr Norman, your artist, for making such a life-like portrait of my Cinnamon-marked.

We had a record entry of 646 at Pwllheli Show, writes Mr. John Rowlands, and the cage birds were snugly staged in gallery of Town Hall. All birds belonging to Mr. Davies (Llandilo) were delayed on the journey, and one was dead when they arrived, while all were too late for judging.

Our entries have been extended to January 5th, writes Mr. F. Looker, hon. secretary of the Hertford and Dis. F.A. Show to be held January 13th and 14th. Unfortunately our original entries' closing date fell on the Christmas holidays. The society hope fanciers will give them their support.

Entries for our show are coming in very slowly, writes Mr. W. Pawley, hon. secretary of the Plumstead and Woolwich Society. We trust fanciers will send on as early as possible as we cannot extend after January 4th. Arrangements have been made for Mr. Gardner to judge the members' classes.

We regret to hear from Mr. T. Smith (Glasgow), that Mr. McClure, the noted Scotch Fancy Canary breeder and exhibitor, of Glasgow, is confined to his bed with pneumonia. As we go to press it is reported that he has the turn for the better, and we sincerely hope he will have a speedy recovery.

The secretary of the recent Stamford Show, Mr. A. W. Ludlow, has received many congratulatory letters concerning the management of the fixture, from delighted exhibitors, copies of which we have seen. This should form a splendid recommendation for the society on the occasion of its show next year; this young society undoubtedly deserves success.

The Nottingham and Notts O.S. Committee have decided that the monthly meetings be held at the Mechanics' Hall, Nottingham, in future, writes Mr. G. E. Wilkinson, the hon. secretary. Accordingly they will be held there on the first Wednesday in each month at 8 p.m., commencing on January 6th, 1909.

The Leicester Cage Bird Society starts the new year with new headquarters, at the Saracen's Head Hotel, Market Place, writes Mr. J. A. Tyler, the secretary. We shall be holding our annual members' show on Saturday, January 9th, in our new quarters, where we shall have a splendidly lighted and ventilated room at our disposal.

The proposed ornithological society has, we hear, been successfully formed at Uddingston. The society caters for fanciers in the district, and the towns of Uddingston, Hamilton, Bothwell, Blantyre, Camhuslang, Carmyle, Bellshill, Tollcross, and Baillieston are included. The first show will be held on January 30th when it is hoped it will prove a success.

I have received a dead Kingfisher to stuff from Mr. W. Miller (post mark on wrapper, "Oakham Ruts"), but he has forgotten to append his address, writes Mr. E. Williams (Liverpool). As he mentions my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS. I would be obliged if you will note this, so that Mr. Miller may let me know where to return the bird to when preserved.

Through the landlady of the "Bird In Hand" leaving, writes Mr. D. John, hon. secretary of the Llanelly and Dis. C.B.S., the society's headquarters until further notice will be at the Centre Hotel, Stepney Street, which has been kindly placed at our disposal by R. Williams, Esq. Our next meeting will be held there on January 2nd, at 7.30 p.m.

The Bradford (East) O.S. will hold their second annual tea and concert, in connection with the distribution of prizes, on Tuesday, January 5th, in the Park Chapel Schools, West Bowling. Tea on the tables at 6 p.m., concert to commence at 7.30. The services of a splendid lot of artistes have been secured, and a very enjoyable time, under the chairmanship of Mr. E. Haley, is anticipated. Tickets for tea and concert: gentlemen 1s., ladies 9d., children (under 14) half price. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the society or from the hon. secretary, Mr. H. Hill, 31, St. Stephen's Road, West Bowling, Bradford.

Dr. Jean Danysz, whose name is identified with a well-known remedy against the depredations of rats and mice, has just made a discovery of interest to all lovers of cats. Every winter for some years past there has been a serious epidemic amongst cats in the Department of Eure in Normandy, which proved particularly deadly to kittens. Last February, a large number of cats succumbed to the disease after only a few days' illness. Dr. Danysz, in his laboratory in Paris, produced and cultivated the microbe of the mysterious disease. He has now produced a serum which renders "puss" entirely immune to the dreaded malady.

A Big Loss.

Crest fanciers will be sorry to hear that Mr. Armstrong has lost the mother of his young Crest "King of Kings" writes Mr. Thos. Robson (Newcastle). I called to see his stock a few days after Gateshead Show. The "King" was looking better, if anything, than he did at Gateshead, and has a marvellous frontal crest. Mr. Armstrong thinks nothing a trouble if it is of benefit to the stock. He boils all the drinking water before giving it to the birds, as he considers it much better for them. He is an all-round fancier, and although Crests are his favourite variety, he keeps a few British, and has a few really good Cinnamons. He is fortunate in having a garden where he produces his own fresh green food and also new laid eggs.

TO READERS ALL.

is now in course of preparation, and will be published early in February, as usual, and be on sale at the forthcoming Crystal Palace Show, and in the hands of all subscribers, we hope, by Saturday, February 6th next. To enable us to keep our word we ask the generous co-operation of readers in sending particulars required in its compilation, also their advertisements, at the earliest possible moment. Any suggestions for new features, or for the improvement of present features will be welcomed, and receive every consideration.

Secretaries of All Societies
devoted to the interests of the cage-bird hobby should send us full particulars of same at once for inclusion in our Alphabetical List of Cage Bird Clubs. We want the full name of the Society the latest list of its officials, the place and time of meetings and the nights, the entrance fee and the subscription. As this is the only directory to those associations catering for cage bird fanciers in existence, no society can afford to be missing from the list. Members themselves should make a point of seeing that their society is included. Secretaries who have changed their addresses should not fail to notify us. We want our list to be thoroughly up-to-date, and thoroughly complete.

All Judges of Cage Birds
who have officiated at any recognised show can have their name and address inserted in our list of judges by sending us particulars on a post card, stating what varieties (if any) they specialise in. There is no charge whatever. Any judge at present on our list who may have changed his address during the past year should notify us at once. This list, remember, is the only complete one of its kind, and is universally consulted by show officials.

To the Bird Trade.
Our directory to the bird trade is a feature that no dealer in birds, or foods, or medicines, or appliances of any kind whatsoever, can neglect. It is a permanent record of his address, as well as his specialities, which is an invaluable guide to the fanciers in his own town as well as all over the world. No charge is made for the inclusion of any bona-fide trader but the name can be thrown up in heavy black type on payment of 1s. (one shilling).

To All Breeders and Exhibitors and Advertisers Generally.

For Breeders' Cards, and other displayed Advertisements, business bringers from All over the World, see the low terms quoted on the back page this week.

These are advertisements which at a very low cost will bring you business for a whole year.

Write us for any particulars you may require.

White Partridges.

During a recent shoot at Melton Constable (Norfolk), a Mr. Gillott's party had the unique experience of killing four snow-white Partridges in a single drive. A single white Partridge at any time is an unusual "freak."

The Oriole in Ireland.

The lovely Golden Oriole is a summer visitor to Ireland, and it is on record that during the season of 1870 flocks of them were seen in Bantry Bay, many of them being captured.

Crossbills in the South.

Small flocks of Crossbills have been seen in the south. They are curious looking yet handsome birds. One would think it hardly possible for a bird with a crossed beak to feed in any way; and yet he will split open a fir cone or dissect a beech mast as quickly and easily as any other bird.

Two Short Weeks Ago!

The most remarkable instance of the mildness of the season that has so far reached us, says a Derby contemporary, comes from a correspondent at Melbourne. Mr. Thomas Salisbury, of that place, was engaged on Monday—the shortest day of the year—in cutting evergreens in the nursery of the late Mr. W. Clarke, when he came across a Thrush's nest containing a couple of eggs. Unfortunately, not being aware of the precious structure and its contents, a stroke from his axe disturbed the nest to such an extent that one of the eggs was smashed. This silent tribute to the mildness of the season from one of the most beautiful songsters of the feathered tribe is not without precedent, but the years in which it happens are almost as few and far between as those in which skating is possible on the River Derwent.

Our Christmas Competitions.

Intending competitors are reminded that Monday next, January 4th, is the last day for receiving coloured frontispieces, as per rules published in our last two issues. The result in both this and the "Conundrum" competition we hope to be in a position to announce in our next number.

Home Seamews, o What?

Douglas (Isle-of-Man) Show took place yesterday, writes Mr. Arthur C. Brotherhood (Newport, Salop), who judged, and it is a terrible day here to-day. There is a violent storm on, high winds with sleet and snow. As I am penning these lines I can see from my hotel window tremendous breakers coming right over the promenade. Without this storm abates, I don't know how the poor old "Douglas" will struggle through it in the morning with poor me on board!

OBITUARY

Mr. JOHN SMITH (Airdrie).

It is with the profoundest regret, writes Mr. Thomas Smith (Glasgow), that I have to advise you of the passing away on December 23rd of Mr. John Smith, of Airdrie (formerly of Coathridge). Blessed with general good health, he was only laid aside ill one month. All who knew him were familar with his kindly smile, which came from a sincere heart. He did many kindnesses in a quiet way, and like many of the grand old Scottish type which is fast dying out he lived up to his convictions and religion. He took an active part in building up the Scotch Fancy Canary. A keen breeder, he was successful year in and year out in rearing quality and quantity. His stock found a ready market, and many a one joined the Fancy through his kindly advice and assistance. He was a practical supporter of exhibitions; in 1891 he told with pardonable pride that he had exhibited at the City of Glasgow Show for thirty years, and had only once left without being "capped." Everyone liked to have a few words with him, and many will cherish the memory of the pleasant Saturday afternoons spent in his aviary, and of his patience in running out 50 or 60 young birds into a single cage so that visitors could see each properly. He was a popular judge and his services were often requisitioned; he loved fair play and he exercised sound judgment. Long associated with the North British Railway Company, where he held an important charge, he retired a few years ago, and his colleagues honoured him on that occasion with a presentation. A noble man by nature he will be greatly missed. In his trouble he was patient, and during the last three days when parting with those who were privileged to converse with him, he calmly added, as he shook hands: "We will meet again, but not on this earth." On the day after Christmas, a large company followed his remains to New Monkland Cemetery. Readers, I am sure, will join in sympathising with his widow in the sad loss she has sustained.

It is with regret, writes Mr. James Irlam, secretary, Sale O.S., that I have to announce the death of the wife of Mr. Buskey one of our members, who, after a short illness of only a few days, died from pneumonia. She was an ardent lover of birds, and never so happy as when helping her husband to send out his birds to the shows. I had the pleasure of looking over their birds at Pendleton and Salford Show a few weeks ago. She was very pleased at having persuaded her husband to show there, and pleasantly remarked what a good day it was for her husband. I little thought that would be the last time I should ever speak to her. It came as a great and sad surprise to all of us when the news was brought to our meeting, and I am sure every member and friend deeply sympathises with Mr. Buskey and the family left behind to mourn the loss of a loving wife and fond mother.

Birds of Paradise in Sussex Woods.

One of the Birds of Paradise imported by Mr. W. Goodfellow into this country from New Guinea escaped from captivity, and for over two months supported itself as a wild bird in the woods where Kent and Sussex join. Early in September Mr. Goodfellow arrived at Groombridge with a fine collection of Birds of Paradise, and these were deposited in Mrs. Johnstone's aviaries. Among the more important species were three pairs of the magnificent Rifle Bird, the females of which then reached England for the first time. In transferring the stock from the travelling cages to the aviaries one of the hens—which are soberly clad in brown—managed to escape, and for some time kept to the tall trees at the back of the house. Attempts were made to take it in a trap cage, but without success, and the bird was naturally given up for lost. The bird was eventually recaptured at Langton, only a few miles distant, when it flew against the vicarage windows, attracted by the lights. It was promptly taken charge of and returned to Mrs. Johnstone's aviaries, and that lady described it as being in "fine plumage, but thin." It had been away over ten weeks. The bird was able to maintain itself so long as it could procure berries and insects, but when these food supplies failed it naturally went off in condition. It is worth remark that during the recent cold spell 17 degs. of frost were registered at Groombridge, and many of the nights were wet and cold. This shows that the bird must have been in excellent fettle when it reached England, or it could never have borne the exposure.

IN THE COURTS.

Canaries in Their Pockets!

At Lancaster, on Dec. 24, George Stoker, and William Richardson, steel-workers, of Blackhill, were charged with having stolen five fowls from the fowlhouse of Robert Nixon, between December 18th and 19th, and also with having stolen seven Canaries worth 50s., from the aviary of John Revell, a North-Eastern signalman at Shotley Bridge Station, at the same time.

The police evidence showed that the premises had been forced open with a poker. The police went to the defendants' houses in West Row. P.C. Bryan found at Richardson's house a cooked fowl in the pantry. In the man's coat pockets were some feathers.—Mr. Revell stated that 50s. was only the nominal value of the Canaries.

Mr. Turnbull, on behalf of the defendants, admitted the offences. His clients, he said, had been out of work for several weeks, and had wives and large families dependent upon them. They were practically starving. On the night in question some friends gave them drink, and they went away and committed the thefts. The Canaries, however, flew out of their pockets and got away.—The magistrates took a lenient view of the matter, and fined the defendants 5s. in each case.

Cheshunt Show in the British bird class should read: 1 and special, Jay; 2nd, Mascall; 3rd, Mocock; res. and v.h.c., Titchmarsh (Bullie and Goldie respectively).—E. Titchmarsh (Enfield Wash).

I have only received 30 entries up to the present time, writes Mr. J. W. Gambrill, hon. secretary of the Folkestone and Dis. F.S. Show. Will fanciers please rally round us. The building is heated with hot water, and everything will be comfortable for the exhibits.

Just as we go to press we receive a wire from Mr. D. John, hon. secretary of the Llanelly and Dis. Show to the effect that entries are short, and that the date for the closing of same has been extended to first post Sunday morning, January 3. He hopes all fanciers, and especially old friends, will rally round to his support.

A Contented Sparrow.

A Sparrow, Blue Tit, and Long Tailed Tit found their way into a friend's aviary. The Tits were restless and constantly ferreting about, and at last found their way out through the wire; but the Sparrow appears quite indifferent. He has plenty to eat, and comfortable quarters, and looks as though he is content to spend the winter where he is, if he is allowed to do so. One can hardly think the brainy Sparrow is unable to do what a Tit can in the matter of extricating himself from a difficult position if necessary.

From Paris.

Two Canarics, if they have not saved the French Republic, have, according to the "Intransigeant," by their death perhaps saved the life of its President. The story is a rather pathetic one. Madame Fallieres had two beautiful Dutch Canaries, which she kept in a room at the Elysee in a pretty tri-coloured cage. The other morning she woke up to find both birds dead. The President was called, and, hurrying to the room, tried himself to revive the little creatures, but without success. A suspicious odour filled the room, and the architect, having examined it, found that gas was escaping from cracks in the heater. The discovery was timely; who knows what might have happened?

A FEW OPINIONS ON OUR XMAS NUMBER.

What a lovely plate you presented us with this week, in the Christmas Number.—F. Vincent (London, S.E.)

I cannot but thank you for your grand Christmas Number. The beautiful coloured plate is a champion.—J. Rukin (Lytham).

The plate given with your Christmas Number was grand.—W. Pawley, hon. secretary of the Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S.

Thank you for your charming calendar, which is up-to-date.—J. Logan, hon. secretary of the Dysart C.B.S.

Many thanks for the last plate you issued. I have the whole collection of your plates, of which most are framed. The last is grand.—J. Ashwood.

You are to be congratulated on your Christmas Number with plate and calendar. I think it surpasses all others.—J. A. Simpson (West Kilburn).

Your Christmas issue was a treat, full of interesting articles, etc., and plenty of them, while plate and calendar are beautiful.—H. E. Parrott (Weybridge).

Allow us to congratulate you on the excellent Christmas Number of Cage Birds. and the plate you gave with it, which is quite a work of art, and does your artist great credit.—Armitage Bros. (Nottingham).

I think the Calendar with Cage Birds Christmas Number is a champion. The recent plate of Yorkshires was also very good, and the picture last week.—Matthew Taft (Birstall, Yorks.)

Cage Birds Calendar and Coloured Plate are fine, the former being just what I wanted for my bird-room. I am only a novice, yet I had a very good season, only losing one young one out of seven nests.—W. Troughton (Blackpool).

Many thanks for the extra fine plate given with the Christmas number of Cage Birds. I have seen a good number of plates, but never have I seen anything approaching this one. Great credit is due to Mr. Rankin.—W. Lycett (Chesterton).

As a reader of Cage Birds for years I am always pleased to pay twopence for the rare treat of feasting my eyes on your life-like pictures. I am sure no true lover of birds would begrudge the money for such a grand plate and issue as your Christmas Number.—John Fawcitt (Maulden).

Allow me to congratulate you on the splendid special number and plates, and the calendar which you have given us of late. What wonderful strides Cage Birds is making. The Fancy has a lot to thank you for in the exceptionally clever plates you have been providing us with.—R. H. Jones (Swansea).

I wish to thank you for your lovely plate and calendar in the Christmas number of Cage Birds. I intend hanging the calendar in my saloon, which I hope will gain you more readers.—P. G. Morgan (Llandoveric).

Your superb plate of Ring Ousels cannot but appeal to the Fancy, especially to those who keep the larger insectivorous species. It certainly surpasses anything previously given to the Fancy. Your calendar is very appropriate, and no doubt will be appreciated by all.—E. S. Lugg (Lewisham).

Thank you very much for the splendid Christmas number you have given us this week. I think it is a marvel, and no lover of cage-birds can be up to date without it. The articles are well worth reading, and great credit is due to the artist, Mr. Rankin, for giving us such a splendid plate of the Ring Ousels. All lovers of British birds should make an effort to secure one.—Alf. Rowles (Peterborough).

I have on many occasions been greatly surprised on opening Cage Birds to find such exquisite plates portraying in a very life-like manner the different varieties of our feathered friends, but I must admit, although I am a lover of the "bird of grace and beauty" in particular, that on no occasion previous to the receipt of your Christmas Number was I ever carried away, in thought, to the same extent from my surroundings as when I viewed the picture of the Ring Ousels. It just seemed as though I was on the hilltop of a beautiful moorland in the heart of Devonshire, feasting on the landscape round about me, and the tender sentiment which the portrayal of these birds and the country conveyed carried me back to the time of my holidays, when I recollect that in the charming light of dawning day I once stood on a small upland and looked out upon just such another scene as that shown in your picture; and in like manner the birds were there to break the stillness of the early morn with their sweet melody. I cannot find words to express the amount of appreciation I have for the magnificent work of art which Mr. Rankin has set before us through the medium of your popular weekly journal. The effect given by the background is great, and it "gets right there." I am sure your many readers will be with me in thanking you for the efforts you have made from time to time in catering for the Fancy; and there is no more striking example of this than by referring to the many interesting and instructive articles appearing in the Christmas Number. I would like to reciprocate the good will and wishes extended on the front page.—H. S. Negus (Cardiff).

CANARY QUERIES.

A Bad Understanding.

Old Man.—Were it not for the wheeziness I should be inclined to attribute the inability of your Yorkshire to stand upright on his perch to an overfat condition of body. Continue to feed on Canary seed only as a staple, and in addition give half a teaspoonful—not more—of summer rape twice a week, and every second day half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it. Give a scrap of watercress twice a week when no frost is about, and substitute a little sweet juicy fruit at other times. Keep the cage clean and well strewn with gritty sand, and see the bird is not subjected to any draughts or extreme variations of temperature. Do not give cold baths in cold, chilly weather until it is better. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn for one day only, and follow this up by twenty drops of whiskey, ten of oxymel of squills, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and afterwards every second day until bird is better. On the alternate days after the first week give twenty drops of chemical food for a week or two.

Cause and Effect.

W.E.B.—I should not like to say whether the ammonia you put in the bird's water was the cause of the feathers coming off without more particulars. Perhaps you put too much in at once. But, in any case, I see not the least necessity for dosing the bird with powerful drugs when you might attain your object by simpler and safer means. See reply to "Old Man," and feed and treat your bird as therein advised, with the exception that you should give the sponge cake twice a week only, and omit the cod liver oil. Instead of the medicines there advised give the following: The first three consecutive days six drops of syrup of buckthorn, and afterwards twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, every second day for a week, or until the sneezing has disappeared. On the alternate days you may give twelve drops of chemical food for a fortnight. Follow the same instructions given to "Old Man" respecting draughts, baths, and temperature. The former especially, as I am inclined to think that exposure to draught is the cause of the trouble.

To Distinguish Sex.

C.H.F.—An object-lesson from an experienced fancier would perhaps best enable you to distinguish the sex of Canaries before they commence singing, or, failing that, you might endeavour to make a lesson for yourself by comparing an undoubted cock side by side with an undoubted hen. The cock you will find more bold and pushful generally, his "tweet" more musical and defiant, his bearing altogether more dominant, and the outline of the lower breast to the under tail coverts more gradually curved, on account of the lower part of the abdomen being rather more prominent. This is in comparison with the softer appearance, harsher voice, and, at this time, sometimes spiteful bearing of the hen. If you catch them and blow up the feathers on the abdomen you will find the vent of the cock rather more prominent and pointed than that of the hen. You would find the difference fully described and illustrated in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., from this office.

The "Open Sesame."

P.T., Islington—Alack! Simple as the task might seem, I am utterly unable to give you any set form of rules under the pretext of telling you how "to make hen Canaries into good feeders." The fortunate one who solves this difficulty will confer a priceless benefit upon fanciers generally, and do good in his generation far above the ordinary run. As a matter of fact, a non-feeder, or a hen that feeds for the first few days only, is, in the vast majority of cases, incorrigible, and unless of sufficient value to make it worth while keeping foster parents to rear her young, is scarcely worth troubling with. In numbers of cases the non-feeding is simply the effect of improper or injudicious management of more or less long standing; maybe, improper feeding all through the winter and spring, or only from tho time the birds are put up for mating. In a smaller proportion of cases the cause is undue disturbance or interference with the nesting arrangements of shy birds. The following few general rules should reduce the trouble to a minimum next season. From this time onwards until next March, let the birds have plenty of room for exercise, and limit the staple diet to plain Canary seed only, which may be given in unlimited quantities. Once or twice a week give a small piece of bread sopped in milk, and about as often a pinch of rape seed, and twice a week a scrap of green-food when quite free from frost, or, as a substitute, a bit of sweet juicy fruit. If kept in a cold room, a little extra rape may be given, and a pinch of hemp added on two other days each week, or hemp one day, and a few crushed oats the next. Use egg-food sparingly, if at all. During the winter the bread and milk will form an efficient substitute. But use it sparingly next spring, and as soon as the hens have begun to incubate, discontinue it altogether, and revert again to the simple diet until the young are due to hatch. For more details, and also how to deal with hens that cease feeding after the first few days, watch our columns, wherein you will find lots of information at the proper time.

The Lowest Temperature.

"Mikado," Falmouth.—This is a question which depends solely upon the class of birds kept, the way they have been reared, and quite a number of other side issues, so that it is practically impossible to give a hard and fast rule to govern the temperature at which the birds should be kept. With highly-bred birds, which have been brought up in warm rooms, a temperature of fifty degrees would be about low enough to ensure their well-being; whilst, on the other hand, a hardy variety, which had been accustomed to nothing but the normal temperature, will endure anything between thirty and forty degrees without any signs of discomfort. Indeed, it is no uncommon thing for such birds to remain in open air aviaries and withstand many degrees below freezing point without harmful results. I have myself had good types of Norwich and Yorkshires which never turned a feather during spells of frost when the ice had to be thawed in the drinkers daily, and scores of other breeders could give similar records, and probably concerning every breed we have. All this, however, is merely stating facts, and perhaps you only wish to know the lowest temperature at which you should keep your birds if you use heat at all—you do not make your wishes very clear. If that is the case, and your birds have not previously been kept in a high temperature, all you need do is to prevent the heat dropping below forty degrees—say, keep it somewhere between forty and forty-five. But if they have been accustomed to a higher temperature you may find it necessary to keep them at about fifty, as mentioned already. Let the appearance of the birds be your guide. If they show signs of suffering from the cold at forty-five, raise the heat and keep it within a degree or two either side of fifty.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

A Muling Strain.

W. Griffin.—It would answer excellently if you paired a stout built buff pink-eyed Yorkshire type cock bird with the sib-bred hen, and a stout bodied yellow pink-eyed Yorkshire cock, with the yellow pink-eyed Yorks. hen. Cocks bred from a clear strain are what you want, and not birds which come from heavily marked ancestors—or near ancestors, rather. If both lots throw young which prove good when tested, then you could mate the progeny from the two couples together to the best advantage in the future, using the biggest, best-headed birds, as far as ever you can, and keeping the jonque blood well to the front, also taking care to mate up each season a good percentage of cock birds which have pink eyes. The best outcross, for size, should be a well-built, good headed, fine feathered yellow Lancashire Plainhead hen, pairing her to your biggest buff pink-eyed cock—if you have a big buff the produce of double-yellows, that is the bird to choose. You ought to get the cock Yorkie fairly cheap, as type is not a particular object (don't sacrifice size, however), but a Lancs. hen, such as described, will cost you at least £2 to £3. Get her from a good, known strain, for birds from such have very little dark blood in their veins.

A Jay and a Magpie.

Betty.—As you have a fondness for large birds such as these, you will find these two species make excellent pets, and, as they can both be fed the same way, give you but the minimum of trouble on that score. A very simple and economical method of feeding is to utilise table scraps largely. As a stock food, you could use broken-up dog biscuits, or puppy cakes, or "Melox" (or gamo meal), with coarse grissel—say two parts of either of the former to one part of the latter (by measure). Moisten with hot water, giving it crumbly moist, and mixing with it table scraps, cooked meat, and potatoes, greens, gravy, etc. Give a few trapped mice, young and old Sparrows and the like (even young frogs, if you can capture them), but not over much raw meat. You will find them very accommodating in the matter of food. Eggs (raw and cooked), acorns, beechnast, nuts (cracked) of various kinds, peas, berries, fruit, worms, beetles, grubs, and butter are other things they will eat. A good stock cage for a Jay or Magpie, would not be less than four feet long (five would be vastly better), three feet high, and two feet wide. The Christmas day menu of my own pet Magpie may interest you. For breakfast he had a piece of boiled haddock, for dinner he finished off the "drumstick" of a Turkey and had a mouthful of plum pudding (with brandy sauce, of course), for tea he cleaned out a salmon tin, and had a slice of cake, and in between he stowed away a good quantity of his stock food (melox, mixed with the day-old insectivorous food left by my small soft-bills). He is as plump and saucy as a Michaelmas goose.

Skylark Off Song.

M. H.—Of course, there is always the dreadful possibility that your bird may not really be a cock bird at all, in which case no line of feeding will suffice to bring it into song. Your feeding at the present time is not particularly generous. The stock food you mention is very fine value for the price charged for it, but needs supplementing now and again with other things. You could occasionally make up the daily supply by adding a teaspoonful of the "German paste"; also by mixing in half a hard-boiled, new-laid egg, finely minced. A feed of mealworms now and again is also advisable. For further information on feeding, see reply to "A. Dean" this week. It would be of no use to put the bird into the Blackbird's cage, containing perches, for a Skylark is not a perching bird. You cannot beat a big cage of the "runner" type, taking care to keep it free from insect pests. The latest book on Britishers is the "British Bird Manual," published at the offices of this paper, price 2s. complete. You should find in that all the information you want.

Managing a Bullfinch.

Piper.—As a stock mixture for Bullfinches at present you could hardly better Canary and teazle three pints each, linseed, summer rape, and charlock, half a pint of each. In a finger drawer (or separate dish), however, the following would need to be given, in addition, to provide the necessary variety:—A small dessert-spoonful of sunflower seed or saf-flower seed, every day, except when giving hemp, of which each bird may have a teaspoonful once a week, say, for a Sunday treat. In a tin you could keep a mixture of niger two parts, maw three parts, and give a pinch twice a week. Then you have thistle and dandelion seed and wild seed mixture, small feeds of which may also be occasionally given. Thus your bird can be provided with a "grateful and comforting" change in the menu daily. Hemp is a seed often unjustly abused; still, it is quite true it should not be given too freely to Bullfinches. For green foods give any of the following, according to season:—Shepherd's purse, dandelion, groundsel tops, chickweed, flowering grasses, watercress, lettuce, rape or Canary seedlings, etc. The seeding kinds may be freely given. Bullies are very fond of many berries (black, privet, etc.), also fruit, and the buds of fruit trees and bushes; on such things they feed largely when wild. Charlock, dock, thistles, hard-heads, and many other wild seeding plants, these birds are also very fond of, likewise mealworms. Treated on the above lines, your pet should thrive splendidly and moult a good colour.

Mealworm Breeding.

H. W. A., Toronto.—The writer was quite right; I certainly have many, many times explained my own method of trying to breed mealworms. I must say, however, that it is a very tedious business, to get a box going satisfactorily taking a long time. Briefly, the process is as follows:—A large tin (a long one is better than a deep one) is filled three-parts full with alternate layers of coarse sacking (cut in pieces to fit—once folded is best) and bran. Holes are bored with a brad-awl (for ventilation) at the top, right round the tin—two rows, if possible. A pint, or quart, or more, of mealworms should be turned into it, regulating the quantity by the depth of your own pocket. If you can get a supply of beetles with the worms, it facilitates the proper stocking of the tin; but these are obtainable only during the hot weather. The receptacle must be kept in a warm spot (especially during cold weather), this being one of the secrets of success. Some people put bones, dead birds, meat, etc., in their mealworm boxes. I never do so myself, as the boxes become offensive then. A handful of very finely crushed dog biscuit can now and again be placed under the top layer of sacking (always manage to have a piece at top of the tin). The supply of bran should also be renewed from time to time. Disturb the mealworms as little as possible, however, for from at least nine to twelve months. Occasionally (and always do it in the winter), the contents at the top of the box, and all the pieces of sacking, must be transferred to a fresh tin, which should be prepared in the same way as tin No. 1. The "bottoms" of tin No. 1 should then be run through a fine sieve, and the rubbish thrown away.

Brevities.

Sesame Seed (C. K. E.).—I do not know sesame seed by any other name. I get my own from one of the largest advertisers of seeds and foods using our columns. It is very cheap, costing but a few pence per pound. I "got on the track" of it by observing how eagerly my Finches sought out a certain seed in a certain well-known packet Finch mixture; the name of this seed I found was sesame. I have used it for years now, and with satisfactory results.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

African Waxbill in Aviary Cage.

Waxbill.—Waxbills are shy breeders in captivity, but you should have good probability of success with a single pair in your large aviary cage. Zebra or Golden-breasted and St. Helena Waxbills are the readiest to nest in captivity. If your cage is not less than 5 feet long and 2 feet high, a pair of each might be tried with success; hang up, say, half a dozen nesting receptacles as far apart as possible, such as cocoanut husks (specially wired for Finches and Waxbills), Hartz travelling cage and small boxes. Well line the back of cage with twiggy branches, and insert one or two basket nests in these. Supply long hay and grass, the latter both fresh and half dried. Do not be inquisitive as to their nesting arrangements, but leave them to themselves as much as possible; at least half the top of cage should be covered in.

Greenfood for Aviary Birds.

W. Shone, Jun.—Cabbage and turnip leaves are quite wholesome to such species (including those you name) as will eat them, always providing they are sound. This applies to all greenfood, even grass in flower. Further, all outdoor greenfood (except such as grows in the aviary, and this you must leave to the birds to take or leave alone) is in a more or less unsound condition. During the winter season I depend entirely on the so-called "French" lettuce, which is on sale at most greengrocers'; it is tender and wholesome for all species, but is rather costly at the present time. With the root stood in a little water it will keep fresh for three days. Failing all other greenfood, ripe apple is a good substitute, and appreciated by most species. I cannot too strongly emphasise the fact, that greenfood at all seasons, should only be given in a thoroughly sound and sweet condition.

What Bird is It?

Curates.—I cannot say exactly what species you have. So far as your description goes, you have apparently a Red-faced (also called Red-headed) Lovebird. But if you will send me its approximate length in inches from tip of beak to end of tail, also give separately length of tail, and any other portions of colouring omitted from present description, I can give you a definite reply. All the items of diet you name are permissible, but half the bulk of the seed mixture should consist of canary and white millet seeds, the other kinds mixed forming the other half. A millet spray would be an agreeable and wholesome change given as often as you please. The temperature of an ordinary living-room will be ample, but all birds must be protected from draught. Its method of sleeping is quite natural.

Breeding Waxbills, etc.

K.D.C.—(1) I never say no as to such cases, but it is very improbable that Waxbills will breed in an ordinary Canary breeding cage. Under any conditions they are shy breeders in captivity; but though improbable, it is certainly not hopeless, or impossible. To make success more probable, give them as large a cage as you can conveniently manage. Long-tailed Grassfinches and Crimson Finches, I know have bred this year (1908) in cages, and I know of several instances in which Blue-breasted Waxbills, Cordon Bleus and Painted Finches have nested under such conditions, but young were not reared. In Germany many species of Foreign birds have been bred in cages. (2) I can only repeat that even in large aviaries Budgerigars are dangerous company for Finches; even where adult birds are not interfered with, many nestlings are maimed or killed as soon as they leave the nest. At the same time, I am bound to say that I so kept them for several years, but in the end their mischievous nature asserted itself, and losses were numerous till I separated them. Other aviculturists still mix them with other birds with varying success. To sum up, the risk is always there, and immunity for a time is merely a prelude to the inevitable disaster. The decision must lie with yourself.

Orange-cheeked Waxbills.

"Imprimatur."—Your bird really requires no other treatment than to be caged separately till it has renewed its plumage. You could make its drinking water just saline with Epsom salts for one day, and for about a month lightly colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food; this would help matters, as would also crushing some cuttlefish to about the size of millet seed and mixing a little among its seed, and also scattering a little over sand tray. Waxbills often appear to act as if they had a mission, once one of their number becomes bald, to keep it so. The only remedy is separating. Keep the isolated bird in one of your rooms where the temperature is fairly even, and in due course its plumage will be quite renewed. Lightly anoint the bare parts with clean vaseline; this will also help, but do not make its plumage greasy.

Blue-fronted Amazon Gaping.

C. Boultbee.—An Amazon, once it has been got on to proper diet, should have its water left in the cage continuously, unless it overdrinks, which it does not when healthy. Spray or dash its nostrils with diluted glyco-thymoline, using a camel hair brush for the purpose; the brush must be well cleansed, and a fresh portion of the solution used for each occasion. Continue this twice daily till the running ceases. It will be well to continue the Dinneford's magnesia with three days between each dose, so long as the voidings do not become watery. Also continue the Parrish's chemical food. Diet the bird as follows.—Seed mixture, canary seed, oats, wheat, dari, maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds, equal parts of each, well mix, and keep a supply continually in the cage. Every other day give a little boiled maize, draining away all water, and putting over it about 15 drops of Parrish's chemical food before supplying to the bird. Note: It only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be kept strictly clean. Ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuits, and greenfood may all be given, but do not give any tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. If the bird is breathing heavily, try one or two doses of the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine in equal parts: dose, one part mixture to three parts water; offer in a spoon two or three times a day. The bird must be kept warm, and strictly out of draught.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct 2s. 6d.; analysis, 2½s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Crested Canary (G. M. P.).—All the organs of this bird, lungs, liver, bowels and kidneys, were in an unhealthy and inflamed condition, indicative of septicæmia, or blood poisoning.

Blackcap (A. Allen).—Inflammation of liver and lungs. General wasting away.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Two Parrakeets (J. Hume).—The whole correspondence from the man reads like pure bluff, and we should think you would be well advised to put the matter at once into the hands of the police in his district. We have stopped him advertising in our columns.

Members' Show Report (R. A. Brown).—It is usual for secretaries to write out the full report of a members' show. We have a great deal of work to attend to in this office, and cannot always find two or three spare hours to spend in writing out lengthy prize lists. Hence such matters must necessarily wait until pressure of other work permits of attention being paid to them. We regret any delay, of course.

Many Thanks to J. Revell, R. Hanford, G. P. Morgan, and others for photographs, cuttings, news items, etc.

A Suggestion (John Fawell).—We will give your suggestion careful consideration, but rather doubt its practicability.

A Show in Canada (J. W. Sharp).—We hope to publish your interesting letter in an early issue; thanks for sending some along.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

DENHOLME and Thornton C.B.S. held the last of their members' shows for season 1908 on December 19th, Mr. W. Ormonroyd officiating as judge on the 56 birds staged, and his awards being very well received. The winners of specials for the season's competitions were Messrs. F. Ingham, J. Clayton, H. Mitchell, and E. Ingham.

QUEENSBURY members are having a show and judging competition this Friday (New Year's Day), the birds being staged at 10 a.m. to enable the members and friends to pass a pleasant hour in company of fellow fanciers. No doubt the differences of opinion in placing the winners will keep all present in excellent spirits!

SHIPLEY O.S. had a good attendance at their pie supper and washing exhibition held on the 22nd ult. The host and hostess at their headquarters, the Prince of Wales Hotel, provided an excellent repast, which was greatly enjoyed by those assembled. After tables had been cleared, preparations for washing were put in hand, Mr. H. H. Towers in the chair opening with a few remarks, after which Mr. S. Dean washed two birds. Then the company had the pleasure of seeing one put through by Mr. W. A. Cowgill, who was in attendance. Thus they were able to see two methods of handling and scrubbing. The last of the four birds brought was put through by one of their own members in first-class style.

A FEW questions were asked, to some of which were given the opinions of both Messrs. Dean and Cowgill, plenty of soap and plenty of water being advised by both parties, also getting the soap well in and then getting it well out. Afterwards one of the members, to lend a little variety to the entertainment, went home for a bird, and returned with one of the genus Grosbeak, noted for its biting propensities and for being a sticker when once it gets a hold. Chance, however, is a fine thing, and Mr. Dean put it through its paces without giving it the option of a bite. A vote of thanks to both gentlemen brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

BOXING DAY proved very enjoyable to the large majority of fanciers, members' shows being greatly in evidence. The Wibsey boys brought out considerably over 100 birds at their show, and they had Mr. J. Wilman to officiate as judge. Great Horton members staged between 70 and 80 birds, the novices as usual showing well. Bradford West had a nice day, and they had Mr. R. Sntcliffe, of Windhill, to place the cards. Mr. W. A. Cowgill travelled to Wakefield to place the prizes for the last of the season's competitions; the running throughout has been very close at this society's shows. Windhill, Tong, Dewsbury, East Bowling, and others also had good exhibitions.

THE LATEST SPRING-NET TRAP.

SIR,—I myself would be equally as pleased as "Bolton Novico" if Mr. H. J. Hawes could give a few notes on the making of some of his appliances which he uses for bird-catching, more especially his new pattern spring-trap for Softbills. In conclusion, I feel sure that in thanking both Mr. Hawes for his most instructive and interesting lecture for the benefit of amateurs, and CAGE BIRDS for publishing same, I shall be expressing the opinion of all would-be amateur bird catchers. I wish both prosperity in the coming Now Year.

SPRING TRAP.

SIR,—In reply to "A. Bolton Novice," I should indeed be very pleased to give anyone as much as possible of the knowledge that I myself have acquired, but Bolton and Forest Gate being so very far apart, I'm afraid that in this case that privilege is denied me. The operation, viz., making trap, is rather complicated, but these spring net traps of the design illustrated are advertised from time to time in CAGE BIRDS, and perhaps "Bolton Novice" would be just as successful with one ready made. I am glad to hear of the kind interest taken in my lecture by your many readers.

H. J. HAWES.

SOME POINTS ABOUT SALES AND EXCHANGES.

SIR,—I was much interested in reading "Welshman's" letter two weeks ago in CAGE BIRDS, and consider his remarks upon the question of sending money for birds without a sufficient guarantee as to the honesty of the advertiser, should be read, marked, and inwardly digested by all would-be purchasers, especially those who have just entered the Fancy by associating themselves with some cage bird society. I should especially like to second Welshman's warning against those persons who use such high-sounding adjectives in describing the "virtues" of their birds. Having purchased in my time many birds through advertisements I have occasionally been "had," when inclined to be rather speculative (although naturally of a cautious temperament). For example, some time ago I was in want of a good Bullfinch, and saw an advertisement of Bullies, with one extra good one, fit for the Palace, rare size, and colour, etc., etc. I sent for this bird, and when it arrived I was simply disgusted, and wrote to the seller as follows: "Sir,—Bullfinch arrived safely. I have had many Bullfinches in my time, but this is the very worst I ever had in my birdroom. If it is any use to you, you can have it by paying carriage back. You can make what use you like of this testimonial." I need scarcely say that I had no reply to my letter. My advice, then, to the novice is: Be sure of your man before you part with your money, and if you have any doubt upon the question, make yourself safe by taking advantage of the deposit system.

BIRD KEEPING UNDER DIFFICULTIES IN SOUTH AFRICA.

SIR,—Thinking it might afford some little amusement as well as instruction, I thought I would make an effort to relate my little experience. During the Boer War, I was serving with the Grenadier Guards on April 27th, 1902. Along with half-a-dozen more of our regiment I was sent to relieve a party of Royal Fusiliers in a block-house not far from a place called Kromhoojhte, which, if I remember right, is on the Port Elizabeth line. One of these Fusiliers was the possessor of a pair of birds, and as soldiers always have sufficient to encumber them whilst moving from place to place, the birds had perforce to remain behind. The birds, therefore, needed a new owner, so I promised him I would attend to their little wants to the best of my ability, which, of course, I was delighted to do. They proved to be the most charming little pets I ever had the pleasure of possessing. I can scarcely remember exactly what the birds were like; but I will try from memory to give a rough description, and should there be any error, I shall esteem it a favour if some one would be kind enough to point it out to me. In size and shape they somewhat resemble our Blue Tit, being perhaps a trifle larger. The bills and legs were black, the bills being heavy, somewhat similar to that of our common House Sparrow. The general colour was dark brown and black, with a little grey on either the breasts or wings, but of this I am not certain; but the heads were jet black, and it was because of this we ourselves christened them "Blackheads." Their song (for they both sang well) was not unlike that of our Brown Linnet, but, of course, was much sweeter to us under the circumstances, as it was the only bird music we heard. Their food consisted of mixed seeds, for which we paid 1s. per packet of about a pint, comprised chiefly of Canary with a little white and red millet, and a few others of which I did not know the names. I will now give an account of the home they were kept in. When I took charge of them the structure in which they were confined could scarcely be called a cage. I say this with no disrespect to the man who made it, as one cannot get all one desires in time of warfare; so I suppose he had to make it as best he could under the circumstances. It was composed of several pieces of wood of varying sizes and thicknesses, pieces of tin, cardboard, wire, string, etc. How it had been put together and remained so was a point which puzzled not a few of us, for it was made in such an odd manner. For instance, he had got one piece of wood, say an inch thick, and then would come a piece of tin off a bullybeef can; then a piece of cardboard and another piece of wood, thinner and shorter altogether than the first piece; and so on, until it would take a very clever person to name the shape. Again, the upright bars were bent first at about ½-inch from the ends at right angles, then driven in top and bottom, cross bars being out of the question altogether. The nails used were at least two inches long, and, of course, had split the wood wherever they had been driven in. When the stock of wire had become exhausted, string had formed a rather straighter substitute. As soon as I saw this I was determined to try and better their lodgings, for I thought they were worthy of a little trouble and patience being bestowed upon them if they were worth keeping. So I set about it as soon as possible. First I found a bit of wood of something like size and thickness suitable for the bottom of the cage; then I collected a quantity of waste ends of barbed wire which had been used in the erection of fences, entanglements, etc. Then, with the aid of bnt a clumsy clasp knife and a pair of wire nippers, together with a little patience, I began the somewhat tedious task of making a better cage. Of course, the spikes were first removed; then the wire had to be straightened (to those who may think the latter a simple job, I would say, let them try it). I commenced the work on May 2nd, having it complete by May 7th. So I was occupied on six days; though, of conrse, I was never at it for more than a few hours on one day, as other things had to be attended to. The cage was, roughly speaking, 2ft. by 1ft., all wire except the bottom. Some may ask how were the holes bored, and the wood got to the required thickness for cross-bars? The knife had to play many parts, such as a spokeshave, a marker, a tin opener, etc.; so I had to shave the wood down a little at a time. The bradawl I made by bending a piece of wire and then twisting the longer end round the shorter one, to form a handle or grip, afterwards sharpening the end by rubbing it on a piece of hard rock. I may mention that all who saw the cage when it was finished pronounced it to be a regular marvel, and I myself was quite proud of the work which had turned out far better than I had anticipated; so it brought the old saying true: "One never knows what he can do until he tries." Of course, proper seed and water pots were never dreamed of, but the seed was scattered on the bottom of the cage, whilst the water was placed in a tin which had previously contained some eatables, perhaps shrimp or bloater paste; but, of course, this was well washed out after being scoured with sand and water. On several occasions I went out accompanied by a chum, for the purpose of bird catching, but I never seemed to be blessed with much luck in that direction, though we fared better with a different sort of game, that of catching a small animal similar to a squirrel, which we called mongoose, but, of course, as part of his diet consists of the feathered tribe, we have no taste for him.

PROPOSED DINNER TO LECTURERS IN LONDON.

SIR,—Once again wonld I bring before the notice of the Secretaries of London Cage Bird Societies my proposal respecting the above, published in your issue dated November 13th, extracts from which are printed hereunder:—"I am wondering whether the various societies in London would care to join together in giving the many gentlemen who favour us with their services voluntarily, in either giving us papers or lectures, a dinner one evening? They put themselves to a deal of trouble and inconvenience, come any distance required, and give us a full evening's enjoyment of the knowledge which it has taken them years to gain, all for nothing, and I feel we cannot be too thankful to them, and the least we can do is to get them together one night, and publicly thank them To save encroaching on the funds of the societies, a very good plan would be to ask each member to contribute a small sum towards defraying the cost." After reading the above, I think all members of the Cage Bird Fancy will agree that the proposal is a worthy one, and the least we can do, taking into consideration the many benefits we derive from their services. I shall be delighted to get into correspondence with all who are willing to support the suggestion, and I ask that all secretaries shall interest themselves in the matter by placing the subject before their members at an early date. I feel sure the Fancy in general will be delighted to have an opportunity of publicly thanking them.

A BACHELOR AMONGST HIS BIRDS.

SIR,—I am writing you a few notes on my birds, which I think may interest some of your many readers who, like myself, love birds, but (again like myself) are unable to keep a great number. I have six at present, just enough for me to attend to properly, under present conditions, as I am single, and not so lucky as some of my brother fanciers who have good wives to attend to their pets while they themselves are at work. I am thinking that under similar conditions my number of birds would be sixty instead of six. Anyway, as I have to do some of my own cooking and housework, I content myself with a few birds, just enough to be able to give careful attention to them. The first I will mention of them is a hen Lesser Spotted Woodpecker (Dendrocopus minor), hand reared out of a nest of six. It is a most interesting and clean bird in a cage of a Softbill. I feed it on a softbill food and mealworms. It is also very fond of a piece of apple or pear. I keep it in a wooden cage, which was new, or nearly new, when I first put it there. I can tell you that through pecking it the bird has altered the looks of it. One day when cleaning its cage out the bird settled on my finger, and I teased it with my thumb; it then gave me an exhibition of its pecking powers, and put a little force behind it, too. You can easily tell the cock for the hen in this species, as the cock has a red patch on the head which, in the hen, is absent. Another of my pets is a Goldfinch, one I claimed at the Crystal Palace Show in 1907; it is a caught bird, but very tame indeed, and we are the best of pals. I should have to be very hard up indeed before I broke our friendship. He loves to take a thistle head from a my fingers, and nothing ever seems to trouble him. My third bird, I will mention, is a Yellowhammer. I had two brought to me in a nest, and I set to work to hand-rear them, being successful with one; but what a time they are before they peck for themselves! I had them on July 21st; it was August 24th before they pecked soft food, and about September 3rd before the one I have got on seed. However, I do not regret the trouble he has been, for he has made a most tame and delightful cage bird, and will eat from my mouth. I feed him mainly on Canary seed and soft food, also a little mixed seed, with two or three oats and mealworms each day. He is very fond of a piece of long grass stem to tug at with his beak. My fourth bird is a hen Bullfinch, which I hand-reared from a bare nestling, and like other females I could mention, fancies she is boss. She comes at me open-mouthed, but will kiss me for an apple pip and be friends. I am afraid I am killing her with kindness, as she is very fat. She is fond of dock seeds and privet berries, also a piece of ripe apple and a mealworm. She enjoys cutting the poor thing up and eating it bit by bit. They are easy birds to hand rear, and are not long before they look after themselves. I had to take these Bullfinches when very young indeed, on account of work having to be done to the hedge they were in. I took them on June 22nd. On July the 6th they commenced to peck soft food; on July 11th they commenced to peck soaked seed, and on July 15th they could manage to feed themselves on hard seed. The Bullfinch makes a lovely pet. My fifth bird is a Linnet, loved by so many people on account of their sweet song. Mine is a wild caught bird, but I have got it tame, and it will eat chickweed from my hand. My sixth and last bird is a Sparrow (Passer domesticus). I can fancy some of CAGE BIRDS readers doing a smile when they see this. I had it brought to me on September 7th, and hand-reared it for a day or so. It had partly white wings and tail. It has moulted, and is a hen; but its wings look rather pretty, and she is just as fierce as most of her brethren. I might mention that I had my attention drawn to a young cock Sparrow singing in an apple tree on October 16th: it sang very well indeed. It is the only one I have ever heard sing, and I would not have believed it was a Sparrow had I not seen it. I should be very pleased to see some letters in CAGE BIRDS from readers giving a few notes on their birds. I might say I have received most valuable information from CAGE BIRDS, and wish it every success.

A VISIT TO THE FENS IN SEARCH OF EGGS.

SIR,—In your issue of Dec. 19, I read a letter from Mr. T. H. Kinch, respecting a visit of a London naturalist to the Fen district. Evidently that naturalist found a birds' paradise, according to the birds found. Anyhaw there is one matter that I think Mr. Kinch was doubtful on, that is, do Hedge Accentors breed more than once a year? He thought not. I have found them build three times. I have a hox hedge 70 yards long, with a dozen nests at least at a time; and from close observation I find they build, lay and hatch the number of times as stated.

A CRESTED CANARY CLUB MATTER.

SIR,—"Interested's" heading clearly indicates the matter is not of public interest, and to relieve your already overtaxed space I beg to say he will obtain all the information he desires on making application to me direct.

JOHN TYSON.

(We appreciate Mr. Tyson's consideration, though as we have never allowed the question of "space" to prevent the bringing to light of matters concerning the Club which he himself has been good enough to send to us, so have we no desire to allow it to prevent "Interested" being given through our columns the information he desired as to who has possession of one of the Club's cups.—EDITOR.)

SHOW BIRDS & MISSING CLAWS.

SIR,—I beg to ask a small space in your valuable CAGE BIRDS for the following remarks to the Fancy on a matter which I think is a little misleading. I have a good outstanding specimen of a yellow Border Fancy cock, but minus one claw. This was thrown aside at Biggar Show this year by Mr. McMillan, the judge, as not being complete. Now when reading the report of St. Albans Show in your issue of December 19th, I saw Mr. C. A. House, in a class of 16, awarded a British Goldie, which was minus two claws, the highest honours. I should like to see a proper ruling, either one way or the other, come to on this question; also to read the opinions of a few fanciers. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

CLAWS.

WHAT BIRDS WERE THEY?

SIR,—Taking one of my customary "birdy" walks one day at the end of October or beginning of November this year (1908), I observed a pair of Buntings that rose up in front of me from the embankment which runs by a watercourse. Flying 50 or 60 yards in advanoe, they would drop on the ground, then search for food until I came within 10 yards or so; then repeat the process, generally first flying ahead to a little mound of soil, thence both going together. This occurred several times until they rose up and flew away to the left over some fields. I sought them again three days after, but was unable to find them. I had not seen such before. I have since been making what search I was able in our library, but fail to find anything like them. I should be glad to hear some account of them and what they are. As far as my memory serves me—I am sorry I did not make a note—they were of an even grey, of a slightly chocolate shade, wing covers, back, neck and head, white rump and under tail, belly lighter than the back; beak very dark, eyes marked with black, wing flights—primary—and tail black. It was about the size of a Siberian Goldfinch, very neat and compact, and stood well on its legs, the colour of which I did not note. I have looked many times since, but found no further trace of them. I am not sure they were Buntings.

A LOSS IN TRANSIT.

SIR,—In your issue of the 19th ult., appears a letter from Mr. J. A. Simpson respecting the loss of one of his Yorks Canaries. I would ask, did he show the dead bird to any railway official? I will relate a little experience somewhat showing the ingenious way the railway try to "tire you out"; evidently time, postage, etc,, count as nothing to them so long as they do not pay, and from the various letters in CAGE BIRDS relating to loss of birds, the senders do not seem to recover the price of their birds. On the 25th March last I wroto to a certain dealer for two Goldfinches. Well, the birds arrived, and, poor countryman am I, in his estimation, I received two Linnets, one alive and one dead. I wrote to him and returned birds; I hope he appreciated the dead one. After threatening him with the majesty of the law, I suppose two genuine Goldies were sent off, but on the cage arriving at the station, on the 12th April, the birds had "vanished," and I received a post card from the sub-agent stating "Contents gone." I immediately made a claim, declining to receive cage or pay carriage, also writing to the dealer. Not hearing anything from the railway company, I wrote to another agent whom I was told to apply to, drawing his attention to my claim. After considerable delay, I received a post card dated 16th June, referring me to another agent. Well, I wrote to him, and after more delay I received a memo. from the station master, dated June 22nd, that the matter was "in consideration," and asking me to wait a week or so. Having Job's patience, I waited nearly two months. Not hearing anything, I wrote again then, and received another postcard from another "agent," dated 1st August, stating that the subject "should have attention." Another long delay, when I wrote again, and received a letter from the last agent, stating "the matter was still under inquiry, and that a definite reply would be sent as early as possible"; that was the 18th August. Job's patience not being quite exhausted, I waited until the 9th November. Then I entered a plaint in the County Court. On the 17th Nov., I received a notice that the claim had been paid into court, and also received a letter explaining the delay in settling the claim. What I want to point out to my birdy friends is to insist that the dealer holds the railway companies signature that the birds are sent as represented by him. Then the onus lays with the dealer and the railway company; that they can fight out. This being a genuine case of "drawing a high tooth," it may be useful to readers of CAGE BIRDS. If at first you don't succeed, try, try and try again—until you do.

NEW SOCIETY FOR NEWARK AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—I am pleased to inform you that we are looking forward to having a good meeting of bird lovers on January 5th in the Ossington Coffee Palace at 7.45 p.m. It has already been proposed that a Cage Bird Society be formed at Newark, and according to the number of supporters and promised members we are hoping to have a good time. It is very pleasing to have the support from ladies and gentlemen of our town. I am sorry that there is not a judge here the same as our neighbours (Nottingham and Grantham, etc.) have; it is a great attraction when such a gentleman as our old friend, Mr. W. P. Barnes, undertakes to give a washing exhibition at a meeting like this. We shall be more than pleased to see such an exhibition given; it helps not only the novice but everyone, and makes a meeting what it ought to be. All interested in cage pets are invited to attend.

FORWARDING BIRDS ON FROM BROMSGROVE SHOW.

SIR,—I can sympathise with Mr. H. Cotton, as I also sent a bird to Bromsgrove Show, to be sent on to another show held on the following day, but instead of going to St. Albans he was delivered at my door when he should have been on show there. On enquiry at the Midland Railway I learn that the bird did not leave Bromsgrove until the morning he should have been at St. Albans. This is my first year at exhibiting, and it is these things which discourage beginners and help to make short entries.

H. LEWIS.

SIR,—In the last issue of CAGE BIRDS I had to make a complaint re my birds not being sent on from Bromsgrove Show to Ludlow. I find they were addressed to the secretary at Ludlow, but owing to someone at Bromsgrove putting a pasted label with "From Bromsgrove, to Pay" exactly over the word Ludlow, someone then reversed the label; hence the birds arrived at Overton-on-Dee instead of Ludlow—a chapter of accidents. I am glad to find it was not through any neglect of the officials at Bromsgrove Show. Ought the railway company to pay me my entries—4s. 6d.—or the porter who labelled the hamper shutting out the word Ludlow? I have sent the label to the stationmaster to try and find out who pasted the ticket on and who reversed the label, and to see if he can get my entry money.

SAD MISHAP IN A GRIMSBY BIRDROOM.

SIR,—I regret to have to report a sad mishap to the stock of birds, consisting of 40 Norwich Plainheads, belonging to our respected hon. secretary, Mr. W. H. Moore, Junr., which occurred this (Monday) afternoon, Dec. 28th, resulting in the loss of 37 birds (three have since recovered) through, I believe, gas poisoning. The stock comprised some well-known winners, including a grand unflighted buff hen, winner at Grimsby, Leek, Hull, and elsewhere; also several other winners and some grand stock birds. It is very disheartening to so young a fancier, and I am sure all fanciers will join with me in sympathising with him over his sad loss.

YORKSHIRE BOWL AT BRISTOL F.A. 1907 SHOW.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. G. T. H. Maggs' letter which appeared in CAGE BIRDS, Dec. 12th. In the first place we wish to deal with an extract from that letter, which is as follows:—That Messrs. Shearn and Owens's bird awarded first was bred by one of those gentlemen, sold by him to the other, and shown by that other in his own name singly at many shows, the last time being at Cardiff only one week before our own show. Now, sir, we wish to state emphatically that the above is a deliberate flagrant falsehood, and we believe written with the object of conveying another falsehood to the readers of CAGE Birds, namely, fraudulent practice on the part of Shearn and Owens. The facts of the case are as follows:—The bird in question has only on two occasions been exhibited singly; quite a difference between two and many. We will give £50 to any charitable institution the Editor chooses to name for every show that the bird in question was shown other than the two herein-before mentioned. As to Cardiff Show, which Mr. Maggs says was the last time shown singly, and tries to emphasize very forcibly by saying "only one week before our own show." For the benefit of your readers we quote one or two instances from the Cardiff catalogue, November 27th, 1907: Class 16, extra 2nd, Shearn and Owens; Class 17, third, Shearn and Owens; Class 29, first, Shearn and Owens. Now, sir, we think we have demonstrated very clearly to your readers that what appears in print from the pen of Mr. Maggs, is, to put it mildly, not to be relied upon. There are one or two other items in Mr. Maggs's letter which we should like to have dealt with: Firstly, Shearn and Owens's "passionate desire for strict accuracy"; secondly, Shearn and Owens's "sneer," and last, but not least, the agreement of the Bristol F.A. that Mr. Maggs should bring the facts before your readers, which we have considered and proved to be false, but fearing our letter would be too long, we will leave them for the present We wish to lay before readers the unfair treatment we received from Bristol F.A. concerning their show, held on December 4th and 5th, 1907, at which we exhibited, and in Class 35, called Bristol Bowl Class, took first honours. Well, we waited in anticipation for nearly six weeks, and not hearing from them we wrote Mr. Maggs on Jan. 14th, 1908, as follows:—

"Dear Sir,—We should be glad if you would forward the prize won by Messrs. Shearn and Owens in Class 35 at your show, on Wednesday and Thursday, December 4th and 5th, 1907, and oblige."

We waited another two weeks, and having no reply we, on Jan. 27th, wrote Mr. T. R. Ind (Sec. Cage Bird section) as follows:—

"Dear Sir,—We have written Mr. G. T. H. Maggs on January 14th, 1908, asking him to forward the prize won by Messrs. Shearn and Owens at your show on Wednesday and Thursday, December 4th and 5th, 1907, to which he has not the good manners to reply. We now ask you to forward that prize or state your reason for not doing so by return, and oblige."

To this letter Mr. Maggs wrote us, giving as excuse for the delay the following:—My attention having been called to a letter which appeared in CAGE BIRDS, December 28th, with a request that the matter be brought before his Executive Committee, and that he wanted evidence of our partnership. Now, sir, would it not be just as reasonable for him to have said that he was waiting evidence from a man in the moon, for that fellow knew just as much as ourselves, and that is nil. Fancy a secretary waiting nearly two months for something for which he would not ask until forced; marvellous is it not? We replied to this letter on February 7th, 1908, the following being an extract:—

"Sir,—If this was the first intimation you had received regarding this matter, seeing that from the date of your show, held Dec. 4th, 1907, to the date of the appearance of letter in CAGE BIRDS, 28th of same month, there had elapsed 24 days, we now ask why this matter has not been considered by your Executive Committee before Jan. 27th, 1908, which is a period of 55 days, or a matter of nearly two months. We do not consider this fair treatment."

We also informed them that we both were financially and otherwise interested in the bird, and referred them to several gentlemen as to our characters and sent them stamped addressed envelopes for the purpose, which they ignored, and returned the envelopes. We think that any man with an average amount of common-sense would know that evidence of character is one of the principal features in any case whatsoever. We now assume they require as evidence of partnership a legally drawn-up document; if this be so, they have no rule giving them the right to ask for any such thing. The only rule they have which touches upon this point is Rule 1, which governs this particular class and which reads as follows:—"That all members' challenge cups and other challenge trophies be for exhibits bred by exhibitor in the current year." Mr. Maggs admits that our bird was a current-year bird and that it was bred by one of us, and this is all the rule asked for. In his letter, Feb. 11th, 1908, he suggested that no honourable inquiry could prove that the rule governing the class had been complied with. Now, this rule that he speaks of must be an imaginary one of his own that no one has ever seen or heard of. Then he goes on to refer to "that letter written nearly ten months ago, to which they have never yet sent a reply." Considering the class of people we had to deal with, we think we have demonstrated an adequate reason for not doing so. We claim that we have given and offered more evidence than they have any right to ask for. We say again the fact the bird was shown jointly prior to the Bristol Show, and being shown jointly, as may be seen by consulting the reports in CAGE BIRDS of the various shows throughout this season, is sufficient evidence to convince any fair-minded man or body of men of the genuine partnership. We therefore claim a legal right to that prize money, and further, we demand the same to be paid to us and to be in possession of that particular bowl for eleven months, or as laid down in Rule 6 in their schedule of 1907.

SHEARN AND OWENS.

A CAGE BIRD UNION MATTER.

SIR,—I see in your issue of December 12th that Mr. Lythgoe says that he must have mislaid a letter (or received an anonymous letter) re a member of the C.B.U. showing at a non-Union show. He, quite possibly, has mislaid the said letter, but it was far from being anonymous, as the full name and address of the sender was written plain enough. Mr. Lythgoe seems very indifferent over my letter; he seems to let it "pass off." But let us treat all alike. Please remember Mr. Crawhall's case. Mr. Lythgoe does not seem even to ask now for names and addresses, as he did in his other letter. But here is the name and address of the member, as reported to Mr. Lythgoe by my friend, Mr. Jones; he exhibited at Carnarvon Show last Easter Monday. I shall be pleased to see in your next issue what Mr. Lythgoe has to say on the matter.

H.M.R.

("H.M.R." overlooks the fact that if we gave the names and addresses of fanciers who are merely reputed "candidates for suspension," we should lay ourselves open to legal action. We have neither time nor inclination to investigate such charges, nor, of course, is it within our province so to do—that is for the Cage Bird Union. To print particulars of suspensions, after the same are made, would be a different matter.—EDITOR.)

PROPOSED NEW SOCIETY FOR PENDLEBURY AND SWINTON.

SIR,—I was pleased to read the correspondence under the above heading in CAGE BIRDS. Since coming to the district, it has been my luck to come across a few Canary and British bird fanciers, and we have decided to try and form a society for the exhibition of Canaries and British birds. The district is a large one, including Pendlebury, Swinton, Farnworth, Hirlam of the Heights, Walkden, Warsley, etc. We have come to the conclusion that we should make a good big society. These districts are full of fanciers, only they want getting together. We have decided to call a meeting early in the New Year, at some well-known room in Pendlebury. If this should meet the eye of anyone interested, would they kindly tell their friends to watch the club notices in CAGE BIRDS? Also to get their friends to attend the meeting when called, as perhaps the meeting will be interesting to outsiders as well as fanciers. Any fancier or others wishing for information respecting same, or wishing to be notified, I would be pleased if they would call or write me or Mr. W. Lloyd, 4, Pitt Street, Pendlebury. We will be pleased to give all information respecting same; or if they would call at the bird shop in Pendlebury and leave their name and address in a book we have provided they will be attended to.

THE WIREWORK OF OUTDOOR AVIARIES.

SIR,—A lover of birds, and one who takes a lot of interest in them, I always look to CAGE BIRDS to learn anything about them. I noticed the very good article by Mr. Brooks on "Outdoor Aviaries." His aviary is on the same lines as I have got mine, excepting the wirework. I have mine arranged to prevent the cats from putting their claws into the birds. The birds all seem to like to fly on and cling to the wire mesh, and no matter how small this is, the cats spring at the wire and often hurt the birds. Now, my idea is to make such a frame for the front of the aviary, or for windows that are made to open, as leaves it impossible for cats to hurt them. I make the uprights of my frame of 2in. slate battens; set these edgewise, and put wire on both edges; this you get a double wire front, and as there is a 2in. space between each wired part, it is impossible for the cats to spring up to hurt our birds. The birds, of course, fly on and cling to the inner wire.

NOVICES IN THE DULWICH ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

SIR,—The Dulwich Ornithological Society has lately suspended one of its members, a champion, for exhibiting in novice classes at the Clapham Society's Show. It seems rather surprising that only one member has been dealt with when, as a matter of fact, there were other champions of the Dulwich Ornithological Society exhibiting in the novice classes at the same show. I would like to ask the Dulwich Committee whether they knew of only one offender? I am afraid it was otherwise. It appears at present that the Dulwich Committee wished to expel this one member, and endeavoured to cover up the sins of the other guilty parties. Surely if the Dulwich Committee were really anxious for fair play, all the offending members should have been dealt with. The Dulwich Society's explanation would prove interesting. Thanking you in anticipation for inserting this in your valuable paper.

FAIR PLAY.

BRAMBLE-CHAFFINCH HYBRID "WRONG-CLASSED" AT THE WELSH NATIONAL SHOW.

SIR,—Mr. A. P. Hurst asks me "why" this bird has got the Chaffinch note? I really don't know "why," unless it is pure cussedness, with a view to tickle the imagination and incidentally the pockets of the susceptible. As to "how" it has got it, is a different matter; to anyone who has kept wild birds and hybrids it is most simply accounted for. Most, if not all of our Britishers, have a knack of "acquiring" the notes of any other species kept within hearing, and the Bramble seems particularly prone to imitation (vocally). My old friend, Mr. Phil Jenkins (Swansea), has a particularly fine hen just now (caught by himself), which has been kept in a room with Greenfinches and Linnets, and gives at will the pure note of both. In the years gone by, when Dr. Greene's discussion on this cross was hot, I, like a great many more, tried for this hybrid. But the only result achieved was the experience of invariably finding the Bramble, either cock or hen (and I tried both ways) adopting the Chaffinch note. I am firmly of opinion that this cross is, if not impossible, at least very improbable, for the reason that proper copulation seemed to me quite impossible, and I have times without number watched the many attempts to copulate end in failure. Result, of course, clear eggs, when I did get them. In dismissing the Chaffinch note theory as a proof, we come to the feather or colour, which in this particular bird amounts to weak coloured bars on wings and Chaffinch colour (slight) on rump. To my mind this is simply one of nature's vagaries, or "sport colouring." In proof of this I must again refer to Mr. Jenkins' hen, which has the same bars and rump colouring as Mr. Coffey's bird, but nevertheless it is a hen Bramble with the Greenie and Linnet note. Neither in bodily conformation, nor general colouring, nor measurement, can this so-called hybrid claim any relationship with the Chaffinch, and to one who has kept both species off and on for nearly 40 years, I have no hesitation in affirming the bird is a sport, or freak marked hen Bramblefinch. That it is shown as a hybrid in all good faith by its present owner I willingly concede, and I will charitably conclude someone has blundered. If we locate hybrids on such slender proof, then our shows will ere long be flooded with all sorts of weird freaks, and the poor judge who has the courage of his convictions will be in for a hot time. Apologising for this somewhat lengthy epistle,

JOS. BROWN EVANS.

P.S.—Since writing you this morning it has come to my knowledge that Mr. Robson's name is being used in connection with the wrong-classing of above exhibit. He had absolutely nothing to do with the matter whatever; I wrong-classed the bird solely on my own responsibility. In mentioning the matter to Mr. Robson afterwards, evidently a misunderstanding arose as to the bird, Mr. Robson thinking I meant quite a different one and I being under the impression that his remarks applied to Mr. Coffey's bird. Mr. Robson did not even see the bird during judging.

SIR,—As your reporter of the above show, and one who signs himself "Justice" in your last issue, have been good enough to accredit me with supporting the judge of the hybrid section at the above show, Mr. J. B. Evans, in wrong-classing Mr. Coffey's Chaffinch-Bramblefinch hybrid, will you be kind enough to grant me permission to say that neither your reporter nor Mr. J. B. Evans had my consent, nor any right to associate my name with the wrong-classing of Mr. Coffey's bird. Neither was I shown a Bramblefinch-Chaffinch or a Chaffinch-Bramblefinch hybrid at the Welsh National by Mr. Evans. That gentleman did bring a bird over for me to see; but that bird was brought from the Goldfinch-Canary hybrid class, and after giving it a close survey I pronounced it a "marked common Canary." Mr. Evans being of the same opinion wrong-classed the bird. But as regards Mr. Coffey's bird it was never presented to me by Mr. Evans, and I dissociate myself with having had anything to do with the wrong-classing of this bird. I did not even know it had been wrong-classed until the evening, just before leaving the show, when I went round the hybrid classes with Mr. Longden, who pointed it out to me; this was my first knowledge of Mr. Coffey's bird being wrong-classed. Your reporter and Mr. J. B. Evans have no right whatever to accredit me with having had anything to do with the wrong-classing of this said bird. I am at all times ready to stand by any decision in which I take part, but I decline to be dragged into a dispute in which I have taken no part whatever, and must therefore request them and "Justice" not to further associate my name with the wrong-classing of Mr. Coffey's bird in any shape or form. JOHN ROBSON.

PRIZE MONEY AT KILMARNOCK SHOW.

SIR,—I entered three birds for Kilmarnock Show, held on 4th and 5th Dec., winning first for Buff Border cock, only seven birds in class. Rule 7 reads: "Full prize-money will be paid where entries are more than seven." Judge of my surprise on getting my prize-money, to only receive 5s. for a first. Now, I say, when they withhold first prize, they should pay second prize money to first bird; that is the general rule in all shows in Scotland. As the second prize is 8s., I wrote to Secretary to see if he had not made a mistake; but in his reply he says they only pay half prize money when class is not full. I hold they should have put this in their rules; they had as much right to pay me nothing as they had to pay 5s., according to their way of thinking. I am very sorry now I showed at Kilmarnock, getting 1st, 4th and 5th with my three entries, and being 2s. 3d. out of pocket. This, I may say, is the first time I have got this treatment after 13 years of showing all over Scotland. No wonder we read so much in the paper just now about short entries; this, I hold, is the cause of it. Just think for one moment: 7 entries 14s., the 6d. taken off for 1st and 2nd cards makes it 15s.; pay out 5s. for first and 2s. for second, total 7s., and 8s. left to the society. Not bad for Kilmarnock; their shows ought to pay. If our Glasgow shows had done this the West of Scotland would not have needed to make the appeal to the Fancy that they are now doing. ANDREW MILLER.

DO OWLS LOVE MUSIC?

SIR,—Is it a fact that Owls in general are noticed to be particularly fond of music, or is the following experience exceptional? Mr. A. O. Cook, in a contemporary, writes:—Many years ago, when a small boy, I was presented with a young Brown Owl. Sammy's evening quarters were in a hutch in the yard, but every morning he travelled—clinging tightly to my hair, a perch which he preferred to my shoulder—to a large deodar cedar on the lawn before the house, where he spent the day, taking a keen interest in his surroundings and occasionally descending to the grass. The branches of the cedar spread almost to the drawing-room window, and no sooner did the piano sound beneath my sister's hands than Sammy would creep along his branch to the utmost limit of safety, and there sit, his head bent in the most obvious attention, uttering at intervals a low crooning note. I should be glad to know if other Owl-keepers have observed similar conduct in their pets. Sammy was a firm believer in the morning tub. Every dry summer day a wooden bowl of water, holding perhaps nearly a gallon, was placed below the tree; in this he continued to splash vigorously until every drop was scattered. Then his great anxiety was to dry the top of his head. Placing it on the grass almost between his feet, he fluttered and pushed himself about in every direction, a perfect figure of fun. AN OWL LOVER.

THE RECENT INVERNESS SHOW.

SIR,—The expression "What's in a name?" is familiar to us all, but apparently the force of this does not appeal to someone who signs himself "Alick Ross." Whoever this "Alick" may be I do not know, but, to use a Yankee expression, I guess he's the lucky youngster from Beauly who grabbed the 2nd prize in the Bullfinch scrimmage, and then "bullied" the secretary until he was obliged to reverse the judge's decision and give him a further prize which was awarded to another exhibitor. Talk about making "unjust demands" on secretaries—how's this for "cheek"? This "Alick" seems to be so full up with his own importance that he must inform the Fancy that he, the original and only "Alick," did not write that letter. But note he does not object to what I maintain; he agrees, in fact, that the birds were hurriedly judged, and, may I ask, if my suspicions as to his identity are correct, to his advantage. It is to me daring to have a similar name that he objects. I did not write with any intention of belittling either the secretary or the show, but simply to point out the absurdity of one judge doing such a show in the time; and I trust the executive will in future make such arrangements as will ensure satisfaction to all. I have the misfortune, or otherwise, of having still to sign myself A. Ross.

THE CLASSIFICATION FOR THE CREST & CREST-BRED CANARY.

SIR,—There is not a week passes when we open our paper CAGE BIRDS during the show season, but we find complaints from secretaries or show managers of quite nine out of ten of the shows about to be, that up to going to press their entries do not average so and so per class, and begging exhibitors to send entries on. Now I have been connected with a society for many years which has never yet had to beg for patronage. The secret of this is, the management when making up their schedules recognise if they are catering for a certain section they must offer a reasonable classification if they wish to GET ENTRIES. The poor, mean classification for the Crest and Crest-bred offered by nine out of ten of the present day show managers, or committees, is by no means conducive to a good entry in this section, which has something like 22 varieties bred for exhibition:—Buff Dark Crest, buff Light Crest, clear body Dark Crest buff, clear body Dark Crest yellow, yellow Light Crest, buff Crest-bred, yellow Crest-bred; repeat these again for hens, also halve them for young (or current year) birds; also other classe for grizzle caps and marks, etc., as asked for by the C.C.C. All breeders of this variety will tell you they are bred at a great expense for distinct classification. No wonder secretaries go begging for entries when every post you get a schedule, and on turning to the classification what do you find? In nine out of ten schedules, two classes, any variety of Crest, any variety of Crest-bred, prizes 10s., 5s., 2s. 6d. (or 3s.), and a special prize of 2s. 6d. for most points in the two classes. Now mark this, the carriage averages 1s. 3d. per bird, and cocks compete with hens, yellow with buff darks, lights and grizzles, young and old, all jumbled up, an almost impossible mixture. You may send, say, four birds out, with all the risks attendant thereon, worth anywhere from fifty to one hundred and fifty pounds, with just a possible chance of winning your own money back. Is it any wonder secretaries say, only so and so per class, Mr. Editor? Now, on the other hand, wherever there is a good classification offered you will find well-filled classes, an average approaching twenty per class. For proof of this take the catalogues of shows already held this season with anything like a classification, such as Newcastle, Cheltenham, or Nottingham. The last-named gave eighteen open Crest and Crest-bred classes, fourteen for old birds and four for young or current year birds; over 60 birds in the four young classes, Crested yellow, Crest-bred buff, Crested buff and Crest-bred yellow. They also gave fourteen open classes for the Plainhead Norwich section, sixteen open classes for the British bird and Mule section, also the classification asked for by the Lancashire Specialist Club (eight classes), Cinnamon Club, and the Foreign Bird Club. Is it any wonder Nottingham and Notts O.S. can always command such wonderful quality when they cater for every section they take up in this way? My advice to show committees is that if they want good entries and first-class exhibits, either give reasonable classification or cut that section out of your schedule altogether, otherwise you will make a loss. I will tell you for nothing that if other members of the Crested Canary Club are like me, you can save your schedules and postage if you can only offer two classes for our variety. I also am not satisfied (and I ask other members of the C.C.C., through CAGE BIRDS, if they are) with the classification offered by a number of the shows this season having our club support. The Crested Canary Club offers for competition amongst its members the largest value in cups, bowls and cash specials of any other specialist club, yet if I am not mistaken we are the only specialist club which does not demand full classification to secure our support. The club show this year has been held at Gateshead, and some of our members' birds would have to travel considerably over two hundred miles to compete for our club specials and points. The minimum to have our support (according to our book of rules) is two young birds, or current year bred, classes for the 21s. and mine cash specials. But what about the club show? Here we offer one ten guinea challenge bowl for the best current year Crest; for this important special we ought to have two classes, one for buff Crest and one for yellow Crest. It is an injustice to the birds to have to compete together. We also have one ten-guinea bowl for the best current year Crest-bred. Here again there ought to be two classes, one for yellows and one for buffs. How can anyone expect a yellow hen, perhaps a grand show specimen in her own class, to compete against a buff cock—she has enough to give away competing with yellow cocks. Perhaps some folks will say, don't show yellow hens. Just so, but do we want the Crest and Crest-bred section to go backwards or forwards? If the latter, don't shut out of competition one of the most important items in the breeder's room. Now here we have four classes, but our club, the C.C.C., offers 5s. special for the best buff clear body Dark Crest, also 5s. special for the best buff Crest-bred with dark or grizzle cap, 5s. special for the best yellow Crest, 5s. special for the best yellow Crest-bred; these are for old bird classes, and in addition we have those for the young bird classes, for the best young Crest or Crest-bred that has not won a 1st prize previously, also a 5s. special for best Crest, and 5s. special for best Crest-bred, also 2s. 6d. special for the 2nd best Crest and 2s. 6d. for 2nd best Crest-bred, not the property of the winner of the 21s. specials. I notice on going through the majority of these specials they are offered by the club to promote competition for different specimens, as asked for by members at our last annual meeting at the Crystal Palace. But of what use is this if the classification is not insisted upon where the club show is held, and all these valuable cups, bowls, and money prizes offered in competition? My astonishment was supreme, I can assure you, when I received the schedule for Gateshead and found they had taken the minimum of young bird classes, any variety of Crest and any variety of C.B.—great Jupiter! All our different specimens we have been breeding and getting together for the club show, have to be jumbled together, buffs and yellows, cocks and hens, clear body Dark Crest, variegated Crest, lights and grizzles, all in the Crest class, and a similar "mixture" in the C.B. class. Seven old classes and two young classes, nine in all, for our annual club show, and on the top of all this we are not of sufficient importance, the C.C.C. must show in conjunction with the N.C.C. club show. Some would say, the more the merrier. I don't, because I have, and perhaps a many more of our members have, too, been sending birds all over the country for points for the £25 Roberts Cup. And taking into consideration we can only earn points from one bird in each class, even a "commended" counts. But if we are showing in conjunction with another specialist club (who have no interest in this cup) their wins are robbing us of points, and these we pay for as follows: say 10 entries, 15s.; cab fare to station and back with show cases, 4s.; railway carriage, 11s.; total, 30s. We don't expect to "get our own back" from the prize money offered, but we do expect to win our own specialist club points. We are obliged to send our birds—because it is the only competition of the year for our challenge bowls—no matter what the distance may be, and I was prepared to bet any amount when the report of this show appeared in the papers it would say, "there were winners without cards." I say that as an important fixture like this there ought at the least to have been four classes for young birds, and fourteen classes for old birds, or champion classes, but even in the latter they had cut the competition down to seven classes, which does not make fair competition, and has a tendency to kill the different varieties which form the quality and the backbone of the Crested and Crest-bred Canary. On the other hand, if a larger classification was offered there would be a great many more birds sent on the show bench than ever come out under present conditions. Better classification would, I feel sure, bring a great many more entries, because exhibitors will not bother to send two birds, while six or eight become worth considering if they can be shown in their own classes. It would be ensuring success and less growling to the Editor on the eve of a show.

DUNOON.

The annual show of the Cowal O.S. was held on December 19th, in the Town Hall, Dunoon. There was a rather serious falling off in the number of exhibits in the caged bird section, and especially in the Scotch fancy classes. This was due largely, it was stated, to the fact that two local fanciers were quite unable to compete. Entries in some of the sections, however, were well up to the average, while the quality in most of the classes was excellent, many very fine birds being staged. The arrangements of the show were in the hands of Mr. J. MacFarlane, the hon. secretary, who had everything well forward. Mr. J. B. Campbell, the president, also worked hard and well. They were ably assisted by some capital stewards. Mr. W. Webster (Greenock) judged, his awards giving every satisfaction.

The special for best unflighted bird in show was won by Mr. James Smith. The Secretary, Mr. J. Stringer, was responsible for the capital arrangements, and his work was appreciated. Mr J. W. SHETTLESTON.

Shettleston and Dist. C.B.S. held their first annual show, in Hill Street Hall, Shettleston, on December 19th, and we think the members ought to be highly pleased with the result of their first venture. The hall has splendid light, and is well ventilated, and the entries (although numbering more than was expected, upwards of 200), just suited the space alloted for them. Mr. M. Craig (Tollcross), judged, and his awards were, in all cases well received. The secretary, Mr. W. Devlyn, was very attentive to his duties, and was most obliging and courteous. This being the first bird show in the district, it was well patronised by the public, and the ladies (who were many), were well looked after (in an official capacity), by the committee, namely, President, Mr. Berry; vice-president, Mr. Henderson; Messrs. Gow, Hendry, Aitken and Coltart. Mr. G. A. Henderson's Crest cock won the special for the best in the show, Mr. G. W. Gow's Buff Plainhead cock, being the runner-up.

PWLLHELI.

Held December 26th, in the Town Hall, one of the best halls in Wales, it being large and spacious, and having plenty of light all round. The entry was a very large one, and competition was very keen all through. Owing to the majority of the exhibits turning up late, it was after 11.30 before judging began. The hall was crowded with visitors. Mr. John Rowlands, the secretary, had a very busy time, and was most obliging under most trying circumstances. The stewards, Messrs. J. E. Pritchard, R. C. Forbes, E. F. Jones, and G. E. Dorkins, worked very hard, and gave every possible attention to exhibitors and exhibits. The show should prove a big success. The cup for the best Norwich and two extra cash specials for the best Canary in show went to Mr. W. Winnard's clear yellow, a real good Norwich; cup for best Yorkshire, Mr. J. C. Williams; cup for best Border, Mr. E. R. Roberts; cup for best Mule or Hybrid, Mr. R. Jackson; special, value 10/6, for best British in show, Mr. T. Hughes, with a superb Thrush; 2nd best, Mr. R. C. Forbes, with a good Hawfinch. Mr. A. G. Davis judged, and gave satisfaction.

OVER WINSFORD (Cheshire).

The 10th annual Open Show of the Over, Winsford, and Dist. F.S. took place in the Assembly Room of the Black Bear Hotel, Over, on December 26th. A handsome silver cup, value £3 3s., and nine or ten silver medals (gold centre) were offered to members residing within a five-mile radius, and these brought out all the local exhibitors in great force. The Cage Bird Section had ten classes allotted to them, and these produced over 100 entries, which was excellent for Boxing Day. Fifty-four birds in four British classes was simply grand, and they were a fine lot right through. Some very good Norwich and Yorkshires were shown, and Lancashire mounted nine various birds from clear to self-darks. Some top light in the otherwise excellent show-room would greatly improve it. A splendid set of officials and committee work this show, with Mr. F. Wigley as hon. treasurer, and Mr. G. Baker as hon. secretary, both very capable men. Enthusiastic fanciers and exhibitors were there from a distance, and quite a party of Crewe and District fanciers greeted us. Competition was very keen and close and the chief honours were well distributed. Mr. Charles Houlton judged, and his awards seemed well received.

CITY OF HULL C.B.S.

Annual members' show, held on Boxing Day, at the OddFellows' Hall, Charlotte Street, when there was a good attendance of members and friends. There was a very good show of Canaries and British birds, numbering 174, in 26 classes, and these gave the judges no little trouble in separating, as two sets of winners could be found in most of the classes. The judges were Mr. Robert Barwick (champion Canaries), Mr. W. T. Pepper (novice Canaries), and Mr. George Harland (British birds), who all gave every satisfaction. Mr. W. T. Pepper won special for best bird in show.

HALTON (Lancaster).

First open show held on Dec. 19th. The Cage Bird section was staged away from the poultry, etc., in the "Infant School," and a lot of very nice specimens were staged; but we think that the Committee were badly advised when they made the entrance fee 1s. 6d. for prizes of 8s., 4s., 2s., and possibly next year they may see their way to reduce this fee. The officials were a real good lot, and worked very hard. The show closed at 6 p.m. to enable all the exhibits to get home same night. We understand the gate was satisfactory. Mr. W. J. Ferguson judged.

BELFAST.

The first annual show of the Norwich Plainhead Canary Club of Ireland was held in the Clarence place Hall, May-street, Belfast, on December 18th and 19th. Over three hundred exhibits were staged, and amongst them were some which have done a great deal of winning this season. The quality throughout was most excellent. There was a large attendance, and the show bade fair to be a great financial success. The mangement ws in most capable hands. The president is Mr. John Cummings, and the vice-president, Mr. J. Thompson. The committee consists of well-known fanciers, who one and all had the interests of the birds at heart; it is comprised of the following: Messrs. W. Connell, W. Tate, W. Teasy, J. Carson, W. Gray, C. J. Mulligan, J. Osborne, J. Barclay, S. Bamford, W. R. Ross, J. Wilson, J. Lavery, J. J. Cloke, and Major Trotter, R.A.M.C. Mr Jas. Stewart, the hon. secretary, was at the helm. He is evidently the right man in the right place. Every provision possible for the comfort and well-being of both exhibits and exhibitors was made, and under his guidance everything went off with a happy swing. The judges were Messrs. Geo. Harland and J. Rocks.

SOWERBY BRIDGE & DIST. C.B.S.

On December 12th, at the Bull's Head Hotel (headquarters), the members held their 2nd annual show. There was a grand display of some very good birds, the exhibits totalling close on 150. Competition, too, was very keen, many good birds being cardless. There was a fine attendance of visitors, and all were pleased to see so good a show by so young a society. Mr. Albert Hirst (Accrington) officiated as judge, and gave entire satisfaction. The specials were won by Mr. C. Pickles, medal for best British bird (kindly given by Mr. S. H. Jeffrys), and 1st special for most points gained in show; Messrs. Taylor and Haigh came 2nd, A. Redcliffe being 2nd (in section 2); Mr. F. Sunderland won Sunderland's gold-centre medal for hottest-coloured bird in show. There were thirteen classes in all. Messrs. Vincent, Wild, Walter Morton, and W. Walker also gave specials.

DOUGLAS, I.O.M.

The 20th annual fixture was held in the Derby Castle, on St. Stephen's Day (Boxing Day). Our section was splendidly staged in the spacious balcony which has a grand top light. A very nice entry was secured, there being about thirty more than last year. Quality was well to the front, some very typical birds being on view. The six Norwich classes contained some very fine specimens, the winning clear Buff, an unlighted bird securing the members' cup for best exhibit in show. Yorkies had nine classes to themselves, and a nice display they made. The feature in the British bird classes were the two classes of Linnets; they were magnificent, and the competition too was exceptionally keen in these classes. The number of visitors which passed through the gates was enormous. The management was excellent; cards went up as soon as each class was judged. Mr. W. G. Cubbon, as secretary, would indeed be hard to improve upon; he has the working of the show at his finger tips, and right well did he stick to his onerous duties. The committee are a hard-working set, with any quantity of enthusiasm in them. Mr. Arthur C. Brotherhood (Newport), judged, and gave every satisfaction.

BUCKIE.

Annual exhibition, held Dec. 23, in the Fishermans Hall, a splendid place for such a function, it being extremely well lighted and kept at a nice even temperature throughout the day. Entries in the caged bird section were somewhat poor, no doubt owing to another show being held in the neighbourhood on the same day. The exhibits presented a smart appearance, being nicely arranged round the hall, and quite a number of birds of the highest quality were on view. The cup for best in hall was captured by Mr. J. Strachan (Aberdeen), with a variegd. buff Plainhead. The medal for best British bird was won by Mr. J. Merson, with an excellent Goldfinch. Mr. Whyte's Toucan came in for a great deal of attention, its comical mode of feeding causing not a few smiles. The President, Mr. D. Reid, along with a large and hard-working committee, are to be congratulated on their successful efforts. Mr. Geo. Stewart, the hon. sec., is a very capable official and had everything up to the mark. Mr. A. Mennie (Elgin), placed the awards in a most satisfactory manner.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

Perseverance Bird Breeding Society held their first exhibition in the Assembly Rooms, Market Place, on Boxing Day. The hall is well adapted for show purposes. The society issued a good schedule for 21 classes, with 21 specials and two silver medals for a washing competition. The Norwich classes contained some grand specimens, the Crest and Cinnamon classes being very choice, also the British and Mules. The show was opened by the president, D. McCowan, Esq., who made a few kind remarks. Great credit was due to the hon. secretary, J. Marshall, he said, and to Mr. Mobbs and the committee under them for the way they had worked to make this grand show a success. A vote of thanks to the president for coming to open the show was passed. Mr. J. Howard (Norwich) judged, and he placed the cards in a very satisfactory manner.

KEITH.

The Keith and District C.B.S., a newly-formed society, held their first open show in the Longmore Hall, on December 19th. Unfortunately entries did not come forward in great numbers, but many birds of merit were present. Mr. G. Mackie's Crest won the cup for best, and the special for best natural colour birds. British birds were backward in numbers. Great credit is due to the secretary, Mr. D. D. Milne, for the first-class manner in which he handled the arrangements, all the exhibits being despatched on the Saturday night. All prize money was paid too, by first post Monday. After balancing up, the society find they are a few pounds on the right side, and hope by raising the prize-money next season, to draw the entries in greater numbers. The date clashed with Peterhead, which undoubtedly kept entries back from the Aberdeen direction, and it was notable that not one entry came from the many Forres and district fanciers. The judges were Messrs. Alex Steele (Aberdeen), for Norwich, and F. A. Watt (Banff.), for British and Foreign. Their decisions were generally satisfactory.

The place was well suited for the purpose, and the exhibits were nicely arranged. Canaries were very strong, particularly the Norwich and Borders. Chapter XXIV.—My Wagtails.

In Politics some men are Radical or Tory under all stress of party matters; so there are aviculturists who hold their own settled views and glory in them, and are not troubled by any chance words of critioism; but for my part I pride myself upon an open mind, and try to follow the philosophical, sane method of sifting out the wheat from the chaff of men's advice. The result is I wobble; indeed, the result of all philosophical methods would appear to be the same. When, therefore, I one day read a plaintive lament that little was now written about our English birds—I wobbled—and though so far I had kept nothing but foreigners, I determined incontinent to begin the study of our native species.

In vain my family warned me. Foreign birds were bad enough. What did I want with getting common English ones that you could see in the garden every day? That was just it. I could see them in the garden, but I wanted a closer view. I wanted to know how they lived and brought up families, and whether I could help them.

Remonstrance was in vain, as the popular proverb said. I always was self-willed. As my old nurse once said to me: "There, sir, you never would listen to reason; it was only your father's cane—the one, you mind, with the horn handle, sir—that made you change your mind." As my father's cane was no longer a danger, I went my own sweet wilful way. I determined to begin with something very "ornary," as Bret Harte used to say. I selected the Water Wagtail, and the pied variety.

The Wagtail always looks to me as well groomed as I have seen any London dandy. He is almost the only bird I know that really walks with one leg before the other. I think Larks are the only other birds I have ever noticed doing this; but, of course, I am open to correction.

I began with a cock; but mindful of the fact that it is good neither for men nor birds to be alone, I set about to procure him a mate. Marriage is the proper state for birds as well as men. As a dear old woman once said to me: "It's such a mortifying o' the flesh as none can beat." After some little trouble I lighted on a hen. By English catchers I found that the hens are little sought after in any species; in fact, they are regarded as so much useless lumber, unless specially ordered. I remember years ago being out about five o'clock one morning on Ealing Common watching a bird-catcher netting Linnets, and I was horrified to find that he screwed all the hen Linnets' necks. I asked him why he did so. He replied, "So as they shan't go and warn t'others." Whether this is a fact of nature I know not; but I felt saddened for the rest of the day, and would gladly have paid the modest copper he asked, if I could have raised it, to save those poor little lives, but, alas! I was only a schoolboy, and pennies were scarce.

The hen Wagtail is fairly good to tell, when you know, as she is much more "sooty" in her colours than the cock, and has not the beautiful silver lacing on the wings which he possesses. She is also a bit thicker in the body than he is. Another very certain way of knowing a hen is to put two together in an aviary and watch them for a few moments.

If one displays the sort of nervousness which Sydney Smith felt when he dined with a bishop, and which caused him to crumble his bread—you have a true pair; if the two are cocks, you will soon have a very pretty little fight on hand.

My cock had hitherto been rather standoffish, as we say up here, but with the advent of a lady his disposition seemed to change. I often found myself laughing in a friendly way as I watched the old gentleman. Where was all his boasted coyness and aloofness? Gone at a glance from a hen bird's eye. It is comforting to find that men are not in all respects more foolish than the beasts.

When the hen first arrived she was very tame, but how could she be otherwise when she was like the Convent horse of which the Prior quaintly said that he could not but be tractable in respect that he draweth much of our winter firewood—and eateth no corn. I do not know how long that horse went on living, but I do know that my hen had lived about as long as she was likely to do on such diet. A man could, I suppose, at a pinch, live on bits of old shoe leather, but it is hardly a wholesome diet, or one conducive to lengthen one's days. On the same principle, a bird may exist on pea meal, but like Jacob, few and evil will be the days of his pilgrimage, and he will not attain to the age of his fathers. I at once prescribed a diet of maggots—quantum sufficit, as the doctors say on their medicine bottles.

A Well-known Winning British Goldfinch.

A member of the team being exhibited by Mr. P. H. Harris (London, W.C.) and winner first prize Southend, &c.

This is rather a tall order, by the way, as the Wagtail's appetite is "thet hearty!" Still, when I find a half-starved bird I do not like to stint him, but, for a time at any rate, let him eat his fill, just as they allow little boys apprenticed to pastry cooks to stuff down as many jam tarts as they like at first. In that case there soon comes plethora, and they positively hate the sight of a tart. With the Wagtail, I fear, the appetite for maggots "grows," as Shakespeare hath it, "with that it feeds on."

Though so very nice in their own persons, and not liking to come in contact with anything impure, they do enjoy the evident benefit that comes sometimes from it, just as a young lady will thoroughly enjoy a bit of high partridge. I once tried hard to breed maggots at home, just to encourage "Home Industries." It didn't answer a bit. In the same way, when a boy, I used to keep white mice. I simply adored them. The rest of the family alluded to my adored ones as "stinking little brutes." I went so far as to sprinkle them with eau de Cologne. Even that did not satisfy. They could stand one odour, they told me, but both together were out of all reason.

Alas! it was the same with "home-fed" maggots of a later date. The sanitary inspector threatened to indict me as a nuisance, and so reluctantly put me to the expense of buying instead of rearing.

It is very pretty to see how the little hen flies to meet me each morning as I go in with a handful of maggots. The moment I throw them down she is there, quick as a flash, and away, while the cock sits on a neighbouring bough and uses language only suited to a three bottle buck of the old school; but their "fratchings" are of no greater moment than gnat bites on a summer's evening.

If there is one word to describe the Wagtail, it is daintiness. I never look at them without thinking of what the poet Samuel Rogers said of Lady Parker—she is so elegant that when she goes to Heaven she will find no difference, but that her ankles are thinner than the angels' and her head better dressed! And of what another friend in South Africa recently wrote to me about a "lady ob colour," who had donned the garments of civilization, including black silk stockings with open work sides; these she lined with red calico, and, as my friend remarked, "she didn" forget to hold her skirts up, neither." Well, the little Wagtail always reminds me of a lady running very swiftly over a muddy crossing, and holding her skirts well up.

My Wagtails spend most of their time on the ground, though they do perch, and generally roost on a branch at night; but most of all do they love water, as their name implies, and mine are never so happy as when they are running about their little lake and jumping up time after time to snap a gnat that has incautiously entered their enclosure. The "little lake" is an old scullery sink I bought for a couple of shillings of our village mason. I put a cork in the hole, and so you have a ready-made lake about an inch deep, and you can turn off to water as often as you like. It needs doing pretty often for these soft bills are rather dirty in their habits, being so much in and near water.

I quite hope another year, if all goes well, to be able to record the successful nesting of the Water Wagtail. The chance of doing something exacting is that I never have strength of mind to resist.

A friend came to see me the other day—he said me, but he really came to see the birds, and when he beheld the Wagtails he exclaimed scornfully, "What the hangmen are you keeping common Wagtails for? I call it a beastly shame." "Well," I said, "we can't keep all rarities, and besides," I added, rather spitefully, "I am afraid perhaps you couldn't keep even Wagtails. It's none so easy as it looks."

It is a perilous thing to depreciate the worth of common things. When we find ourselves among the lords and ladies, we cannot be expected to retain all our former veneration for the squire and the parish priest! If only I do succeed in breeding them another year I shall be like Virgil's delightful old garden lover, of whom he says, "He equalled in his contented mind the wealth of kings."

And now I think I had better draw to a close, for I once saw an author described as one who keeps awake in the small hours in order to procure sleep for other people, and was it not the late Montague Williams who gave it as his opinion that the longer a policeman had been in the force the less you could believe him? Mutatis mutandis; some of you will be saying the same of me unless I pull up.

*Just in Time.

Last year as my father and I went out in the country catching Bullfinches, we placed the trap-cage in a blackberry bush, and went for a little walk through the fields, as there returned, to our surprise there was a black cat hanging to the cage, thinking to have a feed; but we were just in time to save the poor Bullie from death.—Sent by Charlie Bridges (age 11), 15, Dovedale Street, Failsworth, near Manchester.

The Ring Ousel's Friend.

We used to have a Ring Ousel, which was a great prize-winning bird. Every morning he would come out of his cage, and go into the bath that was waiting for him on the floor. After he had had his bath, he would go and perch on a round rail of an old chair, in front of the fire, and dry himself. We also have a cat that is eleven years of age, and she would never touch a bird in the house. The cat and bird would play a long time together. We have the cat yet, but the bird was claimed at Bradford Show by a Mr. Cowgill.—Sent by Ida Wilkinson (age 11), 4, Ivy Street, Crosland Moor, Huddersfield.

*A Happy Find.

As I was walking up a lane recently, near by our cottage, a funny little bird hopped out of the hedge. I followed it as well as I could, till it got opposite to where I live. It then hopped into the orchard over the other side of the road, and was lost to view. The man to whom the orchard belongs said he caught it, but as he didn't delight in birds said I could have it. I took it home and put it in a cage. I hang it out of doors. We did not know what it was. To my disappointment, when I came from school one day the cage was down and the bird was gone.—Sent by A. Sutton (age 13), 2, Pleasant Cottage, High Street, Gt. Wakering, Essex.

Management of Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries.

By THOMAS SMITH.

In a bird-room mice are a serious danger. They become numerous in summer, and once they get a footing they gambol through all the cages, and wet the seed, which renders it poisonous, which in its turn plays sad havoc among the stock. A breeder may be all unconscious that mice are among the feathers until he sees the carcases of a number of his birds. Then he stops every hole, and prevents them from getting on to the shelves.

They often get into the room by means of the chimney, and in that case it is difficult to trace the runs. A repairer's services should be requisitioned to make the apartment mice-proof. In the end, if the stock is in any way valuable, it will pay the owner to incur this outlay. Picture what has been a reality, and may occur at any moment where mice are plentiful—the half of the stock lying dead. Everything possible ought to be done to maintain the birds in good health, and certainly no effort and no expense should be spared to keep the mice down.

Importance of Cleanliness.

Wholesome seed is of the very first importance. The utmost care should be exercised in the purchase of it. Avoid seed in which mice droppings are to be found. Get your seed from a merchant who keeps it perfectly clear of vermin. A merchant who takes an interest in seed is only too pleased to have pointed out to him any defect in the seed which a customer has purchased off him; interests are mutual, and should be maintained. Wholesome seed means health and vigour in your birds and the yield is financial gain.

Cages should be kept clean and tidy. An exhibition Scotch Fancy Canary or a Belgian Canary ought always to have a well-groomed appearance; the feathers should be clean and every feather should be in its place. Birds that acquire cleanly habits are more easily kept than careless, untidy individuals.

Size in birds is much sought after in these days. The large Scotch Fancy Canary commands a better figure than the small, neat bird. Some birds change very much in the moult, and, therefore, all should be carefully looked after.

Diet in September should be the same as in other months, with the addition of a supply of linseed, which is a help to the birds while in the moult. They are all the better, too, for having a little egg mixture

Concerning the Cages.

Spare cages should be thoroughly washed in water and well saturated with a disinfectant, to remove all unpleasant smells, and destroy harbouring insects. Loose wires and other defects should be repaired, and the woodwork repainted or revarnished. These could be utilised for the stock, while the others undergo the same process, and as soon as all have been overtaken those that are not required should be safely stored away in a dry place where they will not get damaged.

Nests which are likely to do another year should also be cleansed and stored away. Egg and other dishes should also be cleaned and carefully laid by. Order should be studiously attended to in the bird-room, as an untidy aviary is far from attractive.

Show cages should be freely used for fully a month before the exhibits have to appear on the show bench. Then these cages should be thoroughly overhauled and redone up. It is a great advantage to have them in proper condition, as it materially assists in giving the bird a good appearance, and helps to convey the impression that the occupant is worth looking at. A tidy show cage is not to be despised.

See that the perches are of the proper thickness to suit the exhibit, i.e., to enable it to grip the perch without discomfort.

The carrying-box should be light, and well put together, it being of great importance that the birds should not be exposed to any danger passing from a warm hall into the cold air. Many a bird has met with trouble in transit from the show—trouble it never has got rid of.

From One Cage to Another.

The greatest care should be exercised in running a bird from one cage to another. Both cross bars should be exactly level. If the one is higher and the other lower, there is a danger of a broken limb. The Scotch Fancy Canary is a bird of travel, and when properly handled it will pass from the one cage to the other quietly and without flurry.

The feathers are apt to get broken or knocked out if the bird is allowed to fly fiercely and strike against the wires. Broken or damaged feathers should be removed, so that fresh feathers may come in their places.

A long and perfect tail in a Scotch Fancy Canary is of great importance on the show bench. As already pointed out, much depends upon complete feathers. Long feathers do not cast with the throw-off of short feathers, and as the former are usually spoiled in the nest or by plucking, it is necessary to take out those that are defective.

It is a common practice to remove all the tail feathers and the long feathers from the wings. It is cruel, however, to do this, and it seems to be felt by the victim. In my opinion, as few feathers should be plucked as it is possible, consistent with maintaining a goodly appearance. The second feathers are longer than the nest feathers, and if the bird is in good condition the removing of a couple of feathers from the other side of the tail should be ample. They should be plucked seven weeks before the first show, to admit of the new feathers growing, and being in proper position ere it faces the inevitable handling.

Feet and legs should be thoroughly clean before the bird goes to a show, and where corns exist they should be pared, this being absolutely necessary in order to give the bird a fair chance. Position with Belgian and Scotch Fancy Canaries is everything, and is a matter which is too often regarded as of small importance; such matters are really of great moment.

Stuck in the Moult.

Young birds out of condition, but more frequently old birds that are decaying, "stick" in the moult, and mope. They should be placed in the darkest corner of the room, out of draught, and the owner should apply the remedies which are recommended weekly in the advice columns of CAGE BIRDS. Everything possible should be done to pull the stock through the moult in seasonable weather.

Exhibitions are held between the middle of September and New Year's Day. Executives of shows, as a rule, send schedules to fanciers whose names appear in previous catalogue. Beginners can, by reference to the advertisements in CAGE BIRDS, obtain the names and addresses of secretaries, and by dropping a postcard can always get the prize lists.

Visit the Exhibitions.

The places at which to catch "inspiration" for the Fancy are the exhibitions. There the best specimens of birds are on view, and a full conception of the stamp of bird required can be obtained.

Many of the leading fanciers owe their start to a visit to an enterprising bird show. A lot can be learned by watching the judges officiating, and personally comparing exhibit with exhibit.

Visitors are too often content to examine the winners; but sometimes the best bird is overlooked, and can only be discovered by plodding right through the exhibits.

A further advantage in attending shows is the opportunity it affords of having a conversation with experienced fanciers. They are generally ready to impart information, and to render assistance to beginners. An excellent plan is to fasten on to a careful examiner, who goes over all the exhibits, and follow his remarks. A fancier of that type is usually an able critic, and worth listening to.

The birds should by now be almost through the moult, and they should be put on good Spanish Canary seed, with a pinch of German rape, daily. The latter may be given raw or boiled. If it is boiled it should be supplied once or twice a week. On the alternate days a piece of boiled carrot may be given, as it will help the feathers.

The Show Season.

With Scotch Fancy Canaries the shows are in full swing by October in Scotland, and by the beginning of this month the fondly-cherished dreams of breeders have been realised, or shattered, as the case may be. The man who succeeds requires no encouragement, but the unsuccessful breeder needs to be reminded that though he has been unfortunate this season, he may be well to the front in the coming years.

He should set about strengthening the weak points in the stock by securing birds that are likely to match his own, and produce young birds with winning qualities.

Young men should give the Fancy a fair trial, and before deserting the breeding and rearing of Scotch Fancy Canaries should weigh the subject carefully, and not act hastily. By persevering for a few years they may derive both pleasure and profit out of the Fancy.

Keep in touch with the shows, is my advice to all fanciers, for there it is that a knowledge of what is wanted is acquired, and assists all round to produce birds of a higher standard.

Nests of birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

THE YORKSHIRE CANARY: ITS FAULTS AND THEIR REMEDIES.

By SAMUEL DEAN.

The Last Standard Requirement.

Last, but not by any means the least, we have ten points allowed for "condition, health, cleanliness, and sound feather." Every fancier here will know that however good a bird may be, if it is not shown to the best advantage it will not receive the coveted prizes. What is the use of spending, maybe, years in producing an exhibition specimen if we do not take the time and trouble to stage it, so as to show it off to the best advantage?

A Yorkshire that is the slightest off condition had better be left at home. How can one expect a bird of grace and position, such as it is, to show itself to advantage if it is not in the very best of health? Cleanliness is for the town fancier a difficult matter. Suppose, for instance, he washes his birds on the Monday for a Friday show. On Tuesday perhaps there is a fog; rings begin to appear round the neck, and the short feathers over the beak get as black as ink. What has he to do? He can't wash them again, or they won't last the run of the shows. He has no other alternative but to show them and hope for better and clearer weather the following week.

Sound feather is another necessary item, the chief fault being broken flights, mostly to be found on young birds (unflighted). The way to avoid this is to begin to train your birds as early as possible.

I like to get them to run into the show cages by the time they attain the age of from four to six weeks, and once they learn what is required of them at this early age they never seem to forget it, and can be put into fly cages until moulted, without any fear of their becoming as wild and unmanageable as those whose early training is neglected. One thing where many fanciers make a great mistake in the training of their birds for exhibition is the hanging of show cages on stock cages, and allowing the birds to run in and out at will. Birds so treated are apt to hang down and try to get out of the show cage, instead of getting on to the top perch and sticking there.

All that is required in this respect is to hang on the show cage for the first few weeks after the birds are taken away from their parents, just to teach them the way in and out, gently coaxing them to do so by inserting a stick, taking care to avoid exciting them in any way, but gaining their confidence, so as to get that fearless carriage so much to be desired in a Yorkshire.

How to Obtain Bloom.

Bloom or sheen on a bird is the outcome of condition, with perhaps a little assistance in the matter of feeding and also in washing. Seeds containing a little oil, viz., linseed, gold of pleasure, etc., are good conditioning foods; whilst in washing, a soap with a slight quantity of glycerine in its composition will put a certain amount of gloss on the plumage, whereas if a plain soap is used (especially if strong in soda) a lustreless appearance is the result. A bird then requires from four or five to perhaps eight days in which to regain in its feathers the amount of oil necessary for the production of sheen. A bird so washed should have a larger amount of oily seeds in its allowance, to assist it to attain quickly the desired condition.

Faulty Wings and Tail Carriage.

"Close carriage of wings and tail." Badly packed wings are an eyesore, and for a blessing are few and far between. The fault is most prevalent in old birds and in birds that do not like their baths; but sometimes a strain will have a tendency in this direction, and when such is the case birds with specially neat wings should be introduced.

For the benefit of those who do not know this fault, I may state that it is usually the cover feathers that hang slightly over the flight feathers, thus spoiling the appearance of the wings. I have seen this fault in almost every breed with which I have come in contact, but I cannot give any cause for its appearance. I put it down to shortness of condition during the moult; consequently, the bird does not bathe and preen itself as it should do. A bird that takes a pride in its appearance always comes out sprucer than those which are languid and lifeless.

"Colour: Pure body colour, beak, legs and feet clear (clear birds only)." Evenness of colour is, of course, a necessity. "Beak, legs and feet clear," this and the former counting to the extent of five points. Usually a clear bird has these qualifications. A ticked or unevenly marked bird generally has a spot on the beak or slightly dark legs, according to the amount of green blood running in its veins.

The Housing and Treatment of Foreign Birds in Captivity.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

THE FIRE-RED FINCH—S. minuta.—This dainty Finch is one of the gems of the genus; it is a trim and tightly-feathered bird, full of vivacity, almost continually uttering his merry little lay. Judging from the pair which came into my possession in July, 1907, the male of which unfortunately mysteriously disappeared after being in the best of condition for some months; the female still lives in my outdoor aviary. They are ideal cage-birds, become tame fairly readily, and are neither dull nor listless under such conditions. As to their fitness for the outdoor aviary, well—there are few birds that surpass them, as mine disported themselves amid the greenery and branches of my garden aviary.

Adult male: The general colour of the upper surface is brown, lightly washed with greyish-olive; lower back and rump, deep chestnut, lesser wing-coverts, brown; median and greater coverts, blackish brown, edged with greyish-olive, lighter at the ends; primary coverts and flights, blackish brown, edged with ashy, the primaries have whitish margins with a small spot of white at the base; upper tail coverts, ashy-olive, with pale chestnut edges; tail feathers, blackish-brown, margined with pale brown and having paler tips, the centre feathers are washed with ashy-grey; crown of the head, brown, with a ruddy tinge on the forehead; lores, dusky; ear-coverts, pale brown, with light shaft streaks; cheeks, entire under surface of body, and under tail-coverts, bright chestnut; thighs, chestnut brown; there is a small patch or spot of white at the base of the cheeks; beak, black; legs and feet, blackish. Total length 4in., tail 1½in.

Adult female: Upper surface, dusky brown, slightly tinged with olive; rump, upper tail-coverts, and lesser wing-coverts, dusky brown; median and greater coverts, and secondaries, dark brown edged with buffish ochre; primaries, dark brown edged with olive; tail feathers, dark brown with light tips and edged with olive; crown of the head, dusky brown; lores, sides of face, ear-coverts, cheeks and under surface of body, brownish ochre, the throat and upper neck are paler and washed with ashy-grey; abdomen whitish buff; sides, flanks, thighs and under tail-coverts, buffish ochre. Total length 3¾in. full, tail 1½in. full.

The above descriptions are from living specimens in my possession.

"The size of the white wing-spot varies greatly, and is very conspicuous in some specimens and is hardly visible in others. There is apparently a seasonal plumage, when the bill is brown instead of black, the plumage browner, and the brown edges to the wing-coverts, quills, and tail-feathers broader and more conspicuous. The young male at first resembles the adult female, but is more decidedly olive above, and has traces of cinnamon colour on the rump and on the under surface. There is a considerable difference in the depth of the chestnut colour in a series of males, and the pale colouration of the young male tends to prove that the richness of tint increases with age, the younger birds inclining to cinnamon rather than chestnut." (British Museum Catalogue, Vol. XII.)

These are points which the aviculturist will be able to confirm or otherwise, as further supplies come to hand, as the last consignment only contained one female.

Their range is from Panama through Colombia and Venezuela to Guiana; Trinidad; Tobago; Para.

S. hypoxantha.—Adult male: Upper surface, pale slate-grey; lower back and rump, light ruddy-cinnamon, tinged with ochreous; lesser coverts, ochreous-brown; greater and median coverts, dark brown edged with ochreous, with whitish ends to outer webs; primaries.

THE MARSH FINCH—S. palustris.—Adult male: The head and back are clear bluish grey; the under surface to middle of breast is pure white, which is also the colour of the sides of the neck and ear-coverts; remainder of under surface, rump and upper tail-coverts, ruddy-chestnut; wings and tail, blackish brown edged with whitish; inner secondaries black, tipped and broadly edged with white; base of primaries, white; beak, legs, and feet, black. Total length 4½in., tail 1¾in.

The adult female resembles the male as to wings and tail, but lacks the lustre of the male. She is greenish-olive above, lightly streaked with earthy-brown; below, light buff with a yellowish tinge. Habitat: Argentina.

THE REDDISH FINCH.—S. nigroaurantia.—This small and pretty species is one of the most pleasing if not the most handsome of the Spermophilæ. It is a sweet singer, but the song is not very sustained. It is amiable and ought to be in every collection of small birds. Unfortunately all this genus, with one or two exceptions, are rare, probably because they are not often asked for, their attractive qualities not being entirely on the surface.

Adult male: Its principal colour is cinnamon, with a sandy tinge; top of head, black; wing-feathers blackish, edged with ashy, ruddy-grey and whitish; the bases of the primaries are white, forming a fairly large white patch; upper tail-coverts black, tipped with brown; tail feathers black, margined and tipped with pale brown; beak, blackish; legs and feet, dark brown. Total length 3⅞in., tail 1½in.

Adult female: Olive-brown above; wing and tail feathers brown, edged with olive; below paler olive-brown, with centre of body yellowish-white, merging into ochreous on the under tail coverts. Habitat: Brazil.

S. nigrorufa.—Adult male: Top of head and back to rump, black, with the feathers of the mantle, back, and scapulars, obscurely tipped with ruddy-buff; rump, ruddy-cinnamon; wing and tail feathers black edged with whitish-brown; the bases of the middle primaries are white, and the middle secondaries have their edges somewhat hoary; loral streak, white; eye region, black; sides of neck, ear-coverts, cheeks and throat, buffish cinnamon, lightest on the sides of the neck; the under surface is principally buffish-cinnamon, darker and brighter on the breast, sides and flanks; beak, blackish; legs and feet, dark-brown. Total length 3⅞in., tail 1½in.

Adult female. Above, brown, mottled with darker brown on the back, and slightly tawny on the rump; wings blackish-brown, edged with lighter brown; base of middle primaries, white; margins of middle secondaries, whitish; upper tail coverts and tail, brown, edged with lighter brown; top of head, brown, minutely mottled with dusky; under surface, yellowish buff, paler in the sides and flanks. Habitat: Bolivia and Brazil.

A DEVICE FOR SAND TRAYS.

Sent by H. H. Bulcock, "Riversdale," Clitheroe.

It is a good plan to prevent seed and sand getting below the sand drawers when cleaning out cages. The sand and seed husks get underneath the drawer, making it difficult to withdraw, often causing one to frighten the birds by the sudden jerk necessary. Make (or get made) suitable lengths of wood, as Fig. 1, to sizes given. Nail these on to back and sides of cages, "A," just above the drawer "B," so that the drawer will just clear them. Paint the same shade as interior of cage, and they are then not noticeable. Beneath the drawer will then keep quite clean, and the tray works perfectly.

A SEED TROUGH FOR AVIARIES.

Sent by B. Jepson, St. John's Vicarage, Lewisham High Road S.E.

I enclose a sketch of a trough for aviaries to hold some such seed as canary, which is eaten by many kinds of birds, and of which, therefore, a good supply is generally required. This trough has the advantage of diminishing the fighting in an aviary, and can be taken to pieces. Fig. 1 shows the end piece, of ¼in. wood, 1¾in. by 3in. long. At ¾in. from one side make cuts ¼in. long at both ends. From the centre of same edge make cuts 1in. long, and at right angles, so as to get the shape of the first figure. "A" is a slot, ¾in. by ¼in., to hold the big centre piece in Fig. 2; "B," "B" are slots, 1in. by ¼in., to hold pieces to form trough. Fig. 2 shows the trough complete. It can be of any length—6in. is convenient. The height of the big piece is 4in., and it acts as a handle if a hole is bored in the middle for the finger, and it prevents fighting, as it divides the trough. It should not reach to the bottom of the trough, but should allow the seed to spread. If it is joined by two screws at each end, the trough may be easily taken to pieces. The parts forming the trough should be 6 by 1 by ¼in.

Seed Trough for Aviaries.

Nesting of Starlings in the North.

The Starlings were not always as plentiful as now, and were not so frequently seen in parts of Scotland. The following note on the subject affords interesting reading: "In the early part of 1850 a pair of Starlings took up their abode near the Manse of Crimond, and eventually built in the thatch of a low house close by; and at the request of the Rev. Mr. Boyd they were left unmolested, and succeeded in rearing two broods that season; next summer several pairs came, and protection being given them, a still larger number appeared the year following." This is the published account of the first settlement of these birds in Aberdeenshire.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

The Noisiest of the Throng.

The most noisy of the whole throng coming in to roost are the Starlings. In the later summer months this woodland swarms with these birds, in all stages of growth, and the noise they make as they blunder and scramble among the trees is almost deafening; so much so, that it is impossible to detect the more musical notes or calls of the Whitethroats, Blackcaps, and other Warblers. Many of these birds are, no doubt, still in the district, and have been heavily reinforced by their snaky-headed friends from over the seas, so that now the number is almost incredible. Every field and patch of grass land has its flock of busy birds hunting for food, From where I sit I can see a number of them among the grass. I have counted up to fifty, and there are quite as many more, and yet the whole bunch of them look to be a mere sprinkling. These birds have a method of collecting in certain trees before flying away to roost; they struggle in a few at a time, frequenting the topmost branches, where they sit and preen themselves, occasionally taking a short flight round, as though to estimate their forces, and suddenly extending their flight, they make straight away to the woods. Here they join themselves to the earlier arrivals, and then, if one has the time and inclination, it is possible to see as fine an exhibition of collective flight as the bird world affords. What interests one most is the sudden wheeling and turning of the whole throng, moving as one bird, settling and rising again, as one would raise or lower one's hand; the quickness of brain and action to execute such movements is truly wonderful.

Destructive if Useful.

There has been more controversy around the doings of the House Sparrow than around those of any other bird, but even its greatest and staunchest friends cannot but admit that it is destructive as well as useful.

The Wren's Nest.

Our poets have ever appreciated the doings of wild birds. Note the following lines on the Wren's nest:—

"It wins my admiration
To view the structure of this little work—
A bird's nest. Mark it well, within, without;
No tool had he that wrought; no knife to cut,
No nail to fix, no bodkin to insert,
No glue to join; his little beak was all.
And yet, how neatly finished! What nice hand,
And every implement and means of art,
And twenty years' apprenticeship to boot,
Could make me such another?"

Scarcity of Large Birds.

At the present time small and common birds are abundant, but the large predatory birds are exceedingly rare. Eagles have gone, excepting for a stray bird or two from Scotland during the autumn, and so have the Buzzards. The little Merlin occasionally comes down from the north, but the Peregrine Falcon is extinct, as a resident, excepting in a few very isolated districts. The egg collector has robbed him so systematically that at last he has had to give in, and leave the tall cliffs of the south to the Jackdaws and Pigeons. The large Hawks have flitted out of our daily life, and Owls are becoming rare. All these birds are said to exist in certain districts, but what we lament is the sight of them in our daily worlds. Bird protection appears to be only for the protection of the common and least interesting.

we are now engaged in the preparation of the next volume.

Every advertiser in this Standard work of reference reaps a rich reward. Year after year the same breeders and traders are represented in its pages proving its unparalleled value for advertising purposes.

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL

gives you a whole year's publicity at the smallest possible cost. This will make the seventh year of issue and every year's production is pronounced to be a long way ahead of its predecessors.

Every prominent breeder and exhibitor should make certain of seeing his name and address in this Annual. How often do you as a breeder want to know another breeder's address and without the Annual what a trouble it is to find it! The list of fanciers annually advertising themselves in this valuable handbook is no small index to its usefulness. If hitherto your advertisement has not appeared in it, make up your mind at once to place an order right away in it.

The breeding season for 1909 promises to be an exceptionally successful one. Special efforts will be made to extend the sale of the Annual amongst novices and contemplating purchasers.

Here is the full advertisement tariff for "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" 1909.

to any person who can prove the following statement to be false—that I lately arrived from Germany with the largest consignment of high-class Rollers ever introduced into this country. This lot includes several prize winners, and on Dec. 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th, 1908, at The Alstertust Show, Hamburg (one of the largest in Germany), I there secured with a team of 6 Rollers, 6 first prizes in open competition, and the highest award in this class, The Gold Medal, this team of six birds scoring 467 points under 3 judges, namely, Georg Kromhe, of Celle, W. Lemcke, of Lubeck, and Gustav Milbrodt, of Magdeburg. I have also been fortunate to secure 74 cocks and 63 hens of this strain. Now here is your chance—prove the above statement to be false and the £100 will be willingly handed over to you; prices of the above cocks from 15/- and upwards, according to quality; hens 5/- and 7/6 each. In addition to the above I also secured in other classes, silver cup and three medals.

HAVE YOU NOTICED

In my advertisements of the Leipzig Rollers I do not merely say they are as good as can be obtained elsewhere, but I distinctly say they are better? And to prove this to your own satisfaction I ask you to have one from me and one from elsewhere at any higher price. Test them side by side for a week, and keep the one which suits you best. I shall be perfectly satisfied with the result. I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in the kingdom, and at the present moment have over one thousand Roller cocks in stock, all in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, hollow bell rolls, barp, gong, and flute notes, and jug-jug of Nightingale, etc., and are warranted entirely free from any Titlark or other harsh notes; price 6/6 and 7/6 each. Special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass rolls and hollow bell rolls, and are a cascade of ever-flowing melody, 10/- and 12/6 each. I also have a limited number of pure Seifert contest masters. These are gems of the purest water, and guaranteed fit to win contests; price 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each. Ordinary loud, free-singing Hartz cocks, in full, vigorous song, 4/6 each, seven 28/-. Hartz hens, 2/6 couple. These Hartz cocks are exactly the same as advertised by unscrupulous dealers as Hartz Mountain Rollers at fancy prices. All Rollers sold by me are imported direct from Leipzig, and all stamped on wing "Hans Welier Leipzig." I am the only dealer who imports this strain, and no other dealer can get one of these birds unless he purchases from me. The following few letters, which are guaranteed genuine and unsolicited, say more for my Rollers than I could ever say myself:—"28, Cotton-st., Westleigh, Leigh, December 2nd.—Sir,—Bandmaster arrived in pink of condition. He was singing ten minutes after unpacking, and gives every satisfaction. I am sure no better bird could be purchased for the money (12/6).—Yours, G. Ellison." "Heap Wellington, Salop, December 4th.—Sir.—Received two Canaries, and am very highly pleased with them, and must thank you for a raigbt forward dealing.—Yours, J. Williams." "2, Lotton-st., Blaenllechan, December 4th.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe, and was singing on the table when postcard came. I am quite satisfied, and shall want more.—Yours, J. Shirley." "71, Castle-st., Sangu-Keyham Barton, Ford, December 5th.—Sir,—Bandmaster arrived safe, and I am highly pleased with it.—Yours, G. Werrey." "43, Ann-st., Greenock, December 5th.—Sir,—Received two Canaries safe, and am highly pleased with them. Please send four more.—Yours, J. Shirley." "71, Castle-st., Languhar, December 8th.—Sir,—Pair Rollers arrived safe. I am perfectly satisfied with them.—Yours, W. Broadfoot." "Hill-st., Elworth, near Sandhach, December 7th.—Sir,—Please send following. I hope the Roller will be as good as the one I had from you about four years ago, as he is still singing as well as ever.—Yurs, W. Lee." "57, High-st., Glyn-Neatb, December 9.—Sir,—Received Hartz cock safe, and am highly pleased with it; in fact, he is a gem, and started singing as soon as unpacked. Please send another.—Yours, D. Thomas." "15, Hill Row, Pentwyn, Fochriw, December 10th.—Sir,—Roller safely to hand on Wednesday. It started singing splendidly, and at time of writing is in splendid form. You may pick up your money, as I am perfectly satisfied, and shall shortly send for another Bandmaster.—Yours, W. Gwynne." "18, Montague-st., London, December 11th.—Sir,—Bandmaster you sent is most satisfactory. The lady is very pleased with it, as besides being a good singer it is a strong and healthy bird.—Yours (Miss) H. Misley." "276, Victoria Buildings, Hillstown, Bolsover, December 11th.—Sir,—Received special Bandmaster, and am very pleased with him.—Yours, J. King." "Mount-st., Mullingar, Ireland, December 11th.—Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller, and am proud to say he is a living musical box. It's a pleasure to come into contact with such an honourable man, who does not mislead fanciers concerning birds he has for disposal.—Yours, J. Huggard." "London-rd., Alderley Edge, November 30th.—Sir,—I thank you for the marvel you have sent me (Bandmaster at 10/-), for he is a marvel. I never heard one like him. On coming home my wife said, 'You are hard to please, but I think you will be satisfied this time.' He excels all I have heard, and will recommend you for more. Please send me another. Yours, G. Birkin." On December 11th Mr. Birkin again writes: "Sir,—Second Roller arrived safe on Friday, and gives satisfaction in every way. He has just the song I wanted, and I thank you very much for sending such a good bird. I shall get you more orders, as I am sure your birds are far better than any others I have heard.—Yours, G. Birkin." "27, Cambrian-place, Carmarthen, December 14th.—Sir,—I have instructed editor to band over deposit for Roller. I am well pleased with bird. Thanking you for such a nice songster.—Yours, W. Evans." "Blaengarn.—Sir,—Roller has given every satisfaction; he is singing very nicely, and is free from any objectionable notes. Thanks for promptness.—Yours, E. Jones." "34, Castle-st., Stranraer, December 14th.—Sir,—Received Roller safe, and am highly pleased with him. He is a tip-topper, and sang immediately it was opened. Please send Hartz cock by return. P.O. enclosed.—Yours, J. Raeside." It's plain proof that my Rollers must be better than others, otherwise I should not receive so many testimouials every day; but you can easily prove it to your own satisfaction, as I send all on full week's trial, entirely at my own risk, either on receipt or cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and unless bird proves fully satisfactory every penny of your money is refunded. All are safely and warmly packed, with seed and water, in special travelling cages, free of extra cost, and sent out same day as order is received, so intending purchasers of Rollers for Christmas and New Year gifts may rely upon getting their birds to time if ordered from me. Postcards sent before birds in all cases. See British Birds and Appliance columns for further adverts.

Patronised by Judges Bexson, Battye, Payne, Vardy, Roe, Irons, Barnes; all Crystal Palace judges. No swindling here. Just read these testimonials. All come over 200 and 300 miles away, and £20 given anyone if not real. Can be seen any time. "Mr. Patterson, Cork, Ireland.—Sir,—Glad to tell you Roller you sent me won the All-Ireland Roller singing contest here." "Mr. W. Burl, London, October 25th, 1908. —Sir,—Hartz cock arrived safe and started singing directly unpacked and sang ever since." "Mr. Bagot, Glenny, Dublin.—Sir,—I am well pleased with Roller. He has sang continually ever since he came, day and night." "Mr. J. Campbell, Dublin.—Thanks for promptitude in sending Roller and cage within a couple of days from sending you the order. This bird was in Dublin singing for all he was worth." "Mr. D. McCorquandall, Greenock, Scotland.—Received Roller and cage all safe. He was singing half an hour after he arrived, and best singer I ever had. Cage is a suitable one, and cheap." "Mr. Knight, Kilmarnock, October, 1908.—Hartz cock arrived all right, and a beautiful bird, and a champion singer. I got a Goldfinch from you which lived 11 years." These are only a few I have picked from long distances; have thousands others. I guarantee to give you every satisfaction; so order at once.

Satisfaction Given Everywhere.

Read this testimonial for proof of who sends the best value for money. 1, Havelock Street, Lower Broughton Manchester. Jan. 8, 1909. The birds arrived safe, and I am highly satisfied with them. They are far better birds than I have had from other people in Bradford.—J. Whittle to L. Dykes. Another from Morgan's Terrace, Pembroke. Dec. 27, 1908.—The birds arrived safe, and I won 1st, and 3rd, at Pembroke with them in open in a strong class. Thanking you for your honest dealings.—A. Andrew to L. Dykes. I have received hundreds of similar testimonials which are open for inspection at any time.

My birds have won at most leading shows during the present season, and others I have sold to customers have won over 100 cash prizes in the keenest competition. These are solid facts, not empty bounce. Copyists please note. I am open to stake a deposit with Editor, to be given to any charity, if I cannot produce more winning testimonials for Yorks. supplied during the present season than any "so-called" breeder.

REMEMBER.—I send every bird on seven clear days' approval, at my risk, either for cash or deposit with Editor; and what is more, I have never had a deposit that has had to be returned. (Editor holds facts.) Illustrated price list post free. Travelling cages with proper food for journey 3d. extra. Will you purchase from it, or do you prefer to go, where they are sold first, and then run about after to fill your order? TWITTERINGS.

I have been having splendid results from my advertisements in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. A. Brown (Wood Green).

The 1909 annual show of the Hucknall Torkard and Dis. C.B.S. has, we hear, been fixed for October 29th and 30th.

Please note, writes Mr. W. G. Elsmore, that I have removed from Yeovil to 3, Cyprus Terrace, Billett Street Taunton.

I am removing at the end of this week, writes Mr. Albert Hirst, and my new business is 17, Ramsbottom Street, Accrington.

CAGE BIRDS special prize received, which is delightful, and made me a very nice Christmas present.—W. H. TOOTTLE (Plymouth).

We hear that Mr. Ford's Greypate Goldfinch. 1st at Cardiff, Welsh National, etc., has been purchased by Mr. P. H. Harris (London, W.C.)

Last year, writes Mr. J. J. Dooley, secretary of the Chesterfield Show, we paid all prize money out on the day of show. Fanciers will please note.

I must say your last double number was splendid, and I am framing the picture I received with it, as it is so life-like.—A. BROWN (Wood Green).

Kindly note that class 16 in our schedule should read: Self or foul buff bred 1908, writes Mr. S. Hadwin, secretary of the Green Canary Association.

Feltham Fanciers' Association will, we hear, hold a members' show of cage birds on January 27th, in the Public Hall, Feltham, with Mr. C. A. House as judge.

Narberth Show report, in the Dark Mule class, states: "Webb absent." My bird, as a matter of fact, was present, and won 3rd prize.—GEORGE T. WEBB (Narberth).

Narberth Show report in the Goldfinch class states: hc, Davies; this should read: hc, Williams, as I won this in a class of about 20 stormers.—JACK WILLIAMS (Narberth).

I omitted to mention that at the Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S. Linnet Competition, Mr. J. Beswick, of Stockport, officiated as judge, writes Mr. Sam. M. Clayton, the hon. sec.

I would just like to add my appreciation of the beautifully artistic coloured plate of the Ring Ousels. It is magnificent, and formed a charming Christmas present.—G. STOCKS (Doncaster).

Please do stop my advertisement of Parrot Finches. From the first insertion I have had so much work answering replies that I haven't had time to get bilious this Christmas.—C. Row, jun. (Long Melford).

The third prize bird in the Crestbred cock class at the recent Aberdeen Show shortly after judging unfortunately burst a bloodvessel, dying soon after. The bird was the property of Mr. Ben. Knights (Aberdeen).

I have taken CAGE BIRDS ever since its start, writes Mr. C. H. Toy (Truro), and I can assure you it has made headway faster than any other Fancy paper I have taken (and I have the lot). The show reports are very full.

The Blackburn Linnet Singing Association will hold their annual show at headquarters, "Old Red Lion," Snig Brook, writes Mr Geo. Rostron, secretary, when we hope to see a good attendance of members and friends. Birds will be staged at 2.30.

Mr. Wm. Duke, secretary of the South Shields, North Shields and Dis. C.B.S., writes extending an invitation to friends and fanciers to attend the table show of the society, to be held on January 13th, at Gregg's Cafe, Laygate Lane, at 7 o'clock.

Through a printer's error in our schedule, writes Mr. J. Griffiths, secretary of the Tredegar F. and F.S., the entrance fee for the Cage Bird section at our open show on January 21st, is shown at 2s. 6d. instead of 1s. 6d. Will fanciers please note this?

The secretaries of Spalding Show (Jsnuary 21st), Messrs. Elviss and Mouncy, write stating that the cage-bird exhibits will be given every possible attention, and that all prize money will be paid out within a week. They hope to be favoured with a good entry.

Your reporter at Widnes Show, write Messrs. Hopper Bros. (Millbeck), remarks that the yellow Border hen shown by us was rather warm in colour. As this might perhaps give the impression that it was colour fed, we wish to state that neither this nor any birds in our possession has ever tasted artificial colour in any form whatever. We wish your valuable paper a prosperous New Year.

A few weeks ago, writes Mr. A. F. Jinks (Birmingham), I received a dog from Mr. E. Chapman, of Coventry, in exchange for a Rosella which I advertised in CAGE BIRDS, but he omitted to state his full address. I should be glad if he would forward same to me.

Entries are very short at Diss Show on January 12th, writes Messrs. Gooderham and Burrows (hon. secretaries, and we have extended the date of entries closing until Saturday, January 9th. We trust fanciers will please help us to make our fixture a success.

I have been compelled to resign the secretaryship of the Bolton and Dis. O.S. through going into business, writes Mr. J. Stringer (Bolton). Mr. H. Parkinson has consented to fill the vacancy, and all communications should be addressed to him at 69, Oxford Grove, Bolton.

Mr. A. E. Garton has resigned the secretaryship of the Hyson Green C.B.S. (Nottingham) through pressure of business, writes Mr. Wm. Cottingham, and I have been elected to fill the vacancy. All matters relating to the society should be addressed to me at 9, Peveril Street, Nottingham.

We note from the report of the annual meeting given in another column that the Leeds C.B.S. has decided to resign its membership of the Cage Bird Union. The points of disagreement seem to have been Rule 17, the attitude towards the Yorkshire Union, and the broad one of "failing to carry out the duties for which it was formed."

The printer of the catalogue of the Scottish National (Edinburgh) Show, in class 10, unflighted buff Norwich cock, puts two birds, No. 16 and credits No. 19 with winning 3rd prize. I may state that I was No 16 in the class, and was awarded 3rd prize (31 in class), and special for the best 3rd in the unflighted class. I got the cards alright.—R. D. PARLETT (Sheffield)

At the recent Dublin C.B.A. show, Mr. C. A. O'Reilly, the well-known Dublin exhibitor, had on show a yellow Yorkshire cock—one he bred himself—for which he has refused a price which, we understand, constitutes a record so far as Ireland is concerned. The bird won at this show not only the Yorkshire challenge cup, but the Drummond challenge cup for best bird in show, this for the second time in succession.

It is with regret, writes Mr. A. Flint, that I have to announce the death of Mrs. Bagshaw, the landlady of the "Star Inn," the club-house of our Tideswell C.B.I.S. Since the formation of our society, sixteen years ago, we have held all our meeting and first-feather shows at the "Star," and have always been kindly treated by Mrs. Bagshaw, and I am sure her loss will be greatly felt amongst our members. She had made many friends in the fancy. Since the time of her husband's death some 35 years ago, she carried on the business in a most able manner, and earned the respect of everyone. Readers, I am sure, will join in sympathy with the family in their sad bereavement.

On New Year's night upwards of 100 of the aged poor in North West London (Kentish Town) were provided with a substantial hot dinner and a musical entertainment afterwards, by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gardner, assisted by a number of ladies and gentlemen. At the close hearty cheers were given for the many kind friends in the Cage Bird Fancy who had assisted the dinner fund by their donations. It was a happy gathering.

I can speak as to the necessity of prominent exhibitors and judges seeing that their names and addresses appear in "Cage Birds Annual," writes Mr. George Harland (Hull), as a fancier wrote me only last week stating he had written previously, but to a wrong address (needless to say, the letter did not reach me). He had then, by the aid of the "Annual," found my correct address. I wish CAGE BIRDS a very prosperous New Year.

A humorous set of verses, entitled the "Scottish National" Song, has been written by Mr. R. Farmer, the proceeds of their sale being handed over to the widow of the late Mr. A. R. Langlands (Montrose). Many well-known fanciers find themselves "immortalised" in these verses, which afford excellent reading. A penny stamp and a stamped-addressed envelope will secure a set from Mr. J. Brown, 29, Ran-Keillor Street, Edinburgh

We regret to hear a rumour that the Northern Norwich Plainhead Club is in danger of being abandoned owing to the lukewarm measure of support extended to it. There must surely be a sphere of usefulness for a body such as this, and we hope Northern fanciers will wake up, and deal with the situation promptly, ere the club sinks beyond resuscitation. Its future rests in the hands of the breeders of the "chubby" ones in the northern counties.

I beg to thank you and your able artist, Mr. Norman, writes Mr. E. J. Banks, Cardiff, for the excellent production on the front page of my two unflighted buffs in last week's CAGE BIRDS. These two birds are brothers, the larger of the two, on the left-hand side of your plate, being undefeated until he reached Bristol where he stood 3rd for the bowl in a class of 50. His brother also scored over him in the unflighted class at Cardiff, since which, owing to my having opened a large and, so far, a successful business, I have been unable to support any of the Welsh fixtures. I trust that secretaries of shows in Wales and the West of England will accept the explanation of my inattention to their repeated calls for entries. Owing to the limited time now at my disposal I am reluctantly compelled to part with the majority of my stock, including my winners.

TO READERS ALL.

is now in course of preparation, and will be published early in February, as usual, and be on sale at the forthcoming Crystal Palace Show, and in the hands of all subscribers, we hope, by Saturday, February 6th next. To enable us to keep our word we ask the generous co-operation of readers in sending particulars required in its compilation, also their advertisements, at the earliest possible moment. Any suggestions for new features, or for the improvement of present features will be welcomed, and receive every consideration.

Secretaries of All Societies

devoted to the interests of the cage-bird hobby should send us full particulars of same at once for inclusion in our Alphabetical List of Cage-Bird Clubs. We want the full name of the Society the latest list of its officials, the place and time of meetings and the nights, the entrance fee and the subscription. As this is the only directory to those associations catering for cage bird fanciers in existence, no society can afford to be missing from the list. Members themselves should make a point of seeing that their society is included. Secretaries who have changed their addresses should not fail to notify us. We want our list to be thoroughly up-to-date, and thoroughly complete.

who have officiated at any recognised show can have their name and address inserted in our list of judges by sending us particulars on a post card, stating what varieties (if any) they specialise in. There is no charge whatever. Any judge at present on our list who may have changed his address during the past year should notify us at once. This list, remember, is the only complete one of its kind, and is universally consulted by show officials.

To the Bird Trade.

Our directory to the bird trade is a feature that no dealer in birds, or foods, or medicines, or appliances of any kind whatsoever, can neglect. It is a permanent record of his address, as well as his specialities, which is an invaluable guide to the fanciers in his own town as well as all over the world. No charge is made for the inclusion of any bona-fide trader but the name can be thrown up in heavy black type on payment of 1s. (one shilling).

To All Breeders and Exhibitors and Advertisers Generally.

For Breeders' Cards and other displayed Advertisements, business bringers from All over the World, see the low terms quoted on the back page this week.

These are advertisements which at a very low cost will bring you business for a whole year.

Write us for any particulars you may require.

THE MANAGER, "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL,"

154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

I am extremely sorry to inform you, writes Mr. John Rukin that Mrs. Dewsnap, wife of the well-known Lizard Canary exhibitor, had the misfortune to break her wrist whilst seeing her pets off safely for the Horticultural Hall Show. She slipped on the greasy pavement, with her hand doubled under her. The doctor informs her it will probably mean three months at the least before she can use it again. As she undoubtedly is "bird mon" in the Princess Street aviary, her loss for that length of time will be keenly felt. I am sure all bird lovers will join me in wishing her very speedy recovery.

Echoes from the Scottish National

That Secretary Winter and his committee of splendid workers got through their task with a promptitude and completeness deserving of the greatest praise; that everything was ready early for the judges; that their task was a difficult one; that everything was ready in good time for the admission of the public and anxious exhibitors; that the crowds were great, record gates being the result; that the Scotch Fancies came in for much admiration from those who like to cling to the national bird; that many kind enquiries were made as to the condition of that well-known Scotch fancier, Mr. Wm. McClure, of Glasgow who for several weeks has been laid aside dangerously ill with pneumonia; that his many friends will be glad to know he is now on the fair way to recovery; that the president of the City of Glasgow Association, Mr. Jardine, was there on Friday, and took away with him a clear yellow hen said to be a "good 'un"; that Mr. J. W. Anderson (Maryhill) purchased a cock at a fair price; that Mr. Allerdice had an eye on a yellow green hen, but could not come to terms with the owner; that money was scarce.—"SCOTCH FANCY."

The Norwich Plainhead Club has once more made me a member, writes Mr. Tom Sandiford (Preston)

The show of the Gloucester Fanciers' Society, on January 13th and 14th (judge, Mr. T. H. Payne) should not be overlooked by exhibitors of cage birds, as entries are very short, and there are good prizes to be picked up. The full classification is advertised in our Show columns this week, and fanciers should enter from this at once, as the date of the show is very near now. Every possible attention will, writes the secretary, Mr. Powell, be given to the exhibits.

Blushing Bobby.

A most amusing moment at the dinner of the L. and P.O.S. last Wednesday evening. One of the songs was entitled, either by accident or design, "Bobby Dear." It so fell out that that popular London enthusiast, Mr. Robert (Bob) Pretty was present, attired for the occasion in a resplendent striped waistcoat, looking somewhat like an out-of-work millionaire. One of the lines in "Bobby Dear" tells Bobby how well his waistcoat fits him. When this line was reached in the song, a roar of uncontrollable laughter burst all round the room and "R.J.P." was chaffed unmercifully, the lady singer subsequently addressing the whole of her remarks to her blushing "Bobby Dear."

Specials at the Scottish National.

We hear from Mr. James Winter, the secretary, that the winners of the principal special prizes at the recent Scottish National Show, were as follows:—Dewar Challenge Shield for best bird in the show, Mr. Robt. Armstrong (Tyne Dock), with his young crested cock "King of Kings"; Lord Provost Gibson, cup for most points in Norwich section, Mr. Alfred Grey (Morpeth); Foreign Bird Challenge Trophy for most points, Miss Peddie Waddell (Edinburgh); Patterson Cup for best young Scotch Fancy, Mr. W. Thornton (Blackhall); Bennet Cup for best young Border Fancy, Mr. T. Todd (Edinburgh); Brown Cup for most points in British section, Mr. R. J. Howe (Wellingborough); Sandiford Cup, Mr. S. Cook (Manchester); Ramsden's Specials, Messrs. J. McAnally, L. J. Arrighi, and S. Buglass; Scottish Plainhead Club Gold Medal for best young cock, Mr. A. Watson (Kilmarnock); for best young hen, Mr. S. Buglass (Edinburgh); Border Fancy Club Medals, Messrs. D. O'Connell (Swansea) and J. Connochie (Inverness); most points in crest section, Mr. T. Taylor (Gateshead); in Scotch Fancies, Mr. J. McLennan (Edinburgh); in Belgians, Mr J. Fairley (Coatbridge); in Border Fancies, Mr. Hy. Bennet (Kelso); in Cinnamons, Yorkshires, and Greens, Mr. E. Godley (Rishton); and in Mules and Hybrids, Mr. L. J. Arrighi (Edinburgh).

Echoes from Paisley Show.

That the quality was quite up to the average; that Secretary Baird had his hands full; that he is never happier than when he has plenty to do; that a yellow pied Scotch Fancy hen laid an egg in its cage on the Saturday morning; that this is a unique occurrence; that the writer does not remember hearing of an instance of this kind before; that the friends of Mr. McClure (their name is legion) were much relieved to learn that he was on the way to recovery; that his portly figure, his genial smile and his birds were much missed; that in the Scotch Fancy section two "incidents" cropped up; that the judges were not entirely satisfied with the conditions of one exhibit; that the matter was referred to another well-known fancier, who gave his decision, and not in favour of the judges; that the judges felt very strongly on the point; that it was a question whether there had not been tampering with both colour and feather; that a well-known fancier was prepared to enter his protest, but was too late in giving notice of same; that another exhibit belonging to the same owner and entered as a hen, gave indication that it was a cock, by whistling one of its best tunes, much to the amusement of the judges and onlookers; that this particular bird was exhibited as a hen at Blackwood Show, and lifted a prize and specials; that the show was well patronised both by breeders and the general public, many ladies being amongst the crowd.—"SCOTCH FANCY."

The Forthcoming "Jubilee" Crystal Palace Show.

The schedule of classes and prizes at the "Jubilee" Crystal Palace Show, on February 5th, 6th, 8th, and 9th next, has now been issued and copies may be had on application to the show manager, Mr J. W. Ramsden, 11, Josephine Avenue Brixton, London, S.W. Every effort has been made to make this notable event worthy of the occasion, extra classes and extra prize money being provided for the same entry fee as before. The prize money, in cash is on a most generous scale, 15s. first, 10s. second, 5s. third, 2s. fourth, and 2s. fifth, on an entrance fee of 2s. per cage. In addition in all classes with 25 entries or over, there will be a further cash prize of 2s. (given by CAGE BIRDS) for best v.h.c. bird, and 2s. for best h.c. bird (given by the L. and P.O.S.). Gold, silver, and bronze medals to full value may be had instead of cash, at the winner's option. There are 146 classes (Norwich 8, Crest 7, Yorks. 12, Greens 8, Cinnamons 4, Lanes 4, Lizards 4, Borders 8, Scotch 4, Belgians 4, Any Variety 1, London Fancy 1, A.O.V. Canary 1, Classes for Novices 18, Price Limit Classes 7, Any (Variety 3, Hybrids 11, British birds 25, Foreign 11, Stock Class 1, cages 3), with specialist judges. Intending exhibitors should note that entries positively close on January 23rd, and that there will be no extension. Next week we hope to review all the arrangements at length.

The Scottish National Show.

The most successful Exhibition yet held in Edinburgh By the Scottish National C.B.S. A magnificent display of birds, and a magnificent attendance of fanciers.

The show of the Scottish National C.B.S., held on December 31st and January 1st, proved to be the most successful exhibition to date in this progressive society's career. The seventh of its kind, it succeeded in bringing together a magnificent display of over 1,900 birds, which comprised the cream of the Fancy from Scotland, England, and Wales. The Norwich Plainheads were a really grand lot, some splendid birds heading their different classes, many of which were so keenly contested that three sets of winners could have been found therein. The Crests and Crest-breds contained many very high-class specimens, the Tyneside contingent being strongly in evidence. In this section was found the challenge shield winner in Mr. Armstrong's noted champion, "King of Kings," which was staged to perfection, and came in for universal admiration. The bird is undoubtedly a real triumph of the breeder's art.

The Near Relatives.

In the Scotch Fancy Section, there was a fine army of some of the season's champions, though entries might have been better, but the quality was all that could be desired. The total for the section was 146, and as at this show some of the best blood in Scotland is staged, possibly some breeders preferred to keep their birds at home rather than court defeat. The judges' awards appeared to give general satisfaction. The Scotch and Belgian Sections attracted a lot of attention from visitors and breeders alike. A handsome cup, presented by Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside) for best young bird bred by a member, was won by Mr. W. Thornton's cl. yell. ck., a spanker for style, and winner of three specials. The runner up and winner of the Toronto C.B.S. bronze medal, was a foul yell. ck. of grand size and style, belonging to Mr. McLennan (Peirshill). There were three classes for Belgians, with an entry of 29, and a few of the season's champions appeared therein. Mr. J. Fairley had some of his best blood forward, in one class taking all honours but one, and he is at the top for most points in Belgian classes throughout the season. He takes the F.K.B.C.A. prizes viz., the Greame Memorial Trophy, gold medal, brouze medal and "Reddilhough" challenge cup.

The Wee Gems.

The Border Fancy Section was one of the most attractive features of the show, and it was difficult to get a fair look at some of the champions staged, owing to the crowds of fanciers and visitors standing around and sizing them up as regard their relative show points. The best birds from a wide range of districts were there, and we were pleased to note a successful fancier all the way from Swansea, Mr. D. O'Connell, who secured a fairly good share of awards in this hot competition, winning also B.F.C.S. Novice Medal with a very typical Buff uneven cock. As regards the other plums provided for exhibitors to pick, Mr. H. Bennet (Kelso) the well-known specialist put up a record, his team securing no less than 9 firsts out of the 13 classes he was competing in. However, Messrs. Duncan and Logan did not let him have it all his own way, as this firm secured 5 firsts, and were a good second four times to him. To come to the point, it was simply a matter of which firm here had the freshest and best polished birds, for these points told in the final stages. Mr Bennet's team had the advantage of comprising seven fresh exhibits.

The Green Borders made an extra big turn out, and no doubt this was owing to the management securing the services of that well known Green specialist, Mr. T. Arnot, who must have been delighted at having such a grand lot placed before him. The judges of Border classes were Messrs. J. Wilson (Workington), who took all Clear, Marked and Foul Yellow classes: A. Gilchrist (Coldstream), the corresponding Buff classes, and T. Arnot (Hawick) all Green classes and Limit class. Their awards were popular and received very little adverse critieism. Mr. T. Todd secured the "Bennet" cup (confined) with a very neat Clear Yellow hen.

Olla Podrida.

Cinnamons, Yorkshires, Greens, Lizards, were very nice classes, for, although the entries were on the small side, the competition was exceedingly keen. Judging by the number of admirers of the Yorkshires, they promise to take a strong hold in Scotland ere long. The Mules and Hybrids were a highly interesting lot, with some wonderful birds in the Light classes, and in the Dark classes some toppers for colour and size, and all of them were grandly staged. The British and Foreign classes, however, might rightly be termed the outstanding feature of the show. The Britishers turned up in wonderful numbers, and among them shone all the "stars" of the season. The Hardbills were exceptionally good, though the Softbills were close up in point of quality, while perfection of condition and staging ran right through the classes, on which the exhibitors are to be heartily congratulated.

The Foreign section did not come up to expectations. Miss Peddie Waddell, attentive and enthusiastic as ever, once again gave those birds every possible attention, and with that thoroughness which is the hall-mark of the born fancier. Miss Waddell is genuinely fond of birds, and her only regret was that her duties were so light.

The Arrangements and the Arrangers.

The staging was admirably arranged on the most up-to-date and efficient lines. Mr. Kinlayside had the fitting-up left in his hands, as usual. He has always some new idea, and his latest was much appreciated. This great show is usually visited during judging by many scores of exhibitors, all eager to learn the results. To save the committee and the hard-worked secretary a great deal of trouble, Mr. Kinlayside had fixed up a board on which, after each class had been judged, the result could be posted. It was voted a really grand idea.

Coming to the officials generally, it would be very, very difficult to find a better lot than those at the head of affairs at the Scottish National Show—good fanciers and zealous workers to a man. The president, Mr. A. C. Dandie, is widely known and respected, while Messrs. L. J. Arrighi, R. Craig, and J. F. Dewar form a popular trio of vice-presidents, and these four gentlemen spare no pains to make their society's show a deserving success. The hon. president is William Grant, Esq., ex-Master of Merchant Company, and the hon vice-presidents, Bailie Stevenson, and Messrs. W. Aitchison, J. Brown, A. G. Cameron, F. A. Watt, and G. M. Brotherston. The committee comprises Messrs. T. Todd, R. Martin, W. Holton, S. Buglass, J. D. Melrose, W. F. Arrighi, A. W. Watson, P. West, A. Gorrie, D. Kinlayside, A. Foster, J. Smeaton, W. R. Dunn, W. Fianie, W. Carson, J. W. Bulet, W. M. Miller, R. Mackay, J. Drysdale, J. Hutchison, T. Grant, D. Morris, J. Buglass, and A. Rodger. The best testimonial as to the efficiency of their work lies in the wonderful and ever-increasing success which attends the show. Of a truth, it is not possible to conceive of birds being fed and tended with greater consideration. How great a part of the general success is due to the efforts of the secretary, Mr. James Winter, is testified to by his popularity amongst his colleagues and fanciers generally, while the smooth way in which the exhibition worked, and the entire absence of any friction, or even so much as a hitch, points clearly to the worthiness of the "man at the helm." One of the hardest of workers, unobtrusive, genial, and always helpful, Mr. Winter has made heaps of new friends since he took over the secretarial work, and it is to be hoped the society may long command his services.

Responsible Parties.

The judges for the various sections were: Norwich, Messrs. J. Trengove and J. Melvin, and the latter also took the Limit classes, and the former the classes confined to the Scottish Plainhead Club. Crests were adjudicated upon by Mr. J. Young; Scotch Fancies by Messrs. A. Paterson, J. Watson, R. Wright, and J. Pringle; and the Belgians by Messrs. Paterson and Wright. The Borders were handled by Messrs. J. Wilson, A. Gilchrist, and T. Arnot; Cinnamons, Yorks, and Lizards by Mr. A. Hirst; the Green section by Messrs. Hirst and Trengove; Mules by Mr. A. Cochrane; and the British by Messrs. Cochrane, H. J. Fulljames, and F. A. Watt, Mr. Fulljames also taking the Foreign. With the excellent stewards and perfect management their tasks were lightened as far as it is possible to do, and they got through in good time, while the prize cards were promptly displayed. On the whole, it can be truthfully recorded that their awards were well received.

Odds and Ends.

The auction sale of the winners in the Limit Classes was, as usual, a great success. Some of the birds fetched double their catalogue price, and most of them exceeded it.

We hope to hear of a good balance in hand after all liabilities have been cleared up. The sales were numerous, but we heard of no startling prices being realised. We understand that a pair of Scotch Fancies were sold by Mr. Pringle (Galashiels) for £25.

Rotund, jolly-faced Mr. Gilchrist smiled broadly when he heard of the huge entry of "wee" Borders. He and his co-judges had a by no means easy task among the Cream of the Border Fancies; to pick out the winner in a class of 35 Clears requires some doing.

Little Willie Aitchison (as popular as he is bulky) was among 'em again with his non-fed Norwich, and was "all smiles" when he gleaned that his grand yellow cock had again secured a first. Is it correct that the judge at another show gave the special for best Norwich to a bird standing second to it?

After his struggle to get to the show (15 hours on the journey), Mr. Watt, of Banff (looking rather fagged), had a big job with his classes; the competition was exceptionally keen. The field-mounted Linnets bothered him a bit (as they do most judges), but he eventually got through, and seemed to place the awards throughout to the general satisfaction.

A feature of the show was the big board just outside the enclosure, whereon, as soon as a judge handed in his "slip," a steward posted up the winning numbers. This was voted a great convenience by the anxiously-waiting exhibitors. Looking at the board and hearing the babel of eager voices, one could almost fancy one was on Newmarket Heath or Epsom Downs; it only needed a "bookie," and an offer of the "odds," to make the thing quite real.

Big as is the Corn Exchange, there was hardly room in it for the huge holiday crowd which assembled on the second day, and although one could see the visitors were chiefly upon pleasure bent, they were none the less critical, and cared nothing for cards or catalogues but just gave their opinions with the usual northern emphasis. A judge (among such a crowd) has to be pretty pleased with his awards to get through the day comfortably, for his decisions are very thoroughly "dissected."

The judging for the Dewar Challenge Shield was highly interesting. The best bird in each section was brought out, making nine competitants. This little but choice collection, was treated as an A.O.V. class, and each judge was asked to hand in a "slip," placing the first eight, the exhibit gaining most points being declared the shield winner. This bird proved to be Mr. R. Armstrong's grand young variegated Crest (with 56 points), the runner-up being Mr Thornton's yellow Scotch Fancy, while Dr. Galloway's beautiful clear Siskin-Canary was third, with 50 points (one less than the Scotch Fancy). We heard that one of the judges failed to include the latter gem in the ticket, an oversight, we should think, rather than any question of merit.

Y.C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

Meeting held in Co-operative Hall, Glasgow, on December 29th. A letter was read proposing to alter date of annual general meeting, but after due consideration it was decided to let the date stand, as several country members found it convenient to come through on this date (January 26th) A committee was formed to purchase challenge bowl, these being Messrs. R. B. Gibb, R. Mitchell, and the secretary. It was further decided that we purchase gold medals, as per sample from Fattorini and Sons (Bradford). This being all the business, Mr. W Fortune, who came through from Edinburgh, gave a very instructive lecture on the Yorkshire Canary, which proved by far the "tit-bit" of the season. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Fortune.—F. BOWMAN, Hon. Sec.

ABERDEEN.

Aberdeen C.B.S. held their 53rd annual show on December 25th and 26th, in the Music Hall, which provided most suitable accommodation for the vast number of exhibits The society had the patronage of the Norwich Plainhead Club, the Scottish Yorkshire Club, and the Scottish Crest Club. The entries were all that could be desired, some 550 birds being staged. The cream of the Norwich Fancy was on view at this fixture, some rare hot ones of the right type and quality being staged to perfection. Mr. Geo. Mitchell gained the S.P.C. medal for cocks, and Mr. Wm. Clubb the medal for best hen. The cup for best young hen bred by a member was won by Mr. Wm. Rae with a very sweet exhibit. The Sandilford medal for hottest fed yellow Norwich went to Mr. J. Adams, and that for the hottest fed buff went to Mr. Grewar The Border Fancies did not come quite up to expectations, only 18 birds being forward in the four classes provided. Crests and Crest-breds were few, but some grand exhibits of the first water were staged. The British and Foreign birds were a remarkably fine lot, as were also the Mules and Hybrids. Dr. Galloway's two clear Mules were much admired, the winning clear yellow Siskin Canary being in perfect bloom, and followed by a clear Greenfinch-Canary. We noticed No. 3, a said-to-be Siskin-Canary, was marked wrong class, the judge, we heard, being satisfied it was only a Canary. Of the management we cannot speak too highly. The president, Mr. J. Hector, has the Fancy at heart, and does all in his power for the benefit of the society. It is also nice to see such fanciers as Dr. Galloway lending a helping hand when the pressure comes on in sending exhibits away. The secretary, Mr. John Bryson, kept everything in good order, and worked with a will, being ably assisted by the treasurer, Mr. J. Silver, and a hard-working committee, consisting of well-known Aberdeen fanciers Norwich, etc., were judged by Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot), Crests and Selling classes by Mr. John Donald, British, Mules, and Foreign by Mr. Geo. Finnie (Aberdeen), and their awards seemed to give satisfaction.

FORFAR.

The 38th annual show of Forfar C.B.A. was held in the Reid Halls, on January 1st and 2nd. The cage birds were staged in a small ball on the second floor, an ideal place for such a show, being well lighted, nicely heated, and free from draughts. The entries were better than last year, although the snow-storm was the means of making many fanciers keep their pets at home, but on the whole the exhibition was a great success. To the energetic and fancier-like spirit of the committee and the untiring efforts of the secretaries, Messrs. W. Grewer and J. M. Findlay, a successful result is mainly due The former, who has charge of the cage bird section is very obliging, and goes about his work in a systematic manner. The staging was all that could be desired, the back being nicely draped with a dark cloth, which had a fine effect. The judges were: For Norwich, Mr. G. Duffus; Border Fancies, Mr. G. Hislop; British and Foreign, Mr. G. Marlin, and their awards gave general satisfaction. The following constituted the management: President, Mr. Ernest Grant, vice-presidents, Messrs. W. DUBLIN.

The executive of the Dublin P., C.B. and P.A., are to be heartily congratulated upon the splendid show which they succeeded in getting together at the Rotunda on December 31st and January 1st. The entry was in excess of last year, whilst better quality we have never seen in the Irish Metropolis. Norwich have made great strides in Ireland, and birds of splendid type and quality predominated. Crests are neither so numerous, nor of such high merit as they used to be. Fifteen to twenty years ago Crests were with the Scots the feature of Dublin fixtures, and in those days the Irish birds could, and did, hold their own with those of English breeders. The veteran Camp was then in the heyday of his fame, and we quite enjoyed our chat with this good old fancier, who we were pleased to find still keeps a few of his old favourites, although he is now more interested in rural life, and pets of another kind. Yorkshires are now the great favourites amongst Irish breeders. Some 200 were staged, and from them came the winner of the Drummond Challenge Cup for the best bird in the show, a lovely clear yellow. This bird should make up into a grand yearling. We congratulate his owner, Mr. C. A. O'Reilly upon producing such a worthy representative of this variety. The "straight 'una," also provided the runner-up for this much-coveted trophy, in Mr. Fleming's Cinnamon-marked buff hen, a most charming little lass. British birds were an exceptionally fine lot, the Goldfinches and Linnets especially, and the task of sorting the latter was not one to be envied. Mr. Birse secured special for best British, with a very fine Missel Thrush, which was staged in the pink of condition.

The committee responsible for the fixture were: Messrs. M. L. Hearn (president), T. S. Carey, W. Camp, E. J. Reddy, J. Blood, — Smyth (vice presidents), W. Webster, R. C. Bolton, T. Farrell, W. D. Latimer, T. F. O'Reilly, F. R. Buckley, T. Speedy, J. C. Maclean, J. T. Dixon, E. R. Phillips, C. W. Smyth, A. Brady, W. C. Sholedice, F. R., Fry, J. J. Cloke, G. A. Thompson, J. Dowling, and Thomas Speedy (treasurer). Mr. J. Gibson is the secretary, and a really capable one, and a better worker it would be hard to find. All the arrangements were of the best, and everything moved like clockwork. The weather was not of the best, but this did not prevent a good attendance, the gate, we are pleased to say, exceeding that of last year. It was an excellent and most interesting show, and the success achieved was hard worked for, and well deserved. The flight during the day was very bad, and the task of judging most difficult; as a consequence, it was nearly seven o'clock before Mr. Robson completed his awards.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, FLEET ST., LONDON.

GUISBOROUGH.

Notwithstanding so many shows being held on New Year's Day, and the other holiday attractions, the Committee of the Guisborough and Dist. Priory C.B.S. are to be congratulated on having a record entry, and such a grand collection of birds. Just 100 exhibitors responded to the schedules sent out offering 33 classes with 4 prizes in each, together with about 20 specials for a low entrance fee of 1/-. This, with a knowledge that the birds would only be away for a day, was no doubt a great temptation to those who value their stock in the cold months of the year. We learn that all the birds were packed and sent away by the last train the evening of the show day. Mr. Jacob Mackley (Norwich) judged, and his awards were well received. All the prize cards were affixed to the cages by 2 p.m., when the President (Mrs. Chaloner) opened the exhibition, supported by her husband, Col. Chaloner, and her daughter. In her opening speech the President congratulated the members upon getting together such a fine collection of birds, and was pleased to see so many British birds carefully provided with roomy cages. The vice-president also spoke encouragingly to the unsuccessful exhibitors and hoped the cup the Colonel had given would be competed for in a friendly spirit. The cup was offered for the best Canary in show, and it fell to Mr. Walter Radley's Variegated Buff C.B. Cock. Both bird and cup were shown round the hall amidst much applause. This association consists of good young fanciers well up to the management of an exhibition. The chairman is Mr. J. G. Cook; vice-chairman, Mr. F. Jones; committee, Messrs. Hood, Starling, Hall, Meaburn, Graham, Blackburn, Jobling, Mayes, Jackson, Parker, Winter and White, whose attention to the exhibits was all that was required. The secretarial duties were in the able hands of Messrs. Atkinson and Wilson, while Mr. A. W. Knaggs, looked after the finances. Of the birds themselves we can speak very highly. The Yorkshires contained some very smart birds, which were well shown. The Norwich were a nice level lot, as also were the Crests and crest-breds. Borders and Mules. The British and Foreign Birds made a grand collection. The competition in the Linnets, Goldfinches, and Bullfinches gave Mr. Mackley no little work. A splendid glossy Starling, a superb Tanager, and a Golden-fronted Fruit-sucker exhibited by Messrs. Nicholson and Son, of Stockton, came in for a big share of admiration.

ANNUAL DINNER OF THE L. AND P.O.S.

The social side of "the Fancy" might with advantage be cultivated to a much greater extent than it is at present. Such an enjoyable and convivial function as the annual dinner of the London and Provincial Ornithological Society proved this year is evidence of the truth of that reflection. Far too seldom do we unbend from the severer phases of our hobby. Held at that well-known London hostelry, "The Horseshoe," in Tottenham Court Road, on Wednesday evening last, January 6th, a representative and merry muster of members and their friends responded to the invitation of the dinner sub-committee, Messrs. Dobson Mortlock, and Tringham, and did full justice to the most excellent repast provided, and listened with the finest appreciation to the well-considered programme of musical and humorous contributions of a number of talented artistes. We think it necessary at the outset to tender our sincere congratulations to the responsible sub-committee for the splendid manner in which the affair went through to a successful conclusion. Proceedings went with a bang from start to finish, and we can only express the hope that this resuscitation of a most pleasing social fixture will be maintained in the future.

MENU.—SOUPS: Consomme Printaniere, Thick Mock Turtle. FISH: Fillet of Sole Bercy, Devilled Whitebait. ENTREE: Chicken Cutlets and Peas. JOINTS: Roast Sirloin of Beef, Boiled Leg of Mutton, Vegetables. POULTRY: Roast Turkey and Sausage, Chips. SWEETS: Pears a la Conde, Blancmange, Wine Jellies, Ice Pudding. Cheese. Celery. Dessert.

Amongst those fanciers present we noticed Mr. G. Crabb (in the chair), J. P. Anderson, T. Heath, J. Ramsden, Geo. Ramsden, F. S. Matthes, H. K. Picard, F. W. Thorpe, W. Piddis, O. Hands, R. J. Pretty, H. J. Pearce, E. S. Lugg, W. A. Gilbert, C. W. Baker, J. Keeling, C. Patser, Arthur R. Bolton, Walter G. Lee, H. J. Hawes, A. Williams, Geo. Ogle, W. Hodson, J. Hazell, H. Horton, C. Mortlock, P. G. Mortlock, H. R. Mortlock, T. R. Trower, C. R. Oake, J. Dobson, J. Oldaker. H. Litchfield, J. Robson, and H. E. Tringham. Amongst the ladies present were Mrs. Ramsden, Mrs. C. W. Baker, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Mortlock, Mrs. Lechbridge, Miss Oldaker, Miss N. Cooper, Mrs. Litchfield and Mrs. Tringham.

Opening the speechifying which was commendably brief and pithy, Mr. Geo. Crabb, the chairman, proposed, after a few well-selected words, the toast of "The King." His Majesty's health was drunk with applause to musical honours. Permission to smoke was then greeted with loud applause and some little laughter, most of the guests having slyly anticipated that permission.

Mr. Ramsden, proposing the toast of "The London and P.O.S.," coupling with it the name of Mr. G. Crabb, said their society was in a most flourishing condition. It was blessed with ample funds to carry out its ideas, and they were just about to hold at the Crystal Palace the biggest show of cage birds that had ever been held in the world for which all records had been beaten in every respect except the entry, and for a record in that they confidently appealed to exhibitors. Mr. Crabb, in his reply, also referred to the Jubilee Show, and trusted that all present would put their best foot forward to its support. The L. and P.O.S. meetings during the past year had been of unusual interest. In the forthcoming year they would make every effort to improve that interest. The L. and P.O.S. was the oldest society in London, but it showed no sign of dotage as yet. They extended a helping hand to younger societies. There had been a great increase in the number of London fanciers of late, and the L. and P.O.S. had felt the benefit of new blood. In the past year the L. and P.O.S. had distributed and returned all the members' subscriptions to themselves, plus 1s. a head, in the way of cups, medals expenses of lectures, etc. Cups, valve £20, were to be competed for freely by every member. The services of the hon. solicitor, Mr. Tweed were eulogised. In connection with their Jubilee Show, a free entry would be given in the stock class to every member entering in the ordinary classes. Mr. Crabb concluded by wishing the members success during the coming year. Mr. Ramsden, supplementing Mr. Crabb, said that extra cash prizes would be given in every class at the Jubilee Show by the L. and P.O.S. Mr. Carl had announced his intention of presenting a cash prize to the best v.h.c. in every well-filled class. Mr Ramsden following suit with a cash special for the best h.c. ditto. There would thus be the possibility of seven and the certainty of five cash prizes, to say nothing of a long array of valuable trophies, medals, and specials.

Mr. T. Heath, that veteran London enthusiast, bashfully curtailed his toast of the ladies, pleading with shameful mendacity his ignorance of the subject. Mr. Picard responded for the fair ones in a drily humorous vein that caused considerable laughter. Pretending to change his sex for the occasion, he expressed as a lady his, or should he say "her" constant willingness to help the mere male in the riding of his hobby. The men he (she) was conscious, were but poor things but for that assistance. Mr. Mortlock, in felicitous terms proposed the toast of "The Visitors," dwelling on the large number they had present that evening, and extending to them in the name of the L. and P.O.S. a cordial and hearty welcome to hospitality and membership. He also paid a graceful compliment to the lady visitors. Mr. Anderson responded. As a one-bird man his acquaintance with "feathers" was limited, but he found the hobby entirely fascinating and delightful. Nothing could be more admirable than the enthusiasm shown by the average bird "fancier." He thought they (the visitors) had all spent a most pleasant evening, and a profitable one, and he heartily thanked the chairman and members for the kindly welcome given them.

The proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the sub-committee, for which Mr. Dobson replied, paying Mr. Tringham a special compliment for his labours, and the usual vote of thanks to Mr. Crabb as chairman, who was promptly "jolly good fellowed" with unanimous uproar.

We must not close our account without mentioning the names of the excellent entertainers. We were charmed with the singing of Miss Edith Coates, a powerful, but sweet and pure mezzo soprano, who rendered several items with great verve and intelligence. The tenor songs of Mr. T. Edgar found great favour. His voice finding its best effects in such popular songs as "Songs of Araby" and "Pair of Sparkling Eyes." Mr. Norman Greene's rich and thrilling baritone did ample justice to "Thora" and other ballads of similar genre.

Mr. C. E. Mortlock, another baritone, proved most popular, and deservedly so, while Mr. Will Putner's humorous ditties "Hang out the Front Door Key" and "Put me a Girl inside," vastly pleased the frivolous section of the audience, as usual in the majority. Mr. T. James, notwithstanding he was suffering from a severe cold, afforded much enjoyment with a whistling song. The pianoforte accompaniments were most efficiently discharged by Mr. Jose de Winter.

I would like to take this seasonable opportunity of thanking all my many friends and constant supporters of this journal—the first to be solely and wholly devoted to the interests of cage-bird keepers—and to say that it will ever be my constant aim and desire to merit the continuance of their approbation. I am conscious how little I owe to my own labours and how much I owe to the all too generous patronage of the cage-bird world. Never before in the history of "Cage Birds" has it had so many readers, and in accordance with my usual custom I shall shortly publish a certificate of actual net sales, justifying the confidence reposed in our little paper by its advertisers.

CANARY QUERIES.

Accommodation.

No Name.—In the first space 5ft. long by 22in. wide I would not advise you to keep more than three hens breeding for feeders as it stands, and this is assuming you will remove the young they may be given to rear when well able to do for themselves. If you were to divide it up into four or five equal spaces you could keep as many hens and two cocks at the most would be all you would really require to put them to nest. To succeed in your object of utilising the hens as feeders you would find this latter plan much better than allowing the birds to fly together. Each hen would probably settle down more quietly and be more free from disturbance, and, consequently, more reliable when in a separate space by itself. The same remarks apply equally to your second question. In this space also you might run three hens as it stands—its greater length gives the birds more liberty to get away from each other—but here again if divided into three separate spaces it would give as many hens far greater privacy, and still leave each one with a nice roomy cage to breed in.

Effects of Removal.

Thomas.—Beyond saying that the birds do nothing but call to each other and stand on the perches flapping their wings since you brought them down from a cold room into the kitchen, you give no particulars of symptoms of any illness at all. I am therefore inclined to think the effect of the change of quarters has simply been to bring the birds into premature breeding condition. As you do not seem to have altered your diet, which was suitable enough for a cold room, but is too stimulating for a warm kitchen, this also adds colour to the above theory. Try following treatment for a fortnight, and if any signs of illness appear then, write again and state the symptoms. See the birds are in no draughts, and do not keep them too near the fire, which would cause them to miss the heat greatly when the fire is put out at night. As a staple diet give plain Canary seed only, and twice a week give each a pinch of summer rape. Once a week give half a teaspoonful of egg food to each, or its equivalent in crushed sponge cake or bread and milk, and on each of the other days give a scrap of green food or fruit, or even a bit of carrot, boiled or raw. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence one day each week, or three times in the fortnight. It is not unlikely that the recent snap of winter will have brought them to their senses before this reply appears. If they have not resumed their ordinary song hang both cages on the same wall, when the birds will not be able to see each other if the cages are box pattern, as they should be.

In a Bad Way.

W. F. (Renfrew).—I have not the least doubt but that your previous management and feeding, which are far from being correct, are the cause of the trouble. The birds will do much better in the room you have now put them in. Treat as follows for a fortnight or so, and then let me hear result. Begin by destroying all seeds and foods that have been injured by damp, and give in future nothing but what is perfectly sweet and sound. As a staple diet give good sound Canary seed only in unlimited quantities. In addition give separately half a teaspoonful of hemp per bird twice a week; on two other days a similar quantity of scalded rape—use only the small reddish coloured summer rape—and every second day half a teaspoonful per bird of crushed sponge cake with two drops of Chemical Food and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion, well mixed in it. Give all these extras alternately, so that a different one is given each day. Do not give any green food or fruit, except it be a morsel of banana occasionally, nor any seeds or foods other than those named above. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give ten drops of whisky, and five each of glycerine and tincture of rhubarb for the first two days. Afterwards drop this and give instead twenty drops of whisky, five of dandelion juice, and every second day as much carbonate of bismuth as will cover a sixpence in the same quantity of water, and twelve drops of Chemical Food on the alternate days. Continue until the droppings are normal; then drop the first mixture, and give four drops of tincture of steel instead for a few days. The Chemical Food may be continued for two or three weeks. When the diarrhoea has ceased thoroughly clean up the floor and put down a fresh supply of clean untainted sand.

To Join the Ranks.

"Andrew."—The way to become a member of the Crested Canary Club is to get some member to propose your name for membership at one of the club meetings. Then if the motion is accepted to the majority, all you will have to do is to pay your entrance fee and the annual subscription to become a recognised member. If you do not know any member of the club, the secretary will doubtless be pleased to propose you, or would tell you of any likely member in your vicinity. The addresses of all secretaries will be found in CAGE BIRDS' ANNUAL.

Moulting and a Tonic.

E. H. (Windsor).—Your bird has undoubtedly been exposed to a chill, or some great variations in temperature to cause the renewed moulting you speak of. Feed him on the ordinary diet frequently advised here, keep him in an equable, but not necessarily overheated, temperature, quite free from draughts, and give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three drops of sherry mixed in it every second day for a fortnight, and in the drinking water twelve drops of Chemical Food every second day—on the same days as you give the sponge cake—and on the alternate days four drops of tincture of steel. The Chemical Food given as mentioned above, or in those quantities, daily for two or three days is a very good and useful tonic; or for birds that are slack and in low condition three-drop doses of tincture of steel in the water for a day or two are very good as adjuncts to feeding-up; a few grains of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in the water; or two drops each of tincture of gentian and tincture of steel, are also excellent when the appetite is poor. But do not give tonics to healthy birds; reserve them for time of necessity, and always observe one cardinal rule when about to use tonics—viz., never give a tonic medicine on a foul stomach or loaded intestine.

Five in One.

W. Shone.—1. Your outdoor aviary will at its full capacity, accommodate 24 birds the size of a Norwich. For breeding purposes it would be sufficient to add one cock and two hen Canaries, in addition to those you now have. But you must be prepared for disappointments which are very apt to crop up when attempting to breed in these small places with mixed collections of birds. 2. Am afraid I do not know any variety of prize-bred Canary with all the qualifications you require, which would succeed in your out-door aviary all the year round. Many good strains of prize-bred Yorkshires are bred in cold rooms, and kept without heat all the year round, but being valuable birds, I doubt whether the breeders of these strains would risk keeping them out-doors all the year round. Norwich when similarly bred are perhaps a trifle hardier. 3. You would attain your object here by mating a self green Yorkshire with a variegated; or with a broken green bred from heavily variegated parents. In either case you would have a good proportion of broken greens as well as selfs, and variegated. You cannot get all self greens, and attractively variegated—by which I suppose you mean not too heavily variegated—without having a good proportion of intermediate varieties. A broken green and a ticked would probably give you the greatest proportion of nicely variegated birds, but self greens would probably be very few in number. So much depends upon how the parent birds are bred that being a novice you had best state your wants to a breeder and trust to his selection for a suitable pair. 4. Much as I might wish to help a novice, I regret I cannot comply with this request. To do so would not be fair to others. 5. From November to the end of February is about the best time to buy fresh stock. There is generally more choice, and the prices are a trifle lower than from March onwards. But if the birds have not been previously kept out-doors you must not turn them out before the end of April or sometime in May.

Film on Eye, etc.

"Querist."—The bird with a white film over his eye is suffering from cataract, which is a practically incurable form of blindness in cage birds. You may try the following ointment for a few weeks, and let me know result; but, candidly, I do not hold out any hope of its curing the trouble. Get a chemist to mix you three grains of red oxide of mercury in half an ounce of spermaceti ointment. Twice or three times a week catch the bird and put a tiny piece about the size of a pin's head in each eye, holding the bird a few moments whilst it melts, and assisting it to work its way all round the eyelid. The ointment is poisonous, so be careful with it. I cannot really understand what is wrong with the Norwich cock which you think has a bad cold, but which makes more noise during the day, especially when you go near the cage. Are you quite sure it is not squeaking at you from tameness, perhaps expecting a tit-bit? Treat it as follows for a fortnight, and if not better then write again and describe its symptoms. For staple food give a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape, twice a week, a few grains of hemp, and every second day a half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it. Two or three times a week give a scrap of green food, or a bit of banana—the latter instead of, and in preference to, apple. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and after that give twelve drops of Chemical Food every second day during the fortnight, and on the alternate days two drops of tincture of gentian and five of dandelion juice. See the cage is free from red mites and draughts, and keep it strewn with clean gritty sand. Treat the two hens the same as the Norwich cock (I am quite sorry, by the bye, for the poor dear who has lost all her teeth. Terrible!! yet not so bad if you supply her with new ones regularly in the shape of gritty sand). The only difference you need make in the treatment of these hens is to add two drops of tincture of steel to the mixture of gentian and dandelion juice, and give a fourth part only instead of a third part of rape in the staple diet.

Film on Eye the Second.

Puzzled One.—Your former queries were unavoidably delayed on account of Christmas postal dislocations. The second item in your letter I recognise as an addition to your former queries, and so answer it here. All the other questions are dealt with in the other reply. As this singing hen is active and healthy, I should advise you to let well alone. Assuming she has not moulted imperceptibly, she may probably drop into moult as soon as the weather gets nice and mild, but even if she does not, and she continues healthy, as now, do not attempt to force on a moult. Certainly I would mate up such a hen at the proper time. There is no reason whatever why she should not breed quite successfully, especially if put up with a vigorous young cock.

A Misfortune.

"Lucky."—Probably you think the luck of a negative kind, and no wonder, as it is certainly unfortunate the cock which was such a reliable ally should become blind. I cannot really tell what measure of success you would meet with by using a cock Canary-Bullie Mule for putting your feeding hen to nest. The initial stage might succeed, but as the birds are in such high condition and notoriously mischievous it seems doubtful about the utility of the experiment in the later stage. Lots of hen Mules make very good foster parents, but in all cases it is to a great extent a question of individuality, and one can only answer definitely for any given bird after the experiment has been actually tried. When you are likely to have the lives of valuable Mules at stake it is best to take no unnecessary risk, and so I would rather advise you to secure another young cock Canary to put the feeder to nest, than depend upon the Mule for doing so. 2. Yes, the blind bird will certainly get accustomed to its condition and if kept in the same cage, or one of similar pattern, will learn to get about quite cleverly, and may sing again after a time. You might try the ointment advised to another querist for blindness this week, and let me know result in a few weeks hence.

Wheezing and Sneezing.

A. L.—I cannot tell you how to rid a bird of these common complaints, or rather, symptoms, unless that which causes them is first removed. Perhaps this is the reason the remedies you have already applied were not successful; that you did not in the first place take steps to remove the causes, which, in practically all cases, are either draughts, extreme and repeated fluctuations of temperature, damp, or chills. See that the bird is now protected from all these causes; keep it in a comfortable temperature, not necessarily overheated; feed on a staple diet of two parts Canary to one part summer rape seed, and twice a week give separately a few grains of hemp. Every second day for a week give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry mixed in it. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, ten of syrup of squills, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, every second day for a week. Give this mixture on the days when you are not giving the sponge cake. If consistently carried out, especially as regards the preventive measure, a week's treatment should suffice, though you may continue it longer if it appears necessary.

To be or not to be?

A. F., Novice.—Having regard to all the circumstances of your case, I think you would be very ill-advised to burn gas in your bird-room regularly with the idea of warming it a little. As long as the birds continue to keep healthy and show no signs of suffering from cold, let well alone. You might give them a little extra hemp in their dietary; also small quantities of rolled oats, coarse oatmeal, or split groats, and a little more rape than you would give birds in a warm room, regulating this supply according to the severity of passing weather. If you burn the gas as you suggest you will, of course, be compelled to open the window daily to let out the fumes, or provide some other method of free ventilation; and then, as you say, there is considerable risk of creating draught and making matters worse, besides the risk of accidentally asphyxiating the whole stock some time or other. If you really desire to use heat at all a portable hot-water stove, as recommended to another querist this week, would be much better; but seeing that the birds are cold-bred, and have never been used to heat, it is scarcely wise to begin to apply it without any real need.

Males only Affected.

Veto.—It is certainly a little curious that with one exception only your male birds should have been affected as you say. Perhaps the hens are of the militant suffragette type and impervious to any ordinary influence. Your treatment is decidedly bad, and is doubtless the chief cause of your trouble. You should not give stimulant or indeed medicaments or any kind either in food or water to birds in an average condition. First of all see that all your seeds and other items of food are quite sweet and clean, free from damp, mustiness, or mouse filth. Also that the room itself is free from dampness. Again, be very careful not to give green food saturated with mud or nipped by frost. This, in itself, might have caused your trouble. Feed on a staple of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Twice a week give separately a few grains of hemp, and every second day for a fortnight give each a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of Chemical Food and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it. Twice a week you may give a small piece of banana, but withhold green food or other fruit entirely until birds are quite well. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and five drops of dandelion juice for one day only. After that give twenty drops of whisky and as much carbonate of bismuth as will cover a sixpence in the water every second day until the looseness is stopped; and on alternate days give two drops each of tincture of steel and tincture of gentian in the drinking water, continuing the latter for a week at least. Keep cage floor as clean as possible, and well strewn with clean sand, and keep the birds free from any draughts.

A Troublesome Cough.

"Double Buff Sib."—You ought to have said what the mixture you have been using is composed of, or cut out the reply and enclosed it, as I have given more than one remedy in these columns. See remarks to "A. L.", in this issue about taking initial steps to remove the cause of the illness. Perhaps this may help to explain your own failure. Begin again and consistently follow this treatment for a month, and if not better then write again enclosing this reply, and say how she is. Keep the cage in a comfortable temperature, not necessarily over-heated, but see that it is equable night and day; free from all draught; and keep it clean, nicely strewn with fresh sand, and free from any suspicion of red mites. For staple food give a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape. Twice a week give a few grains of hemp, and every second day half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry, and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it. Twice a week you may give a bit of banana, but no other fruit or green food, and a mealworm occasionally would do good. Give no other food at all but these. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for the first three days, and for the remainder of that week, and the next week give twenty drops of whisky, five of syrup of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day. During the third week give twenty drops of Chemical Food in the water every second day, and on the alternate days four drops of tincture of steel; and in the fourth week discontinue the steel, and give only the Chemical Food on alternate days.

Mopish Norwich.

Novice.—If it were a young bird I should rather doubt the sex of a Norwich cock, presumably, which had not yet commenced to sing. See that it is not exposed to draught at any time, and that its cage is quite free from red mites. Continue to give Canary seed only as a staple, but decrease the amount of rape by at least one-half. Give, say, twice a week half a teaspoonful, not more, and on two other days a few grains only of niger seed; yet again on two other days a give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with a small pinch of gold of pleasure seed sprinkled over it. Give all these extras alternately, so a different one is given each day. Keep cage clean and nicely strewn with gritty sand, fresh each time. Two or three times a week give a scrap of green food (but see it is free from frost), or a bit of sweet juicy fruit. Give no other seeds or food, but what are mentioned here. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for three consecutive days, and afterwards two drops each of tincture of gentian and tincture of steel every second day for a week.

No Song.

Sykes.—Perhaps your Norwich is leaving its youth too far behind to trouble about recommencing his song before the breath of spring is in his nostrils. This is a common thing with some birds after the first season. Keep it in a fairly comfortable and equable temperature, free from draughts. Feed on plain Canary seed only as a staple, and twice a week give separately half a teaspoonful of rape, twice a week a few grains of hemp, and three times a week half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with two drops of sherry mixed in it, and a slight sprinkling of gold of pleasure seed strewn over it. Give all these extras alternately so that a fresh one is given each day. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for two days, and after that give ten drops each of glycerin and syrup of squills, and half a chlorate of potash lozenge in the water, every second day for a week. Shake until lozenge is dissolved. On the alternate days give five drops of aromatic sulphuric acid. During the second week give four drops of tincture of steel every third day.

Mating a Crestbred.

Answered by W. E. GREEVES.

Ajax.—To mate with your clear yellow Crest-bred cock you should procure a lightly-variegated Crest hen. The better the hen is, both in appearance and breeding, the better chance you have of getting good young ones. The cost of Crests would be from 20s. to £10 each. From the description you give of your Crest-bred, especially as it is a yellow, you would have to give for a heavily-feathered hen, suitable to mate with it with a prospect of breeding good birds, from 40s. to 60s.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

The Pretty Blue Tit.

Blue Tit.—1, Blue Tits require a good quality soft-food mixture, such as is given to other small insectivorous birds—the Nightingale, for instance. They certainly won't thrive on seed. I have seen my own birds eating a little Canary-seed, and "playing about" with sunflower seeds, but only the Great Tit (a much more sturdy bird) cares for any considerable amount of seed. Live foods in season (mealworms, gentles, small beetles and grubs, flies, and the like) must also be provided if they are to thrive for even a fair length of time. They are delicate birds so far as thriving in captivity is concerned. 2, The hen is a much duller edition of the cock bird, greyer all over, faded looking by comparison. Seen together, cock and hen may be identified readily. 3, I shouldn't like to keep Blue Tits with such tiny birds as Waxbills. Though not so murderous as the Great Tit, which is always liable to "break out" and brain its companions, yet the Blue Tit, too, will on occasion savagely attack a weaker bird, especially in a confined space.

Lark and Linnet.

New Reader.—Always pleased to welcome new readers. I have often dealt with keeping Larks and Linnets in this column, and in the "British Bird Manual" (price 2s., post free from this office) you will get a heap of information about these and other birds. For your Linnet, go to a good seed shop and get the following mixture, by measure: Canary and teazle, one pint each; summer rape, charlock, and linseed, half a pint each. Give this as a stock food, and vary it with a good pinch of maw and hemp now and again, given in a finger-drawer or separate dish; also a little pocket Finch mixture, and wild seed mixture, and a few cracked or shelled sunflower seeds. Give plenty of seeding shepherd's purse, chickweed, and groundsel tops in season, but strip off old, stringy leaves (these do internal damage, there can be no question), giving the young and juicy ones only. If you can get any sprays smothered with green-fly (blight), let him have a feast of the latter. You can, of course, also give hard-heads, plantain, thistles, and the like. For the Lark, a good and simple stock food, which will keep for a very long time when stored in a dry place and sealed in tins, and which any good corn dealer or seller of birds' foods will mix for you, is:—Game (or pheasant) meal, six parts; ground silkworm pupæ, meat meal, good ants' eggs and dried flies, one part each, by measure. Get the game meal without grit. If you have any difficulty in doing so, finely crushed puppy cakes make an excellent substitute; or the "broken" biscuit obtainable from the grocer. If the latter be used, add an extra part of meat meal and silkworm pupæ. Damp quantity required for daily use with a little grated raw carrot or cold boiled potato, or finely chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season, and add a teaspoonful of preserved egg flake or half a hard-boiled egg twice or so a week. Give three or four mealworms daily, and any other insects you can lay hands on, especially spiders. Give seed in a separate vessel (not along with the soft food) about a teaspoonful of Canary seed daily, with, for a change, crushed hemp, groats, maw, or rape.

Colour-feeding.

Boy Fancier.—It is largely a matter of opinion whether British birds should be colour-fed or not. Many people colour-feed Yellowhammers, Greenfinches, and Siskins, and some, no doubt, do the same with Linnets, Redpolls, Bullfinches, Chaffinches, and Goldfinches—which covers your list. A really good non-fed bird of any species can hold its own on the show-bench; I believe that to-day no judge would allow colour (pepper produced) to be the main factor influencing his awards. 2. The winning Goldfinches, Linnets, Yellowhammers, and Chaffinches are almost invariably hour-moulted specimens, but Bullfinches, Siskins, Greenfinches, and Redpolls frequently win prizes when in field plumage. I should certainly hold that all the above species improve, broadly speaking, with a house-moult. 3. The best colour-food is a first-class tasteless (or "sweet") pepper, sometimes termed "red feed." There is much chaff and little wheat among peppers, however, and you should ask some practical, experienced fancier to guide you (if you need it) in selecting that which you will use. The easiest way to give it is to get the birds on to cracked seed (easily provided if you have a good seed-mill), and mix the pepper amongst this. It should not be given too strongly.

Fresh-caught Goldfinches.

W.R.—Probably your losses are due to the fact that you give the birds hard seed only when bought. Take no notice of the seller's story that they are "well caged and on seed." Would he be likely to tell you otherwise? I think mixed seed very wasteful for these birds; most of them show a preference for one kind, perhaps two, and the others get knocked about the cage floor as a result of their searching for the favoured seed or seeds. For fresh-caught Goldfinches (if kept together, when they should be in a long, low cage), I should put in a pot each of cracked hemp (not crushed), teazle, and niger seeds, and a pot of mixed maw, linseed, and canary; some advocate coarse oatmeal as well. In addition, I would offer ample sunflower and summer rape, which had been soaked in cold water until it burst, or had just commenced to sprout, dabbing it as dry as possible with a cloth before offering it. Or a good substitute is a supply of the stock seed mixture which has been soaked for at least 24 hours in cold water, and well rinsed and dabbed dry. Then there are the wild seeding weeds and grasses, thistles, hardheads, plantains and the like, not forgetting flowering groundsel tops (not the coarse leaves). With the help of these latter foods (of which the Goldfinch fancier should always have a little store), the change on to the ordinary dry seeds can be made gradually, and without harm accruing. Should they seem to go a little "soft," the drinking water should at once have some sulphate of soda dissolved in it (as much as will just lie on a shilling to every two tablespoonfuls). A gentle dose of saline, if given in time, is in my experience, the best medicine; in fact, I never found anything else of much use.

Management of Woodlark.

Birdie.—A Woodlark is most certainly worth its outlay (they are very cheap, fresh caught) as a pet, the song being very sweet and charming. The only drawback I have found is that some are shy, and take time before singing out boldly in the house. A good stock cage can be made out of the usual type of Skylark cage (bow-fronted), one perch being placed in same (the bird likes a turf; and must also have a dust bath). The cage I myself like best is one of the pattern known as the "Lark runner" (only longer, and wider from front to back) with doors at each end, and a canvas ("false") roof. A large turf fits in at one end, a perch over the other (the "dust bath" end), and the food and water vessels hang on the front. In this you will have no trouble with their feet, given reasonable cleanliness. Try this stock food: powdered Osborne biscuit, four parts; best ants' eggs, and dried flies, two parts each; powdered silkworm pupæ, one part; meat meal, half part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold boiled potato, varying it frequently and adding a little water (but only a few spots) if necessary. (See also reply to "New Reader.") Woodlarks ought certainly to have a regular supply of live food—many droop for want of it. Many real good insectivorous stock foods are advertised in CAGE BIRDS every week. A little seed (especially Canary) should be given now and again; while crushed groats and coarse oatmeal are relished.

Brevities.

Keeping Mealworms (H. Silsor).—I dealt with the keeping of mealworms last week in the reply given "H. W. A., Toronto," which evidently you have overlooked.

Song of Chaffinch (R. White).—Certainly, the Chaffinch has a song of its own—a very distinctive song indeed which I should have thought would have been familiar to every bird-lover, and especially to one living in the country. During the Spring his loud "Toll-oll-oll chick-weed-o," or "Toll-oll-oll kiss-me-dear," according to the finishing "turn" can hardly fail to be noticed during a walk along country lanes.

Nightingale in Bad Feather (Nightingale).—I can quite believe your 'Gale is in bad feather, and getting worse, seeing that you feed him on "raw and cooked meat, ants' eggs, and mealworms four per day." Where on earth did you get this menu? It might suit an Owl or a Hawk admirably. But the Nightingale requires very different treatment. It is only two weeks ago that I gave a long answer dealing with the management of 'Gales and other small insectivorous birds. Could you not refer to this, and re-model your menu? You must certainly do the latter if you want your bird to keep in perfect plumage.

Weed and a Thrush (J. Thompson).—(1) The weed, I should say, would be wild mustard (or wild "bird rape"), a favourite food of Linnets, which often flock wherever quantities of it are to be found. (2) The food mentioned is very good, considering its low price, but wants supplementing frequently with other things—crushed dog biscuit or game meal without grit, moistened with hot water, and finely minced hard-boiled egg, and a little scraped raw lean beef or mutton, to mention a few. Do this, and give two mild doses of saline medicine, when probably the bird will go on all right.

A Curious Matter (E. A. Hinde).—If there is some real obstruction of the crop, I expect the bird will be dead ere you read these lines. If alive, then two drops of warm olive oil direct into the beak might afford relief, especially if you afterwards gently and judiciously "massage" the lump with your fingers (in an upward direction). Probably the best advice I could give you however, would be to recommend you to show the bird to a veterinary surgeon; or to a medical man if you happen to be acquainted with one who is interested in birds. You are sure, I presume, that it is not a swelling due to the presence of air under the skin?

Moisture for Mealworms (H. Pelrey).—My own mealworms get no moisture except what is natural to the bran and middlings given them to feed upon. Old bung rags from beer casks are said to be good things to put into the boxes, but as I have never yet been in that happy state of affluence which makes a barrel possible, I really can't speak as to this. My mealworms thrive, however, as teetotallers.

Linnet Casting Feathers (G. C. Sarbero).—Probably the recent very changeable weather is responsible (see other replies). Or maybe you have been keeping the Linnet in a room wherein the temperature has fluctuated very considerably. You can only trust to good feeding (plenty of "dainties") and an equable temperature to pull him through. Give the citrate of iron tonic recommended another querist.

Linnet Not Singing (G. Eades).—Illnesses such as you describe, coming on top of a bad moult, take a lot of pulling through, and no doubt your bird has not yet regained his old-time vigour, and so lacks that high vitality conducive to song. Your feeding is fairly good, but you might give the hemp a little more freely, and supplement it with a half-teaspoonful of maw and niger seeds, mixed in equal parts. Send to a good seedsman for the following wild seed mixture, and give a small teaspoonful on the days you are not giving the hemp, maw and niger:—Gold of pleasure, lettuce, and sesame, four ounces of each; cornflower, thistle and dandelion, two ounces of each. Also try the citrate of iron tonic recommended another querist this week.

Goldfinch Ailing (No Nom-de-plume given).—Your bird should be dosed with dandelion juice (taraxacum), from the chemist, until its bowels are seen to be acting freely. Daily dose, half-a-teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, given in a glass or pot vessel. Give it a change of diet; never mind about the "stock mixture" until it recovers. Try the following (order it from a good seedsman):—Thistle (English) dandelion, niger and sesame, four ounces of each; lettuce, cornflower, and maw, two ounces of each. This "wild seed mixture" will pull him together, if anything can succeed. Keep him in a moderately warm, dry room.

Loss of Tail and Wing Feathers (E. E. Scott).—It was unfortunate, of course, but you can do nothing beyond wait for the feathers to grow again. Tail and wing feathers come out very easily indeed, and birds want carefully handling. That the Goldie should go off song was an only to be expected consequence. Give him daily a teaspoonful of the "wild seed mixture" advised "No Nom-de-plume."

Goldfinch Ailing (J. B. N. Novice).—Do not give warm milk to drink; it will do no good, but only constipate the bird. Treat exactly as advised "No Nom-de-plume" this week. It's stock mixture should contain ripe teazle and canary, in addition to the other seeds you name.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

What Parrot?

S. O. Bufast.—There is little doubt but what you have a Swainson's Lorikeet, also known as the Blue Mountain Lorikeet. It is a native of Australia, an active and brightly clad bird. Diet: Milk sop, ripe fruit in variety, green food, and water for drinking and bathing. Prepare the milk sop so: Put sufficient milk, sugar, and crushed biscuit for the daily supply into a small pannikin; boil, and when cool supply to the birds. It should be sloppy, and of course must be made fresh each day, as sour sop would soon cause diarrhœa and death. A tin of canary seed may also be kept in the cage, for the bird to help itself to as it pleases, but do not neglect to supply the milk sop and fruit. It is a hardy species, and in a roomy aviary may be kept out of doors all the year round; but, of course, when confined in a cage it should not be placed outdoors after frosts appear, neither during the chill mornings and evenings of early spring and late autumn.

Young Cockateels Dying.

A. L. J.—Your supposition is quite correct; the young died from the extreme change of temperature consequent upon the weather and the fire being allowed to go out. Cockateels are hardy birds, and I have known young to be reared in an outside aviary in awful weather. But your conditions are very different, almost tropical, in fact, and the combination of your fire going out and the severe weather of December 28th would produce a condition of things that no fledglings could withstand. It is a marvel the old birds have not suffered also. You can take it as an indisputable fact that birds which can be left out of doors all the year round, when kept indoors within the limits of a cage, must not be subjected to extremes of temperature, but need a little protection during exceptionally severe weather. Some of my birds in the bird-room often get a chill during such weather as we have just experienced, while those out of doors all nothing. Your diet is satisfactory, providing you are supplying grit and cuttlefish.

An Ailing Amazon.

Kitty.—For the next week put a little aromatic sulphuric acid in the drinking water, say, 4 drops to the ounce of water; take the water away overnight, and the first thing in the morning give it 4 drops of tincture of opium in a teaspoonful of chilled water; well stir it up before offering to the bird. Being thirsty, it will probably drink the whole. This can be given daily for a week, and in case of any recurrence of the trouble repeat the treatment as above. The bird must be kept warm, and the voidings should be removed at once and preferably burned. Let the bird have a daily supply of boiled maize till the trouble ceases, and for a month at least it had (the boiled maize) better be continued. After drawing the water from the boiled maize, soak into it half-a-teaspoonful of Parrish's chemical food. The cage must be kept strictly clean, and I should advise scalding out the sand tray with boiling water for a few weeks. In case of a sudden attack, give a dose of opium at once, and hold a piece of warm flannel against its abdomen. If the bird will not permit this, keep it in a warm situation in a room in which a fire is burning all day, and keep a cover half-way round the cage, thus securing it against all draughts. I think it has got over the worst, and with care will soon pick up and be in condition again.

What Parrot?

B. D., Sheffield.—You have either a Ring-neck or Alexandrine Parrakeet, presumably a female, or else a young bird, as you make no mention of a ring round the neck. Both are natives of India, and the following diet and treatment will suffice for either species. Diet: Seed mixture, canary seed, oats, wheat, dari, maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds, equal parts of each; well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage; also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts, greenfood, at intervals and regular supplies of grit, cuttlefish, and water. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. For the next month give it one dose weekly of Diuneford's magnesia, one teaspoonful in its drinking water; the quantity of water should be about one ounce. Keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, and also talk to it and make a fuss of it, and it will ultimately, at any rate, speak a word or two, and also mimic such noises and calls as it hears. Its value is but small. Young untrained birds can usually be obtained for 10s. to 15s. each, sometimes less, according to the number on the market.

Grey and Green Singing Finches.

E. Scott.—Both these species have good merit as songsters. I fear I can give no sexual distinctions in either case that will enable you by plumage alone to readily distinguish the sex; again, it is doubtful whether such distinctions as are known are constant, and they can only be of use when there is a quantity of birds to compare. By far the simplest way would be to pick the largest and brightest bird, not merely as to brilliancy of colour, but also as to the lustrousness of plumage; this would apply in either case. Such distinctions as exist I will briefly indicate. In the Green Singing Finch, the yellows of the females are not quite so pure, nor so large in area as those of the male, neither is her plumage as lustrous, and her moustachial streaks are not so pure a black as the male. The tips of her tail feathers are said to be pale, but this latter I have not found to be constant. The Grey Singing Finch—that is, the male bird—when he is singing has a small patch of white on his throat; this the hen does not possess. The Grey Singing Finch is by far the better and sweeter songster, but it must be borne in mind that the respective song power of individuals of both species varies considerably.

Grey Parrot Dull and Sleepy.

E. P.—It is the effect of unwholesome diet that is responsible for the bird's condition. Give it a dose of Diuneford's magnesia weekly for a month at least, one teaspoonful in an ounce of water, and nothing else to drink for that day till the whole of this has been consumed. Continue to give it boiled maize (note this only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be kept strictly clean); half fill the food tin with the seed mixture given at foot, and put the boiled maize on top of this, and you will find it will ultimately take to the seed mixture. You can also offer it ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts, little boiled potato (unseasoned), raw and boiled carrot, but the potato and carrot should not have anything put over them, such as gravy, etc., before being given to the bird. Also keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in the cage. All the above items are wholesome, and may be given with safety, and should provide an ample and varied dietary. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Seed mixture: 2 parts each canary and oats, and one part each hemp, wheat, dari and sunflower seeds, well mix and keep free from dust and damp.

Building a Garden Aviary.

Tipperary.—As to the general arrangement of the proposed aviary, I can suggest but little alteration, as it is evidently well thought out. The chief point I don't care for is the door at end, as the aviary is not large, and you would be driving the birds before you all the way up aviary. I should suggest the door to be in the front, close against P in sketch. I should also suggest that the 2½ft. of roof of flight nearest to the glass shelter be boarded and felted; the other 2½ft. of open wire work would be ample in an aviary of these dimensions. I am speaking of the roof only; leave the whole 5ft. of front open wire work. I cannot advise you to keep Finches with Budgerigars, so it is useless my answering your questions as numbered. Simply get two pairs of Green Budgerigars, one pair Cockatoels, and one pair Roselias; you can put in one pair each of Grey Java Sparrows and Red-crested Cardinals, as these are generally able to hold their own in any company. Procure four Budgerigars from different sources, then your young birds of the respective pairs will be unrelated, and can be safely left to interbreed. The birds I have named will be sufficient to stock your aviary. Well furnish it with twiggy branches, and at least double the number of husks and nest boxes that you have pairs of birds. If this does not meet your need, repeat query in different form.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (W.J.J.H.).—The death of this bird, and probably of the other four, was caused by an infectious feverishness of the lungs and liver. Thoroughly disinfect all the cages, and the place where they are kept, before using again.

Two Canaries (Gilbert Owen).—Both birds were affected, and came by their death in exactly the same manner as those referred to above. The same precautions against further infection should be adopted.

Canary (J. Bowman).—Liver disease and anæmia. Some fresh green food, such as watercress, or some mild preparation of iron in the drinking water, might have kept her in better health. Please remit 4d., surcharge for registration made by P.O., because your letter packet contains loose coin.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Bannockburn Society (W. Ritchie).—There is no charge for notices of this nature.

An Incubator (Deerfoot).—The address you want is Messrs. Fox, Incubator Works, St. Helens, Lancs.

Our Thanks to G. Milne, A. Parvin, F. J. Matthew, G. West, and others for forwarding cuttings, photographs, etc.

Northampton Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. (A. W. Law).—Your letter was insufficiently stamped (half-penny only); no doubt an oversight.

A Matter of Subscription (Monte C.).—A member of a society is liable for his subscription up to the time of his resignation. Your second question answers itself.

Coloured Plates (G. Stocks).—We quite appreciate your point, but it is as impossible as it would be inartistic to portray all kinds of birds on plates of one size. Still, though we cannot promise that the size, plate for plate, shall be the same, in arranging a series, we always bear the matter of "pairs" in mind.

CAGE BIRD UNION.

Agenda for Annual Meeting.

I beg to give notice that the annual meeting of delegates of the Union will be held at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, February 6th at 5.30 p.m., to receive the report and balance-sheet and to elect a president and secretary for the ensuing year. Copy of balance-sheet, etc., will be forwarded to delegates later. The following suggestions for alterations in the rules have been submitted, and will be discussed and voted upon at the meeting, viz.:—

ACCRINGTON C.B.S.—Proposed addition to Rule 17: "That all exhibitors not affiliated either directly or indirectly to the C.B.U. be not allowed to exhibit at Union shows."

PAIGNTON C.B.S.—Addition to the rule governing fixing of show dates: "That a district committee be not empowered to alter a show fixture of recurring date."

COVENTRY O.S.—1. "That affiliated Cage Bird Societies (those confined to cage birds only) have first choice of show dates." 2. "That show dates for mixed societies be not granted earlier than four months previous to the show." 3. "That affiliation or license be granted to mixed societies only on the condition that the mixed nature of the shows be advertised." 4. "That no cages be staged higher than six feet from the floor." 5. "That 25 per cent. of the income of the C.B.U. be reserved to form a fund from which grants may be made to exhibitors losing their birds by theft or negligence to or from shows."

MEMBERS OF COUNCILS' Notices of Motion.—

MR. HADWIN.—Rider to suggestion by the Coventry Society, that members of the Union pay a sum of 1s. annually, such to be added to the 25 per cent. of the Union funds, to form an insurance fund, only such members as have contributed to benefit.

MR. RAMSDEN.—That the words "for decision" be substituted for the words commencing "and such reference, etc.," at end of Rule 19.

MR. POPE.—Suggested alteration of the Western Counties District; societies in this district are 220 miles apart.

MR. HADWIN.—To add to end of Rule 17 the words "though given at an open show."

MR. HADWIN.—That affiliated members of the C.B.U. be allowed to exhibit at Yorkshire Union shows.

Nominations for offices of president and secretary should reach me not later than Wednesday, the 28th inst. Please note that I do not intend to stand for re-election as secretary, if nominated.

I also beg to remind societies that in accordance with the rule passed at the last delegates' meeting, an instalment of 5s. of the annual subscription should be paid by February 1st, and that the date proposed for the open show of a society should be submitted by that date, so that, in pursuance of the same rule, meetings of the various district committees can be called to fix up the show dates for the next season to avoid clashing; only such societies as have paid the instalment of 5s. are permitted to send a delegate to the meetings at which the show dates are considered.

SINGING CONTESTS.

YORK.

The Christmas Linnet singing contest took place at the Crown Inn, North Street, when 20 birds faced the judge, Mr. Perry, whose awards gave entire satisfaction. The singing was very good for the time of year. Mr. J. Smith arranged a prize for every competitor, the principal prize-winners being as follows: 1, 7, Lambert; 2, Kirby; 3, Cole; 4, Granger; 5, Massheder; 6, Amateur; 8, Metcalfe. A vote of thanks to the donors of prizes concluded the proceedings. Timekeeper, Mr. J. Cooper.

Usual weekly Linnet singing contest, held at the "Bricklayers' Arms," Palmer Lane, Hungate, York, on January 2nd, when 28 birds faced the judge, Mr. J. W. Paver, whose awards gave every satisfaction. Some excellent singing was heard. Result; 1, Harrison; 2, Andrews; 3, J. Whitehead; 4, Whiteley; 5, Key; 6, F. Whitehead; 7, Chaplin. Timekeeper, Mr. J. Limbert, sen.—WM. EMPSON.

Usual weekly Linnet singing contest held at the Crown Inn, North-street, when 18 birds competed. The following were the principal prize-winners:—1st, Gurden; 2nd, Kirby; 3rd, Lambert; 4th, Marshedon; 5th, Littlewood. Judge, Mr. W. Perry; timekeeper, Mr. Cooper.—J. W. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

PENTONVILLE, N.

At the Bee Hive, Cynthia-street, the usual weekly contests and handicaps took place. Linnet fanciers came up in good form, and some fine scores were recorded. Chaffinches, however, took the lead so far as scores were concerned, and one or two new birds were introduced which are likely to top all previous records. A white Goldfinch will be on show at this house during next week (caught by Tony Moore).—W. MORRISON, Timekeeper.

NEWTOWN (Leeds.)

Prince Albert Inn. Usual week-end contest held January 3rd, when 16 birds faced the judges, and some very good singing was heard. Result:—1st, Sellers; 2nd, Hayes; 3rd, Farrar. Judges, Messrs. R. Jackson and A. Jennings. Timekeeper, Mr. G. Towers.—W. DEAN, Sec.

LEEDS.

There will be some very keen contests this year, evidently. The first contest of the season for three special prizes for 1909 was held January 2nd. The 1st prize is a gold medal, 2nd gold-centred, and 3rd a silver medal. Contests are open to all England. Twenty birds sang before a crowded house on this occasion, and some very good singing was heard at the "King's Head," Shannon Street. Judges, Messrs. J. Melia and C. Cooper. 1, Stead; 2, Hardcastle; 3, Sissons. Also on January 3rd, when 25 birds sang. 1, Hardcastle; 2, Sissons; 3, Stead; 4, Crowther; and were judged to perfection by Messrs. J. Melia and T. Chadwick.—WILSON NAYLOR, hon. secretary.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A NEW SOCIETY FOR HEBDEN BRIDGE AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—A meeting was held on Dec. 23 at the Nutclough Tavern, Hebden Bridge, when it was decided to form a society, to be called the "Hebden Bridge and Calder Valley O.S." Membership is open to the United Kingdom. The next meeting will be held on Thursday, Jan. 14th, at 7.0, when all fanciers will be heartily welcome.

A CAGE BIRD UNION MATTER.

SIR,—Referring to the letter in your last issue under this heading, if "H. M. R," or his friend, Mr. Jones, will send me the name and address of the member who is stated to have infringed the rules of the Union, I will see same is sent to the proper Committee to be dealt with. I think I have stated before that I have not made it my business to look for such cases, but, whenever they have been reported I have had them attended to; at the same time I cannot vouch for it that this case may not have been overlooked.

GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE.

FIELD-MOULTED LINNETS AT THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL SHOW.

SIR,—I was very much surprised on opening my case of birds from the Scottish National Show to find that the judge had wrong classed my Field-Moulted Linnet, Class 99, No. 3. I should be greatly obliged to Mr. Watt, the judge, if he would kindly let me know, through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, his reasons for so doing. This bird has never been beaten in a Field-Moulted class but once this season (at Swindon, where it stood second), and I have shown it against House Moulted birds—1st at Paignton, under Mr. Robson, 2nd at Carmarthen, under Mr. Longden (17 in class), 3rd at Perth under Mr. Castner, 2nd at Felinfoel, under Mr. Longden (class of 20). So I should be glad if Mr. Watt would let me know in your next issue on what grounds he marked it "wrong class."

W. J BANCROFT.

THE USE OF RINGS ON CANARIES.

SIR,—A few years ago I took up Canaries as a hobby, and started with Norwich and Yorkshires. Owing to the exceptional advantages that a novice now enjoys as compared with 20 years ago, I was very fortunate with them. Years ago the art of Canary breeding, except to those with many years' experience, was as a sealed book, and one went on blindly. Old fanciers did not look kindly upon the beginner, and consequently Canary breeding was not done on such a large scale as at the present time. Thanks to the Fancy Press, one is able to acquire in the way of knowledge in the first season what would have taken at that time years to learn. I started, as I said, with Norwich and Yorkshires, the best stock I could afford, and was full of enthusiasm, and my joy knew no bounds when I thought I had bred something worth showing; but, like the Canny Scot, I wanted to be sure of my ground, and began to feel my way before I did anything desperate. I visited a few shows, just to see how things were managed, and the way exhibits were shown to the best advantage. I got into conversation with birdie men who, I must say, were most courteous and kind in giving advice and valuable tips. In my ignorance I thought exhibitors bred all they showed, but, to my surprise, I found that they did not, but quite openly confessed to buying this or that bird for the show. This set me thinking, and I must say almost tempted me, as it has no doubt others, to throw up the sponge; for what chance should I have in showing against those who could afford to buy the best and sweep the board with bought exhibits? So I gave up all thoughts of showing, and gave up my present varieties, turning my attention to Rollers. I think the British Roller Canary Club have set the Canary world a grand example, as in the Young Bird Classes the birds must have been bred by the exhibitor before they can be shown, and also wear a closed ring issued by the club, and checked, so that it is impossible to enter a bird unless it wears the ring with a number and the year it was issued to members. It must, I feel sure, have occurred to others, and set them wondering why this system has not been adopted by other clubs in their Young Bird Classes. As now, the amateur who is not overburdened with wealth, has no chance of winning if he competes with an exhibitor with a long purse, as he is in a position to go and buy the manufactured article ready for show, washed and trained. They are openly boasted of, and this must disgust the true fancier who breeds and shows for the love of the Fancy, and cares little for gain, working all the year to gain honours on the show bench. This, I am certain, accounts in a measure for the falling off of exhibits at local shows, which are getting, in some cases, smaller every year, as amateurs get disheartened. And why? Because professionalism (the only word I can find to suit) has killed all their hopes. I can see no reason why everybody should not join a club that is formed for their particular Fancy, and that makes the subscription low enough to bring it within the reach of all; and instead of hundreds, I venture to prophesy that thousands would be enrolled as members, and all because we should have to breed our own winners, ring them with club rings, and not buy them as we can now. How often do we read not only of Canaries but of Mules and Hybrids (certain winners) for sale! Long purses come in again and sweep the board. It is practically the same as buying honours and not working for them. The last-named (Mules and Hybrids) could also be rung as other varieties. Another reason in favour of closed rings is: often a novice (and they are the backbone of the Fancy) goes to a show. He looks round for a few good stock birds, and sees some he likes, but at the same time, perhaps, he cannot just then spare the money for them. A few weeks afterwards he enquires of the owner if the bird is still for sale? Perhaps he receives a reply to the effect that birds are still unsold. Now, the point is, can he be sure that he will get these particular birds? He has only the sellers' word that they are the same as he wants, and as one bird is so much like another, he may or may not get them. Whereas, if the closed ring were used he would be certain to get what he wanted in the first place, and perhaps, if successful in breeding during the next year, show exhibits bred by himself. Fraud and undue advantage, as under the present system, where you can buy winners, would then be a thing of the past.

FAIR PLAY.

THE W.C.B.C. AND TREDEGAR SHOW.

SIR,—I have received this morning a letter from the Secretary of the W.C.B.C. that the only specials to be competed for at our show, held at Tredegar on Jan. 21st., are the Cups, therefore I shall be greatly obliged if members of the Welsh Cage Bird Club will kindly note that only the Cups belonging to the club will be competed for, and not cups and medals as stated in schedule, under Welsh C.B.C's classification and show rules.

PRIZE MONEY AT DULWICH O.S. SHOW.

SIR,—I very much dislike dealing with unpaid prize money questions through the Fancy Press, but in this case private communication with the secretaries of the Dulwish Ornithological Society seems of no avail, so perhaps they will announce through your columns when they propose paying the overdue prize money in the Open Classes. The above show was held on Nov. 24th and 25th last, and the schedule says: "Prize money will be paid in full" (Rule 20), and the Cage Bird Union Show Rules, enclosed with the schedule, state prize money is to be paid within 28 days (Rule 17). Having heard certain rumours that an official of the society stated at a meeting, in reply to a question, that all "open" prize money had been paid, I thought it well to drop the secretaries a card, reminding them that my wife had won two prizes, and requesting a remittance, at the same time giving particulars of the numbers and awards. This I did, on the 28th ultimo, but the secretaries have not, up to now, deemed a request of this sort worthy of recognition, hence this letter. The letter signed by the hon. secretaries, in introducing the schedule, states: "They (the committee) offer four money prizes per class. . . . the committee, leaving nothing to chance, etc. . . . and your confidence will not be misplaced." From rumours that have reached me through members of that society it would seem that the word not should have been omitted from the last sentence above quoted, as they seem to have left the financial part very much to chance.

THE NEW SOCIETY FOR BANNOCKBURN AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—Kindly allow me through your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS, to notify the bird fanciers around Bannockburn that the new society is open for 20 miles around as regards membership. We shall be very pleased to here of anyone wishing to join. Particulars may be had from Mr. William Ritchie, Sec., Watson Place. A meeting will be held on January 16th, at 6.30 p.m., in the Station Bar, Bannockburn.

SHOW BIRDS & MISSING CLAWS.

SIR,—I was very pleased to see in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, a letter on the above subject, as I think myself it is quite time something was done in the matter. I don't think any bird, no matter how good, has any right on a show bench with missing claws. I wonder what a judge would say if anyone took a hunter or a hound into a show ring with half a foot on one of its legs? I think it would promptly and rightly be sent out of the ring as not fit for competition.

W. ANDREWS.

SIR,—It would be interesting to know if a bird without a toe-nail is eligible to win at every show she is sent to in Ireland? Or will we have to have our birds minus a toe-nail before they can win?

JAS. DEVIN.

A HINT TO FANCIERS IN DARWEN AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—Having taken CAGE BIRDS for the last two years, I am now thinking of taking up the Fancy. The reasons for my not having started keeping birds before are that we have no show in the town for Canaries, but there is one for fanciers of dogs, poultry, rabbits, and pigeons, so it is very disheartening. I attended a show we had here on New Year's Day, and had a talk to the secretary, asking him if we could not have some classes for cage birds in next year's schedule, as there were a lot of fanciers in the town who breed for singing only, and if we had a show it would induce them to breed better quality. He said it would cost too much money, as the room they have is in an old barracks, and not suitable for cage birds. There is a show held in Blackburn, the next town to ours, but that is four miles away, so I cannot see why we should not have a show of our own. I am only an amateur, but think I will succeed in breeding some birds this next March or April, for I have picked up a lot of information from "C.B." I have a back room upstairs just suitable, and a double and single breeder, with five other box and two hanging cages, so I think I am ready for a start. The walls are whitewashed, which, I think, makes it all the better. I now wish to know what breed would be the best to start with, Norwich or Yorkshire? I have a liking for the Yorkshire, so am thinking of sending for a 10s. 6d. pair. Hoping some of your readers will be willing to enlighten me,

A DARWEN AMATEUR.

VISIT TO THE FENS IN SEARCH OF EGGS.

SIR,—To resume my remarks under this heading, which appeared in a previous issue of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. My friend saw some Kingfishers about here, but after looking for some time and following them for some distance both up and down stream, he failed to locate their nests, or even see them go anywhere with food for young ones. So he thinks that their nests must have been destroyed. If this were so, it is a very great pity. I knew of a nest taken a year or two ago, with young in it, as well as old ones; but this act was kept very quiet. Not a Goldfinch's nest was to be found, but I have heard of several about this neighbourhood. They don't seem so plentiful this year as last; in fact, they seem to get scarcer every year here. Neither did my friend find a Bullfinch's nest. I have personally not heard of one anywhere about here. Plenty of Wren's nests were found both with eggs and young, but no Gold Crests. These latter birds are very rare about here. Reed Buntings' nests are quite common, and several were found with the Coal, Oxeye, and Blue Tits' nests. Several nests of Larks with young were found, and also one nest of the Wood Lark, with young in it ready to fly. Although the Chaffinches are fairly numerous about here, only one nest was found, and that containing young ones; but several young Chaffinches were seen which had evidently just left their nests. Plenty of Yellowhammers' nests with young and eggs in them were seen. Two nests of the Woodpecker were also found, but, judging by the mess outside the trees, they contained young. But these were out of reach, and could not be got at, although the old birds were "snap-shotted" when going backwards and forwards to the nests. My friend was very anxious to get a pair of these eggs for his collection, but could not do so. No Brown Linnets' eggs could be got, and only one nest with young ones in it was found; but there are plenty nearer the town, although he could not find any during his stay in this district. In fact, anyone could do with a full week's holiday about these fens to explore all the birds, and would be well repaid for the trouble. In another place I have given an account of several nests of the Little Owl which were found. He was very anxious to get a photograph of the Long-tailed Tit's nest, but one could not be found; several had been found about here, but on one's being taken to the nests it was only to find that they had been "pulled," and the eggs taken some time previously. Very few nests escape the boys near the town. One has to go some miles out before he can get these nests. Taking the holiday on the whole, my London friend had a very enjoyable and interesting time. Another year he intends bringing some friends down with him for a ramble in this district.

THE RECENT INVERNESS SHOW.

SIR,—Persons who are not ashamed of their names never enter into correspondence with those who are. I am not at all sure if a Fairy Princess were induced to wave her wand over the writer in the last issue of CAGE BIRDS, that he might not become transformed into something repulsive in the reptile line.

LOSSES IN TRANSIT.

SIR,—I beg to relate an experience I had (similar to "Maulden's"), showing how the railway company tried to tire me out in a claim for a bird cage lost in transit. I may say that the cage, which measured, roughly, 4½ft. by 3ft., was at the beginning of May, 1908, duly consigned and signed for, to a gentleman at Birmingham; but same never reached its destination. We waited for nearly a fortnight before putting in a claim, and then, on doing so, received a formal reply: "Subject shall receive immediate attention." Nearly a fortnight elapsed, but no further reply. I wrote again, and a similar answer came. In fact, from May until August there was continual correspondence, until pressure was put to bear on them, when they paid up. It is rather hard on men whose time is fully occupied to be humbugged in this way. I sympathise with your correspondent, Mr. J. A. Simpson, and can endorse all he says, and I trust he may receive a more speedy settlement than I did.

FORWARDING BIRDS ON FROM BROMSGROVE SHOW.

SIR,—I regret Mrs. Cotton wrote to CAGE BIRDS before receiving explanation from our Cagobird Steward, re her birds returning home instead of going to Ludlow Show. But I am glad she exonerates the officials of the show from any neglect in last week's letter. This was our eighth show, and we have never received a complaint from a cagebird exhibitor before. This section is in sole charge of a thoroughly capable steward, who looks after same with great interest and efficiency. I am pleased Mrs. Cotton has the sympathy of Mr. H Lewis. His "bird," a Mandarin Drake (whose quack one does not expect to hear in CAGE BIRDS), was packed by myself, labelled to St. Albans' Show, and upon receiving an enquiry from Mr. Lewis, I acquainted him with these facts. In this case the label got reversed, as Mr. Lewis visited the show, and personally attached label properly. The officials of the Midland Railway Company dealt with the return exhibits in an expeditious manner, and I have many congratulatory letters re early return of stock home and safe delivery. Of course, it was impossible to get all off by the fast night mails; but the hall was cleared by nine o'clock next morning. As Mr. Lewis is a young beginner, I should advise him not to enter at shows on consecutive dates, and very far apart, as experience shows that with the best of management one cannot do impossibilities. Apologising for taking up your valuable space,

FRANK JEFFREY, Hon. Sec.

LLANELLY SHOW AND A MISSING BIRD.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Jones' letter of the 19th December, if he will refer again to my letter, I think he will be able to see that I point out clearly where he departs from the truth, but seeing that it seems necessary to point this out again, I suppose I must do so. You, Mr. Jones, stated in your previous letter that a certain man unpacked my birds. I hold a letter written by that gentleman in which he states otherwise. Then you say that a wire was sent at once, which was not correct. Your wire was handed in at Llanelly Post Office at 11.58; the birds were delivered some hours before that time; also judging had commenced some two hours before the handing in of that wire. Now, Sir, that should be sufficient to prove that your letter was not a truthful one. In your last letter you try to mislead the readers of this paper by stating that the wire handed in at 11.58 did not arrive at Brecon until about 4.30. Not a bad bit of business, Mr. Jones, but have another look and you will find that I stated that it arrived at 12.23, and the reply to my wire arrived about 4.30. Seeing that you do not answer the main questions I asked you in my letter, also that you are now trying to drop out and bring others into the front ranks to fight your battles, I will leave it to the Fancy to judge for themselves. It appears that you received a lesson over the first show, and took the precaution to have a police officer at the show. Now, Sir, I hope that rather than my letter doing your show harm, that it will also teach you a lesson to appoint some responsible person or persons to receive the exhibits and not to sign for one until it has been examined, and not only your society but all others. If my letter is the means of this being adopted, then I might feel that I have been of some use to the Fancy generally. We all have to live and learn.

D. H. TEDSTONE.

THE YORKSHIRE FOYLE AT THE BRISTOL F.A. 1907) SHOW.

SIR,—Messrs. Shearn and Owens' letter in your last issue consists mainly of half-truths (there is no need to repeat the proverb) and misquotations. For instance, they pretend to quote my letter of Jan. 28th, written the day after our committee met, but after the first few words supply words of their own. They follow this by a sneer at a secretary waiting nearly two months for "something, etc." Let me remind them that the doubt of their qualification appeared in CAGE BIRDS on Dec. 28th, that the next meeting of our executive was held Jan. 27th, and that I wrote them on Jan. 28th. That is one month, not two. As for the interval between the show and Dec. 28th, that is a personal matter. Not being a landed proprietor, but compelled to earn my living, I had to make the best of an unfortunate position at my work, caused by circumstances entirely beyond my control, and worked until nearly midnight every night. But in the delay so caused Messrs. Shearn and Owens suffered no more than some others, while I still have the impression I suffered most. After all, the gist of their complaint is that I did not act on my own responsibility, instead of waiting for my committee to meet, while I still maintain it was essentially a case for consideration and instruction of committee. Messrs. Shearn and Owens admit that the bird in question has on two occasions been exhibited singly, and then show a righteous indignation upon the difference between "two" and "many." This is quibbling, and evading the real point, which is that if a bird is shown at only one show by someone other than the breeder, that is evidence that the breeder has sold the bird. When that exhibitor joins hands with the breeder shortly before a show which offers a Breeders' Cup, the committee of that show surely have a right to ask for evidence of the partnership, and no enquiry into personal character can prove a partnership. When a doubt is thrown publicly upon their qualification, considering that a win counts a point towards absolute possession, the committee owe it to past and future winners of the Cup to ask for such evidence. As a further illustration of the unreliability of Messrs. Shearn and Owens's "quotation," may I say that the letter written to me on Jan. 14th, 1908, does not commence, "We should be glad, etc.," as they state, but "I should be glad, etc.," and it is signed by one of the "partners" in his own name. The same applies to the letter of 27th Jan. addressed to Mr. Ind, and which does not read, "We have written, etc.," but "I wrote, etc." That letter also is written throughout in the first person singular, and signed by the same individual name. This was considered to lend colour to the rumours doubting the eligibility to compete, and that Messrs. Shearn and Owens were conscious that it would do so is shown by their so carefully "quoting" these letters in the plural. Then, as to their ten months silence, the reason was the class of people they had to deal with. As far as I know, we are still the same class of people, and having kept silent so long it is difficult to understand why they open the matter in this way now, unless it be in search of opportunities to throw mud. Into a contest of this description I must decline to follow them. I freely admit that I cannot compete with them. If they have a legitimate grievance, let them take the proper course, which was open to them ten months ago, that is, to lay their complaint before the Cage Bird Union. I challenge them to do so, and when they adopt this course it will be time enough for me to take further notice of them.

THE LIVERPOOL DISTRICT AMALGAMATED SHOW.

SIR,—With your permission, I should like to ask what has become this year of the officials of the Liverpool and District Amalgamated Show, and why they did not carry out the show which, according to precedent, should have been held on Jan. 1st, 1909? I know delegates were elected from the different societies interested to run the show. I believe the Garston B.B.A. have the honour of holding the show in their district this year, and I think, along with a great many other fanciers, that it is very unsportsmanlike on their part not to carry out the show in their turn, as did Liverpol B.B.A., Wallasey and District C.B.S., and Birkenhead C.F.A., who all held shows "in their turn." I hope the Garston Society is not dead. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for inserting this in your valuable paper, so that the blame may lie on the right shoulders, and not on workers at the past shows. Perhaps some official will answer?

AMALGAMATED.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

ON Tuesday evening, December 29th, the members of the Bingley O.S. spent an enjoyable evening at headquarters, about fifty sitting down to a substantial pie supper, after which the prizes for the year's members' shows were presented. The rest of the evening was spent in harmony. This society has made good progress during the last season, and hopes to still further advance, many more new members being expected at the next few meetings.

QUEENSBURY Society finished the list of members' shows for the past season on New Year's Day, and had 56 birds staged, which were judged by Mr. R. E. Helliwell, of Halifax. A judging competition was also held, and caused a good deal of merriment. Messrs. H. Smith and E. Swaine were level for first place.

BRADFORD East O.S. held a diagram judging competition on the 29th, when eight diagrams that had been drawn by their assistant secretary, Mr. F. Gelder, were adjudicated upon by twelve entrants who had to place them in their proper positions, and pass remarks on the faults in the drawings. Mr. R. Halliday had previously had them submitted to him, and had placed his decision in a sealed envelope. Mr. E. Dinsdale was declared the winner, closely followed by Mr. W. Greenwood; the latter won the same competition last year. A water-colour painting of a Yorkshire Canary was presented to the winner by Mr. F. Gelder.

DURING the present month the Yorkshire Union Societies will have a very great quantity of business to transact. Many of them arrange to have their annual general meetings during January, and in addition to this the syllabus for the season's shows and lectures, etc., is put in order. Then the nominations for the officers of the Yorkshire Union, viz., vice-chairman, hon. secretary, two trustees, and two auditors have to be in the hands of the Union secretary not later than February 1st (see rule 3 in Y.U. book). Also any proposed alteration or addition to rules must be sent in writing by societies to the Union secretary by the same date.

HERE are a few items that need thoroughly thrashing out at meetings. First and foremost in importance is the subject often discussed, i.e., curtailing the length of the show season. Secondly, we have the question of the payment of delegates' expenses to those societies in the outside districts. Thirdly, the substitution of an annual general meeting for the present annual ballot. Fourthly, that each exhibitor provides his own water tins, a uniform standard to be adopted. Fifthly, that the Council of the Union provide a minimum classification for all shows held under its rules. Sixthly, the rules dealing with defaulting members in regard to societies' subscriptions.

ITEM number one is rather troublesome. What is required is a scheme that will not hurt anybody; and such a one is hard to find. The feasible ones are, two shows to be held on the same date, but the classes so arranged that no similar class is provided at both shows. The re-introduction of first feather shows, all societies to hold shows in rotation as before, the last six (more or less) shows for next season to have first feather shows instead. That the shows be bracketed in couples (in same order as they stand for next season), then arrange which of the two shall hold a show. Societies holding a show one year to give way the next.

REGARDING delegates' expenses, the idea is that each society in the Union shall pay a certain amount per delegate per meeting, the same to be used for defraying the expenses of those delegates, or rather, the delegates of those societies outside the radius served by the Bradford City tramways. Sixpence per member per meeting is thought to be sufficient.

THE substitution of an annual meeting to replace the annual ballot is the result of the meagre return of ballot papers. Last year only 25 per cent. of the members considered it their duty to register their votes. And here I can commend the modus operandi of the Shipley Society, who called a special meeting to discuss the various items contained on the ballot paper, and all present at it were therefore enabled to use their votes to advantage. Many did not vote because they did not thoroughly understand the meanings of the various rules, etc., and if societies will follow Shipley's lead this year, the number of votes registered should increase considerably.

NEXT we have to study water-tins. These at present are supplied by the Union to each show, and are sent from one show to the next by the various secretaries. The cleanliness of these tins does not suit a lot of exhibitors. If each exhibitor supplied his own, the keeping of them clean is a very small job, whereas should all the 700 or 800 require a wash, it is a strong two hours' work for somebody. The adoption of a standard tin, and making exhibitors stick to it would overcome this difficulty.

IN regard to the minimum classification this was a sore point last year, and members will do well to keep their eyes thoroughly open on this subject. The question of defaulting members is a serious one, and a great source of trouble to secretaries at the time of making up their books at the end of the financial year. But a great part of the remedy lies in the hands of the secretaries themselves, and that is, not to let the members run so long before crossing their names off the books. Many other minor items also require careful consideration.

"A Clever Parrot.

An old lady, soon after the Battle of Waterloo, determined to show her admiration of the Duke of Wellington by the gift of a Parrot, which she took with her into the Duke's presence. His grace declined the gift with polite thanks. The old lady begged him to hear the bird speak once. She then took the baize off the cage and said, "Polly, this is the Duke of Wellington." "See the conquering hero comes!" cried the Parrot, flapping his wings. This was too much for the Duke, who heard the pet sing the National Anthem, and accepted the gift. He afterwards kept the bird in his own room, and it won quite a reputation among its new friends.—Sent by Marie Smith (age 12), 90, Richmond Villas Penkhull, Stoke-on Trent.

"A Sparrow in Distress.

In the ivy round our house, many little Sparrows build their nests. The owner of one of these was one day flying off, when it got entangled in the ivy by a piece of cotton which was tied round its leg. It had evidently been tied round by some person, who wished to know the bird again if he caught it. We released it and it flew off in search of food for its young ones.—Sent by Dorothy Lawrence (age 10), Mill Lane, Robin's Bridge Road, Coggeshall, Essex.

The Kind Butcher's Best.

Once a lady went into a butcher's shop where a Lark was kept. She noticed that the bird was very restive, and said it was cruelty to keep it in a cage. The butcher, wanting to show the lady her mistake, went and brought out a box of mealworms and laid some on a shelf. He then opened the door of the cage and at once the bird flew on to the shelf and gobbled up the mealworms, and then flew back into its cage, much preferring it to outdoor life. The lady was thoroughly astonished, and went away quite satisfied that it was not cruelty to keep birds in a cage.—Sent by Samuel McKnight (age 14), 41, North Hamilton Street, Kilmarnock.

DERWENT VALLEY.

The second annual open show of this society was held in the Co-operative Hall, Low Westwood, on Dec. 26th. The exhibition was held under C.B.U. rules, and on the whole was a success, in so far as both numbers and quality were concerned. Mr. J. Brown, the able and efficient hon. secretary, had the arrangements in splendid order, and was ably seconded in his efforts by a truly fancier-like committee, consisting of Messrs. G. Barkass (chairman), W. Marsh (vice-chairman), W. Tomlinson (treasurer), R. Marsh, W. Curry, G. Curry, T. Betton, W. Routledge, W. Richardson, and A. Brown. There was a good list of specials. The show was visited by a number of fanciers and the general public. Mr. J. Stanger judged, and gave general satisfaction.

LLANELLY.

The 4th annual show was held on January 6th, at the Market Hall, a very spacious and well lighted hall and adapted for the purposes of a cage bird show. The exhibition as a spectacle was very fine, and the promoters deserve a full mead of praise for the splendid manner in which everything was arranged. The entries did not come quite up to expectation but the quality of the exhibits in most cases was far above the average, many classes giving the judges a very difficult task. In the Norwich classes some very good exhibits were put down, and in Yorkshires and Borders some of the best were to be seen. Mules and British Birds were very fine, as was to be expected, and Llanelly kept up its reputation for keen competition in these classes. The Goldies and Linnets were a show in themselves. In Mr. Daniel John the society have discovered a man of tact and ability, and one who knows the routine of show work to the letter. He is also courteous and obliging; may Llanelly long retain his valuable services as well as those of his assistant secretary, J. Simon, who is well known in the Fancy and very popular in the Principality. Messrs. T. Gregory, J. Cole, and D. Williams make very capable show managers, and they seemed to be here, there, and everywhere in the pursuance of their duties. The committee are a large number, too many to name, numbering upwards of 34 (surely a good backbone for any society). The Llanelly society is a body of mostly working men, and they show great pride at their annual fixture. Messrs. J. Robson and Ed. Lovell placed the cards.

DALBEATTIE (N.B.)

The twenty-third annual exhibition and competition of Dalbeattie O.S. was held in the Town Hall, Dalbeattie, on January 1st. The quality of the exhibits was of a very high order. The entries numbered about 600, just about the same as last year, although the quality was better than on the last occasion. Cage Birds were a very pleasing collection, the class of British Goldfinches being an exceptionally good one, and the best that has ever been seen at Dalbeattie. The prize winner has scarcely ever been beaten in its class this season. It also carried off the special for the best Goldie in the show. Norwich were good and Borders very fair. The show was confined to the counties of Kirkcudbright, Dumfries and Wigton. Mr. G. C. Robertson made a capable secretary, Mr. J. Hannay judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction.

KINGS HEATH.

Doubtless owing to the fact that the entries closed last week, during the severe Arctic weather which prevailed, the classes at this fixture were not very heavily supported; still, if the exhibits were not numerous, there were a few very nice quality birds amongst them. Pepperell, C. Dyson, F. Hadley, J. Aird, J. Bush, G. Pugh, J., E. and G. F. Richards, with Mr. A. Paddock, the local Yorkshire enthusiast, as treasurer, and Messrs. H. Y. Cooper and H. E. Patterson as hon. secretaries, and with such enthusiastic fanciers in charge there is no need to say that everything passed off well. The attendance was good on the opening day, and we hope to hear of a financial success. Mr. C. A. House judged.

DUNFERMLINE.

Annual show held on Jan. 1st, and 2nd, when it proved a great success. Notwithstanding the many great Scotch fixtures, this old established and well conducted show always receives its share of patronage. Scotch Fancies opened the programme, and entries were well forward, some real tip-toppers being staged. Most of the classes were well represented and contained some good specimens. We were pleased to see a decided improvement in the Norwich section, as the committee catered for them well, and deserved every encouragement. The judging here was in the hands of two experts, Messrs. Black and Low. Very little was left to grumble about. Norwich, Plainheads, and Crests are always a feature at this show; in fact a more liberal classification could not be desired. Mr. Moreland, one of our oldest and most respected judges, after careful selection, gave every satisfaction in the Borders, which brought together a grand entry; in fact, every year this show caters more liberally for the "midget." Next year they are going to be at the front and give a full classification, and also a specialist judge. Throughout they were really a splendid lot, some gems being staged. Mules and Britain are always good. Here to-day were found some of the gems of the Fancy. The classes throughout were representative, and were headed by meritorious exhibits. This section was judged by Mr. P. Pettigrew, and his awards were well received. The Cage Bird section was well looked after, and the exhibits were comfortably staged at the end of a grand hall, free from draughts. The management was in the capable hands of Mr. Templeman, an ideal secretary, who was ably assisted by Mr. Bowman, who did everything possible for the welfare of both exhibits and exhibitors. Every exhibitor present had the privelege on the closing day of lifting his birds. The staff in the Cage Bird section are a good lot, and know how to look after the birds. The show was well patronized, and we hope to hear it was a good one financially.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Annual members' show, held on Boxing Day, at St. Luke's Schoolroom, Skinner Lane. The entries were low, especially in the Yorkshire section. The Norwich section was better, and what was lacking in numbers was made up for in quality. British were a nice lot. Mr H. J. Mennard won the Leeds Cup and the President's Cup with 43 and 65 points respectively, and Mr. Woof (the 1908 holder) was runner-up with 42 and 56 points. Mr. Fred King (Leeds) judged and gave entire satisfaction.

The annual show of Doncaster Ornithological Society was held in the Drill Hall on Dec. 26th, and proved a decided success. The entries were large (247 in 22 classes), and the quality excellent, consequently competition was very keen. There was a nice list of specials. Messrs. W. Mundell (Canaries and Mules) and F. Marwood (Brit. and For.) were the judges, and their awards were generally well received. The hon. secretaries, Messrs. Boscoby and Hague, had everything in capital order, and received the able assistance, in their work, of an enthusiastic committee. Points specials were won by Messrs. E. Radley (3), J. Howard, W. Hutson, W. Oakley, and J. Smith. All the birds were in the hands of the railway companies for the return journey by 7.45 on the evening of the show.

NORTHAMPTON HAND-IN-HAND

The 23rd annual show of this society was held on Dec. 28th and 29th, when Councillor W. H. Berlin (Hon. Vice-Consul for Spain) opened the exhibition. The members of the society took advantage of the occasion for making their president a gift of a splendid bird and cage as a slight recognition of the cordial and generous manner in which he always treats them. The presentation was made on behalf of the society by Councillor W. Tomes, who, in a suitable speech, discoursed upon the advantages to be gained by the leisure hours of the working classes being spent in the breeding, rearing, and exhibiting of cage birds. The entry was a good one, the secretarial duties being efficiently carried out by Mr. A. Law, who was backed in his efforts by a splendid working committee made up of the following members:—Messrs. A. Burrows (chairman), J. Martin (vice-chairman), G. Brown, senr. (treasurer), W. E. Allen, A. G. Brown, W. Munday, and J. Nason. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

MIDDLESBROUGH AND TEE-SIDE C.B.S.

Members' show held at Grangetown, King's Head Hotel, on December 26th, and was a big success. There were 14 classes, and the entries totalled upwards of a hundred. There was a very good attendance, and the exhibits were very much in advance of last year's. Mr. Kilpatrick placed the awards, and gave every satisfaction.

HEXHAM.

Hexham F. and F.S. held their annual show in the Corn Exchange on January 1st. It proved a great success. Cage Birds had three classes provided for them, and obtained twenty-nine entries. Mr. Fraggle Proud judged, and gave general satisfaction.

NORTHALLERTON.

Annual exhibition, held in the Town Hall, January 1st. After a lapse of six years, twelve classes for cage birds were provided, out of which five had to be cancelled. The Hard Bill class, too, was somewhat poorly supported. In the Yorkshire classes some grand birds were on view. The Goldfinches were a really good lot, and the competition very keen. Linnets were not numerous, but they were good. All the birds were staged in the side rooms, perhaps not one of the best places, as at times there was some amount of crushing. The cage birds were again under the capable superintendence of Mr. T. Marwood, who was ably assisted by Messrs. Bradley, Peacock, and Taylor. Mr. T. Hill placed the cards, and gave general satisfaction. The cards were up promptly.

YORKS., YELL.: 1, 2, spl, spl best in show, Cuthbertson, leader a grand clear, very finely drawn, straight as a rush; 2nd hardly so shapely; 3, Stevens, long, raking bird of nice stamp; vhc, Watson and Sample; hc, Barfe; c, Watson. BUFFS: 1, 2, Cuthbertson, again two birds of grand quality; 3, Stevens, very stylish and in good condition; chc, Barfe; hc, Nicholson; c, Peacock. DARK MULE: 1, Cuthbertson, a big bouncing Linnet-Canary mule in grand order; 2, Taylor, buff Goldie-Canary, nice colour and condition; 3, Crossling, another good dark Linnet-Canary mule, a bit soft at judging, or might have stood second; vhc, Jackson, Siskin-Canary, rare size and colour; hc, Taylor; c, Watson. GOLDFINCH: 1, Wildsmith and Hawkins, fine face, moons, bars, and buttons, staged in spotless condition; 2, Dunnington, another nice Goldie, bred in the house of its owner; 3, Hutchinson, a marvel for face, size, colour, and condition, but had knocked half its wing feathers out, or probably would have stood higher; vhc, c, Hutchinson; c, Wetherill. LINNET: 1, 2, Wildsmith and Hawkins, both good, but the leader rather better laced; 3, Todd and Son, a nice one, looking a trifle soft; vhc, hc, c, Marwood. HARDBILLS: 1, 3, Foster, Hawfinch and Bunting; 2, we could not find. SELL., 10s.: 1, Wilson, Yorkshire; 2, Cuthbertson; 3, Crossling; vhc, Hanson and Lancaster; hc, c, Ferguson.

ELGIN.

The 23rd annual show was held in the Corn Market Hall on New Year's Day. The entries were slightly in excess of those of last year, though the quality suffered somewhat, owing, no doubt, to so many important fixtures being held on the same day. The hall, which is lighted from the top, was as bright as could be desired, and the temperature maintained was a comfortable one. The British, taken all over, were a good lot, and contained birds of exceptional merit. The Canaries were not lacking in quality. Mr. McCaskie, the secretary, had everything in good order, and his efforts were largely responsible for the success the show turned out to be. Mr. John Strachan (Aberdeen) judged, and his awards met with general satisfaction.

SOUTH MANCHESTER O.B.S.

The first annual members' show was held on December 26th at the Boilermakers' Arms, Abbey Hey Lane, Higher Openshaw. The show was opened by Mr. Bladon (in the unavoidable absence of Dr. Gunn). The room is an ideal one, being well lighted and free from draughts, and was comfortably filled during the whole of the afternoon. Yorkshires and Norwich were a magnificent lot. The Lizards and British were not very numerous, but some fine birds were staged. The management was splendid. President, Mr. F. Washbourne; vice president, Mr. J. Dickinson; treasurer, Mr. J. Hallam; secretary, Mr. J. C. Spilsbury (who is deserving of great praise on his successful management); committee, Messrs J. Stirrup, J. F. Chamberlain, B. Salway, J. Garbutt, and B. Bowden. GREAT HORTON.

Great Horton O.S. held their annual Open Show on January 1st and 2nd, in the Congregational schools, High-street, under Yorkshire Union rules, and the patronages of the Y.C.C. and Bradford and County B.S. and M.C. Mr. H. W. Battye officiated as judge, his awards meeting with general satisfaction. Messrs. Ogden Bros. put down a fine team, which secured the special for most points in show, being closely followed by Messrs. Ambler. The winners of sectional specials were Messrs. Ambler, Wadsworth, Ogden Bros., Peel, Bentley and Self in the Yorkshires; Messrs. Duncan, Jun., and Beaty, were chief scorers in the British, etc. In the Novice section, Mr. W. Sowden secured the medal for best bird shown by a Novice, and Messrs. Laycock, Tinkler, Markwell and Hammond were awarded specials in this section. Mr. J. Holroyd, the secretary, had all arrangements well in hand, and was well supported by Mr. J. Mann, president; Messrs. Barraclough, H. Jennings, and Self, vice-presidents; Myers, Waterworth, Whittaker, Morley, and Hainsworth, also rendering valuable assistance as stewards. The entry did not come up quite as well as was expected, the total only reaching 323 in the 27 classes provided, this being an average of 12 per class. British, etc., came up rather badly, the exceptionally cold weather in the earlier part of the week, probably being the cause of this. CAGE BIRDS prizes were won by Messrs. Inman and Wood.

PAISLEY.

The fifty-fifth annual exhibition of the Paisley O.A. was held in the New Drill Hall, which is admirably adapted for a show of this kind. The executive is composed of practical men, and Mr. Robin, the popular president, had kindly, cheery words for the supporters present. Mr. J. Laidler is an admirable general secretary. Mr. A. M. Baird, the secretary of the cage-bird section, is very hard-working and energetic, and he got through his work in a thoroughly businesslike manner. He did everything possible to make the show a success, and deserves every credit. The remainder of the executive is comprised of: Vice-president, Mr. G. W. Love; treasurer, Mr. J. Pottie; committee, Messrs. R. Arrol, R. M'Indoe, C. Robertson, J. M'Donald, T. Gillespie, James Paton, Geo. Binckie, John Paton, N. O'Donnell, A. Baird, James Annan, and L. Thomson; collector, Mr. J. Wright. The entries were down a little from the preceding show, the total on this occasion being 682. The Scotch Fancy Canaries (226) made an excellent display all through, though the quality, perhaps, cannot be said to be an advance on former years. Mr. McClure's team was missed; and there were no exhibits from the East. Several very good specimens took part in the contest for the cup, which was won by Mr. Montgomery with a buff hen of exceptional substance and quality. The Belgians (16) were of the first-cross type, some good breeding birds being amongst them. The Norwich Canaries (157) were of excellent merit. It was by no means easy to win here, so high was the quality. Yorkshires totalled 31, and are taking on at Scottish shows. The display was very commendable, and the Yorkshire is certainly worthy of cultivation there in the North. The Border Fancy Canaries (106) were a grand collection, typical throughout, and in lovely feather. They made a show in themselves, and the general public were well pleased with this section. It is getting new converts yearly.

The Norwich Pininhead Cup was won by Mr. McFarlane with a rare clear Buff Cock, put down in that well known fancier's usual style. The Yorkshires and Borders were good, and the Mules Hybrids excellent. Mr. Paterson, of Ayr, came with some really clinking Yorkies and won the Club Bowl. Messrs. Duncan and Logan, and also Messrs. Jackson and Bond had their well known teams of Hybrids there. A new face in an almost clear Greenfinch Mule, shown by the former firm was a great attraction.

The exhibition was splendidly patronised by fanciers and the general public. There was an unusual demand for stock, but most of the exhibits were catalogued at prohibitive prices. The Scotch Fancy and Norwich Canaries, it seemed to us, were never more eagerly sought after. The judges were: Scotch Fancy, Messrs. R. Wright (Greenock), J. Park (Govan), A. Livingstone (Paisley), D. Brown (Edinburgh), J. Arnott (Alloa), and T. Thomson (Glasgow); Norwich, Mr. J. McLay (Kirkintilloch); Borders and Yorks., Mr. W. McMillan (Dumfries); Hybrids, Brit., and For., Mr. P. McQuiston (Ayr). They were very careful, and are to be complimented upon their selections, for, generally speaking, the placings were all that could be desired.

KENDAL AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

This show was held on January 1st, in St. George's Lower Hall. The committee made all reasonably necessary arrangements, but were so well patronised that the hall proved far too small for spectators, a result gratifying to the members, and suggestive of the provision of a larger hall for the next show. The committee paid every attention to the exhibits. The secretary, Mr. Vart, had all arrangements in excellent order, and was well supported by his committee. Norwich, Yorkshires, and Borders were good. British were well split up, and Mules included a grand Canary-Bullie. The Foreign Class was excellent, 19 specimens being staged. The Gift Class was a credit to the members, and must have augmented the society's funds. Mr. Wellings judged.

House's Canary Manual - - - - Post free. 1/2

By C. A. House.

This is a thorough and practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, written by a well-known expert and judge. It contains chapters dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, and an illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman, reproduced in the finest art style. There are also exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge approached by no other book of its kind at the price

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

HOYLAND.

The Hoyland and Dist O.S. held their 8th annual show on New Year's Day. The Town Hall is a capital venue for such an exhibition, having a good light, fair space, is void of draughts, and nicely ventilated. Entries did not turn up quite so well as was anticipated, but lack of numbers was atoned for by the presence of some grand specimens. Yorkshires were really good. Norwich contained a few specimens far above the average. British were very meritorious. The members' classes contained some rare quality, good enough, many of them, to compete favourably amongst the "upper circles." The members' cup was captured by Mr. W. Hutson, who also gained Hyde's special, a capital unlighted yellow Yorkshire doing the trick in both instances. Ramsden's goblet went to Mr. T. Whittingham for the hottest fed. W. A. Durnford, Esq., J.P., C.C., performed the opening ceremony. The staging was of a very neat order. Every specimen could be easily seen, and the management throughout was excellent. President, Mr. T. Taylor; vice-president, Mr. T. Whittingham; treasurer, Mr. J. T. Crosswaite—a trio of excellent officials. Mr. J Warrender, the secretary, works like a Trojan, has heart and soul in the welfare of the society, is courteous to the highest degree, and ever ready to give a helping hand. The committee is composed of genuine fanciers in Messrs. Williams, Waters, Evans, Humfray, Robinson, Kenny, Oakley, Taylor, Hutson, Watkin, Steele, Short, Adderley, Thompson, Guest, Johnson, Simmonds, Mann, and Lalster, all of whom worked judiciously, and are to be highly complimented. Messrs. W. Vardy and R. Halliday judged, and their awards were well received.

FALKLAND.

The above society held their annual show on January 2nd, in the Drill Hall. The cage birds were staged in a side room, which is a suitable one for the purpose, but is only lighted from the sides, consequently the birds were not seen to the best advantage. The entries this year showed a slight increase over last year's total, but with 35 classes provided for them, they were a little disappointing, the average being a little over four per class. Mr. D. Craig judged, and his awards were fairly well received. The secretary, Mr. George Steedman, did excellently along with Mr. James Peggis, the treasurer, and these two make very capable officials. The show was fairly well patronised by the general public, and we hope it will turn out satisfactorily from the financial standpoint.

My Canaries and How I Treat Them.

By DAVID EASTON.

I have been a lover of birds all my life. About four years ago, outside my house in Glasgow, stood a corrugated iron shed. I lined it with wood, and then papered it with strong dark paper all round, to keep out the draughts, covering the roof in with white to give more light.

As time went on I pasted up a number of bird pictures, cut from CAGE BIRDS, with a few coloured plates. Some of the birdie men say I have a real picture gallery.

The Bird-room Described.

My bird-room is 9ft. long by 8ft. wide by 7ft. high, with good light, and a window looking south-west, the top part opening inwards, which gives good ventilation. I have fixed wire outside to prevent any bird that by accident gets out of its cage from escaping.

I have two shelves all round. On the top shelf my cages are made out of orange boxes neatly put together with cleaned strips of wood, and have stained mahogany fronts. They are 3ft. 6ins. long, 17ins. high, and 14ins. wide, with the division in the centre. They have wire fronts with two doors in each division, one being a larger one, so as to give plenty of room to work about the nests. The smaller door is where the egg-food can be put in, or it can be used for a hang-on bath or seed drawers. The drinking glasses hang outside, and there is a wireholder for cuttlefish, sweet apple, or other tit-bits.

So when two boxes are put together with sliding doors at each end, it makes a very good flight for young birds, and helps to make them strong and healthy. The under-shelves I use for single cages when the birds are separated after the breeding season.

The Birds I Keep.

The bird I love most is the Scotch Fancy Canary. I also have Norwich Canaries and a Linnet and Canary for Muling. I put the Scotch Fancy Canaries together by about the 20th April if the weather is favourable. I feed them on Canary seed with a little hemp seed all the year. When the breeding time comes round I give twice a week hard-boiled egg with four tea biscuits rubbed well together, with fresh dandelion leaves every other day, cleaning out the cages every week. I also "whitewash" them frequently with buttermilk and whiting with some quassia all in solution.

The birds have now paired we will suppose, and in a few days the hen lays her first egg. This I remove, putting in a china one in its place, and so on each morning. On the evening of the third day I take out the china ones, clean out the nest, put in the original ones, and dust them well with Keating's powder. I remove the cock to his own end and put in a wire slide, so that he can see all that is going on. I still give him egg and biscuit, which keeps him in good form, while the hen during incubation gets plain Canary seed and water, and nothing more.

On the fifth day I examine the eggs in a good light, and if any are clear I remove them and put in an equal number of china eggs. I again dust the eggs and nest with Keating's powder, and so have no trouble with the red mite pest so often talked about.

Feeding the Young Ones.

On the evening of the thirteenth day I put in a very little egg and biscuit, and the next morning, the fourteenth, I hear a faint "cheep, cheep." On the third day after the hatching I draw the wire slide and the cock almost immediately goes up to the nest and looks round, and in a very short time he is feeding the hen, and he and she are on good terms with each other.

Next day I give a leaf or two of dandelion. After the young ones have been fed once, I remove all that is left, and give fresh leaves every morning at noon, but clear away everything at night. The egg I decrease as the birds get older. I have no trouble with the Canaries as feeders. The pair I have in mind are first and second crosses. When the young are fourteen days old I add one teaspoonful of scalded German rape cooled with cold water. I then mix it with the egg and biscuit. The young begin to take the freely, and in about a week I put them in one end where the cock not only finishes them off through the wires, but at the same time attends to the wants of his mate.

The old nests and platform have been taken out and thoroughly cleaned, and new nests having been put in, the cages are ready for the next round.

The young are now going for themselves. I still continue the egg and biscuit with increased scalded rape, but I add plain Canary seed to their diet. The only green food they get is the well-known Shepherd's Purse, and at the time of writing I have got some in stock. Young and old birds alike enjoy a bit of it. If any bird goes soft, which it often does when put on seed, I remove the bird and put it on milk sop for a few days, when it is soon restored to its usual health and returned to the others. When they are about ten weeks old I add a few corns of hemp seed to the Canary, and they are kept on that all the time.

Teaching the Young to Drink.

I teach them to drink in this way: I fill a dish with water and soak a two-feet length of white worsted. Then put the dish on the top of the cage and allow it to project over the top. Then I draw down the worsted to within about six inches above the water glass. When the birds see the drop they soon begin to drink and the trouble for the time being is over. My wild birds are taught in the same way to drink from the glass outside the cage.

The room is well lighted with a good paraffin lamp with reflector, and there is no other heat. I turn on the full light as the darkness comes on. They can all see to feed till 9 p.m. The cocks sing splendidly and seem as lively as in the daylight. I again light up at 7 a.m. I think that from fourteen to sixteen hours is too long for them to go without food; it certainly cannot be good for them.

When the Birds Have Colds.

The Scotch Fancy Canary is very often affected with colds, such as wheezing and asthma. If the cold is a light one, a few doses of glycerine, Ipecacuanha, oxymel of squills, mixed in equal parts as prescribed in CAGE BIRDS, often puts them all right. If the cold, however, is severe, I remove the birds to warmer quarters and keep them in a box cage. I then put in half a teaspoonful of "Congreves Balsam Elixir" in two tablespoonfuls of water; I feed on Canary seed with a little German rape seed. About twice a week I also give egg and biscuit, with a few drops of chemical food added. I have found this treatment to bring birds round alright.

But if the bird is run down, I know of nothing better for building them up than an infusion of Marsh Mallow. I have used it for chest troubles myself. The herb is a real system builder. The preparation is as follows:—3d. packet of leaves and flowers of marsh mallow. Put the herb into a common teapot that will hold as much water as will fill a 5-gill bottle; pour boiling water over it, and let it stand for eight hours, and keep it hot in the same way as you would infuse tea. Then pour it into a large bottle and let it stand until cooled down. Add one glass of whisky to make it keep, and fill the bird's glass half full with the herb, adding pure water; then watch for the result.

To Make Hens Strong.

All my hens are kept during the winter in a large flight cage, which makes them strong and in good order for the breeding season. I cover the bottoms with sawdust and also supply a mixture of shell gravel near the seed drawer for them to pick at as they need it.

I have a neat little wardrobe with shelves to hold all my seeds, which are kept in tins and labelled. I can put my hand on any one of the tins without removing the one next it. I have a certain mixture which I call "Pick-me-up." It contains rape, maw, inga, linseed, and Gold of Pleasure, with several wild seeds; and I have found it to be very beneficial if a bird happens to be out of its usual. I give one teaspoonful of it in a separate dish.

Some British Birds I Have Kept.

By J. W. FISHER.

What memories the headline brings to my mind, and what a difference there is between the fancier of to-day and the fancier of twenty or thirty years ago! Then one had to creep his way and find out by experience every thing in connection with the hobby, in whatever branch of the Cage Bird Fancy he might be, and pay for it too. There were very few fanciers ready and willing to give you any idea how they fed or managed their birds, and no paper in which you could read reports and comments on shows or their exhibits.

The fancier of to-day gets special articles on any and every kind of cage bird, written, in most cases, by the men who have been the pioneers of the Fancy. When, too, modern fanciers have splendid editions of CAGE BIRDS, with their lovely coloured plates, and their scores of useful information, I think they may consider that they live in a good time, and it will only be their own fault if they don't have a good time.

In my humble attempt to relate my experiences, I purpose to treat mostly of the Soft-Bills, or what are generally called such, or insectivorous birds, because with them I have had most to do, and not because I do not admire the Seed-eaters or Finches.

I may here mention, by the way, that I have at the present time a young cock Bullie, a last-year bird, and a hen that has been twice moulted in the house (once by myself), and she can pipe quite as well as the cock, and although I have had hens before many a time, I have never known them to pipe.

Concerning Blackbirds and Thrushes.

The Blackbird is a very old favourite with most people, and a grand one when in good condition. In a cage in which it can suitably show off its points it will win to-day, in a mixed class, or in an "any species" class.

Like all the Thrush tribe, they require a lot of care and attention, and a good roomy cage is needed to keep them in, if they are to be maintained in full feather. Nothing to my mind looks worse than broken wings and tail feathers. I like their song, as I think it more mellow than that of the Song Thrush.

About four years ago I had a nest of young Thrushes brought to me by a gentleman from his own garden. It contained four birds, and had contained five, one having been thrown out and found dead on the ground under the bush in which the nest was built.

I reared the four, and they all turned out to be cocks, which I thought was something unusual. I sold three of them for £1 apiece, and have the other one still. He opened out some time ago in full song. I wonder if any of my readers have ever noticed the difference in the songs of the Thrushes? Although you can always tell it is the Thrush, no two will be found to sing alike. My people used to be amused when I had the four at it, and if I were in another room, I could tell them which bird it was that was singing; and I was never mistaken.

Another Favourite Softbill.

Another favourite Soft-Bill of mine is the Starling. How many people seeing a Starling in a cage for the first time have said: "What have you got there; a Starling? Why, I can get dozens of them, but have never thought them worth keeping!" But take him up to the light, and if you are fortunate enough to be where the sun shines and you can show him with a few of Old Sol's rays playing on him as he turns his graceful form about, what do you hear then? "Why, I had no idea they were so beautiful."

And they are as mischievous as Magpies. I have one now. I have a sliding door on the front of his cage, and I have to hang a weight on it to keep it shut, for if it is left off a minute down he comes and peck, peck, goes his long slender bill under the door. Once his bill is there, he only has to open his mouth, when up goes the door a little and under comes his head levering up the door. Then he looks round, as much as to say, "I have done it again."

He never attempts to get out as long as I am in the room, but if I go out, if only for half a minute, out he comes on a voyage of discovery, and if there is anything standing about that he ought not to be in with that long bill of his, you can lay any odds you like that he has found it.

Starlings want a lot of attention if their cages are to be kept clean, as they will wash themselves in anything that is wet—from water to paint—and will do it about every half hour of the day or night. If you take a light into the room at night, about the first thing they will do is to have a bath, if they can get at anything wet, so that you have to clean them out every day.

Starlings as Talkers.

But the Starling is worth all the trouble needed, even if it is kept merely as a pet, especially if you can get one that can talk. I have never had such a one myself, but I have known of several. One was bought by Mr. John Frostick from an old tailor of our acquaintance, who had taught it to say several things very nicely.

But the best one I ever did hear belonged to another gentleman I knew. His shop was just opposite the main entrances of a theatre, and the bird could shout out "Pit, early door, this way, this way," besides many other things of a similar kind.

In a suitable cage a good Starling is still a bird to be considered in these days of keen competition, but of that more anon.

The Comical and Mischievous Magpie.

Another mimic I have kept is the Magpie. This requires a large cage, and takes a lot of keeping clean; but to the lover of pets he amply repays any trouble by his comical ways. I had one once which I kept in a cage made from a bacon or ham box with a front put into it. I used to keep it in a scullery or back kitchen, and the cage answered the two-fold purpose of being a home for the Magpie, and (standing against the door of the boiler fire-place) a screen to keep the soot, etc., from blowing down.

When the fire was not in use I made a point of being the first up in the mornings. I used to open the door of its cage and place a bowl of water on the slopstone for Mr. Mag to have his morning tub. Then I let him go outside, when he used to travel up and down the back yards and gardens of the neighbouring houses, I suppose for any tit-bits of food that he could find.

Master Jack's Capers.

He could open his cage door, and many a time has he done so at night time when my wife, having put the youngsters to bed, has been having a quiet half hour to herself. Perhaps I have been out of the way, and if Mr. Jack could find any water to have a wash in, that would be the first thing he would do. The next thing would be to come into the room where my wife was sitting and perch himself on the fender in front of the fire to shake the water out of his plumage, much to the detriment of the steel fender and fire-irons, and the annoyance of my better half.

But to make him go back into his cage was quite another matter, and many a tussle they have had, she being armed with a towel and flipping him round the room. But it usually ended in his being left in peaceful possession, as he was always the victor, being able to get round behind her and peck at her heels. As soon as he heard me putting my key in the lock of the front door, however, off he would trot and quietly get back into his cage, as if nothing had occurred to mar the peace of a happy home.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS

Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly a few ideas useful to the bird keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 272.
A NOVEL SELF-SUPPORTING SEED HOPPER.

Sent by F. Slingsby, 23, Torrington Street, Hull.

I enclose a sketch of a home-made self-feeder seed-hopper for an outdoor aviary, one which costs practically nothing. Obtain a large, clear glass beer bottle (or any bottle made of clear glass), and fix it through the hole in the wood so that the mouth of the bottle has about ¼in. clearance from the bottom of the feeding trough (see sketch). Slope the bottom of the feeding trough so that the seed will run towards the ends (as per dotted lines). I made one recently and find it very successful for an outdoor aviary.—F. SLINGSBY.

No. 273.
A NOVEL NEST BOX.

Sent by E. Cornwell, 38, Princes Street, North Shields.

I have found that cheap and very satisfactory nesting places can be made for foreign birds, especially Budgerigars and Java Sparrows, as seen in sketches. The advantages they have over other nests and husks are several. They are cheap, sanitary, will not harbour insects, and can be renewed inside every year, at a normal cost of a copper, if required. First get a rough box from the grocer, say 18in. by 12in. by 8in. deep, as per sketch A. Now get about equal parts of waste paper, fine sawdust, and hay, enough to fill the box. To this add a large cup-full of lime. Now take a pennyworth of glue, and boil it down in about a quart of water. First soak the paper to a pulp, then stir all together to a stiff mess. Fill the box, pressing it well down, screw on the lid, and stand aside to dry, say about 24 hours. Now bore four 1½ or 2-inch holes in the lid, and through the contents of box to a depth of about 6in., as per sketch B. Drive a small peg below each hole for the bird to alight upon. Hang up your box, or nail it, inside your aviary, and your birds will do the remainder.—E. CORNWELL.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

A meeting of the council was held on Saturday, January 2nd, in connection with Great Horton Show, Mr. John Greaves in the chair. The following business was transacted:—That the secretary ask for tenders for the supply of medals required for this season. The result of committee's work in respect to railway grievances was read, and was left over to next meeting, pending further investigations. Re disputed claim of bird at Brighouse Show, the secretary was instructed to inform the parties concerned of the council's decision. Re defaulting members of societies, the respective secretaries are to inform such of council's decision, and if not complied with to appear at next meeting on January 30th. That the Yorkshire Union and the various specialist clubs arrange to hold an amalgamated social and prize distribution on the same lines as last year.—SAMUEL DEAN, secretary.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

Birds in Severe Weather.

The weather during the past week has been unusually severe. The frost was intense, and with it came a heavy fall of snow, completely covering the ground all over the country. Wild birds must have been hours without food, and consequently have suffered keenly. The snow fell the whole of one day, and although we repeatedly swept it away to get a clear space for their benefit it was just as quickly covered again. How birds manage to exist at all under such conditions is a mystery; hundreds must die, for the want of food during such severe weather must carry some off. Late hatched birds or weaklings must go, and only the very strong and robust can exist. When the storm had passed and nothing but a white mantle remained, all that could be seen were just the stalks of a few dried weeds of the taller kinds above the snow. On these were perched two or three Linnets. But little could be left after the months that have passed since the seed was ripe. The wind and rain must have scattered most of it, and the feathered creatures consumed the remainder. During such weather Finches must suffer more than the larger soft-bills. The food of the seed-eaters, too, is completely covered, but the Blackbirds and Thrushes have still the hedgerows left to forage in, and although the crop of berries has been considerably reduced, there are still a good many berries left. Had the weather continued severe, no doubt this food would have been still further reduced. Little sustenance of other kinds would have been obtainable above the snow. While we were travelling from London to the north, hardly a bird was to be seen—just a few rooks here and there on the hillside or down by the edges of the frozen streams; but the big flocks of Peewits, Linnets, Sparrows and other birds had completely disappeared.

Tame Penguins.

An explorer in the cold antaretic regions, found the Penguins so tame that they could be picked up by hand.

Retiring to Roost.

The Thrushes and Blackbirds in the holly and evergreens are noisy at roosting time; the latter birds continuing to "chink, chink" very late in the evening. The Robins flit across the lawn even later still. But out in the open, upon the bare hillside, we can hear the restless cry of the Lapwings when all other birds have retired, and the footpath across the fields is barely discernible.

Movements of Birds.

The coming of the frost and snow causes a considerable movement among wild birds. Many of the inland waters and streams get frozen over, so that waterfowl have to seek elsewhere for the food and shelter so necessary to them. The lovely plumaged Kingfisher is frozen out, and flying down stream he makes for the mouth of the river where among the dead reed stems or perched upon the decayed branch of some old willow, he gives a touch of life and colour to an otherwise dreary landscape.

Golden Plovers in Winter.

A few Golden Plovers have been noticed among the Peewits—a sure sign of bad weather further north, for the golden bird seldom ventures south unless absolutely driven to do so. They are even more wary than the Peewits, and when once on the wing fly faster. Should the frost continue and the hills and downs get frostbound, they will all flock to the marshes bordering the rivers, where the influence of the tide keeps the grass land soft and yielding. A host of birds of all species may be met with here, when hardly one is to be seen upon higher ground.
